

New York Fashions..

New York, Oct. 6.—Back from country homes and summer outings, feminine interests are absorbed by innumerable preparations for winter, its cares and its gaieties. House-cleaning, first of all, to remove the accumulation of summer dust, then kindergarten and school for the children present their claims for consideration. Once those are well out of the way, the busy housewife's thoughts are free to give to her own outfit for the coming social season. Anxious consultation is held with modiste and milliner, and much personal is given to fashion sheets and journals. In truth it is a momentous question, so bewildering is the array of fabric and garment set forth in the shops to tempt Eve's daughters. Wise women, like good soldiers, plan their campaign, so to speak, before they go forth to buy. With definite ideas of their requirements, no one need feel confused, for with one need for certain occasions on her list, it is not difficult to select a suitable make-up. Coat suits are naturally of primary importance, worn as they are for street and shopping, for church and often for informal five o'clock teas.

FIGURE ONE.

Developed in camel's hair, as inglyshown in this illustration, an exceedingly attractive suit will be had, which cannot fail to satisfy the demands of the most exacting taste. It will be equally effective in black or navy blue, according to individual preference, but as the fancy of the season rather leans to blue, choice will naturally fall in that direction. A black satin shawl collar, as shown on this model, is almost de rigueur. The cuffs also should be in keeping with the collar. Black and white collar and cuffs on a suit of black camel's hair would be decidedly chic in developing this design.

A necessary accompaniment to every coat suit is a separate blouse or waist. Shop windows are now full of exquisite creations of these indispensable adjuncts to feminine apparel. Whether plain or elaborate, they attract at once the eye of the most casual observer. There is a style this season about even this simplest blouse which makes never seem to have attained before. In silk, waist to match the suit in color, tucks, side frills and other accessories give that distinctive tailored air it is the ambition of every woman to attain. Besides the tailored blouse, designs are seen suitable for every occasion. Exceedingly dressy affairs for theater or the restaurant dinner, are made of chiffon, voile, marquisette, or dainty silks, elaborately trimmed with lace, beads or embroidery. Gold lace and fringe is now much used in making the fancy blouse, and a few are seen without a touch of the glittering metal somewhere in their construction. A noticeable feature of the new blouses is a very evident tendency to return to draped effects in front. A natural outgrowth of the prevailing craze for the fichu is the soft, filmy material hung full from the shoulders, brought down surplice fashion and then caught to the bodice a little to the left and just above the waistline with a single French rose in rich colors, or a chou, made of

HEAD WAS SCALY HAIR ALL CAME OUT

And Baby's Face Broke Out in Red Bumps, Spread on Hands and Arms. Got Worse All the Time.

Mother Says, "I Don't Think Anything Else Would Have Cured Him Except Cuticura."

"When my first baby was six months old he broke out on his head with little bumps. They would dry up and then come back again. I tried all kinds of ointments and lotions, but nothing would do. Then I bought Cuticura. I used it on his head and his face broke out all over in red bumps and it kept spreading until it was on his hands and arms. I bought several boxes of ointment, gave him bath medicine and had to doctor him to treat him, but he got worse all the time. He had about six months when a friend told me about Cuticura. I sent and got a bottle of Cuticura Resolvent, a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment. In three days after using them he began to improve. He began to take long naps and to stop scratching his head. After taking five bottles of Resolvent, two boxes of Ointment and three cakes of Soap he was sound and well, and never had any breaking out of any kind. His hair came out in little curls all over his head. I don't think anything else would have cured him except Cuticura. I have bought Cuticura Ointment and Soap several times since to use for cuts and sores and have never known them to fail to cure what I put them on. Cuticura Soap is the best that I have ever used for toilet purposes." (Signed) Mrs. E. Harmon, R. F. D. 2, Atoka, Tenn., Sept. 10, 1910. Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. the material and a bit of gold lace. Shoes as well as blouse must now be in keeping with the main thought of the costume if one would comply with the latest dictates of style. For some time Dame Fashion has been busy turning herself with feminine footgear, and devises more and more artistic models each year. This season she prescribes shoes to match each gown, either in general tone or in the actual material. The really up-to-date woman now takes pieces of her gown to her shoemaker and has her boots made to order of patent leather or gun metal vamps with the cloth uppers. Shoe shop windows nowadays are almost as attractive as those of the dry goods establishments, so vast is the assortment of boots, shoes and slippers. A fad of the moment is black velvet boots to wear with the black velvet or velveteen street suit, though it is doubtful if they will hold their own after the crisp, clear days of early fall. In the mud and slush of winter streets their beauty would soon be marred so that women who walk or depend upon street cars for transportation will not find their lasting qualities very satisfactory. The plain kid shoe, at least in black, seems to be relegated for the present to the limbo of discarded styles, where, no doubt, they will be forgotten until some other and later whim shall resurrect them and restore them to favor. Just now the "two-toned" shoe is in either of leather vamp with cloth top, or of different kinds of leather in combination. A wide range of choice is given as to leather, soft kid, gun metal and vied all offering bids for popularity. Slaton slippers are in high favor for evening wear, and come in all colors, and in white and gold, to match the evening gown.

FIGURE TWO.

After her street and house gowns are provided, the average woman will indulge to the full her taste for beauty in preparing her dresses for social occasions. Never before have more gorgeous gowns been worn than will appear this winter at society affairs. In the lead for evening wear will be brocade, and impossible new surpasses in beauty of color the exquisite stuff worn by our grandmothers. The illustration shows a lovely dress of brocade made up in suitable fashion for theater wear and the restaurant dinner which follows. It is veiled in tulle or chiffon to soften and blend these colors, and has the surplice idea expressed in the making of the waist. The dress will make a strong appeal to every woman of taste. The pretty theatre born worn with it is a dainty confection of lace. The new brocades are brought out in every conceivable combination of color, but them aerial is even more attractive. A favorite is one having the flower design in uncut velvet on a satin ground. Loveliest of all, however, are the brocades of uncut velvet on chiffon. Arrayed in one of these, a pretty woman might well feel that she vies with the lilies in beauty and splendor.

WELCOME WORDS TO WOMEN

Women who suffer with disorders peculiar to their sex should write to Dr. Pierce and receive free the advice of a physician of over 40 years' experience—a skilled and successful specialist in the diseases of women. Every letter of this sort has the most careful consideration and is regarded as a sacredly confidential. Many sensitively-minded women write fully to Dr. Pierce what they would shrink from telling to their local physicians. The local physician is pretty sure to say that he cannot do anything without "an examination." Dr. Pierce holds that these distasteful examinations are generally needless, and that no woman, except in rare cases, should submit to them.

Dr. Pierce's treatment will cure you right in the privacy of your own home. His "Favorite Prescription" has cured hundreds of thousands, some of them the worst of cases.

It is the only medicine of its kind that is the product of a regularly graduated physician. The only one good enough that its makers dare to print its very ingredients on its outside wrapper. There's no secrecy. It will bear examination. No alcohol and no habit-forming drugs are found in it. Some unscrupulous medicine dealers may offer you a substitute. Don't take it. Don't trifle with your health. Write to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, President, Buffalo, N. Y.,—take the advice received and be well.

Amusements

Dandy Dixie Minstrels—Today. The Dandy Dixie Minstrels headed by James Crosby, the well known colored comedian, will be seen at the Academy of Music this afternoon and tonight.

This is the original Dandy Dixie Minstrels, and is under the management of Mr. R. Voelkie, who also directs the tour of "Black Patti."

There has been a heavy advance sale, and crowded houses will see the minstrels at both performances. The entire balcony and gallery has been reserved for colored people.

Thomas Jefferson. Thomas Jefferson will appear in "Rip Van Winkle" at the Academy on Monday, matinee and night. This delightful and perennially new play in which he won renown over twelve years ago. Theater-goers wonder why they never lose interest in this play or in the jovial and bibulous vagabond whom Mr. Jefferson portrays in it. It is not only because the actor invests the part with a consummate art that both impresses and wins, nor because Mr. Jefferson's characterization breathes warmth and humanity, a geniality and real flesh-and-bloodness, that are rarely found in modern stage creations, but because every time the part is played Mr. Jefferson adds some little touch here and there that gives it fresh novelty and that keeps its sweetness and fragrance forever new and forever attractive.

The comedian has appeared in this character thousands of times and before perhaps over a million, still he never fails to attract it with an eagerness and an enthusiasm that makes each new performance as interesting and as surprisingly delightful as if it were a premiere.

"The Gamblers"—Coming. "The Gamblers," Charles Klein's intensely interesting drama, does not deal with petty games of chance, but with the larger financial dealings in Wall street. Mr. Klein has woven a number of romantic situations into his story. The play was one of the substantial successes of last season, remaining at Maxine Elliott's Theatre for over a year of successful performances. "The Gamblers" comes to the Academy of Music next Tuesday matinee and night. Seats are now on sale at Hawley's.

"Mutt and Jeff"—Coming. Seats will go on sale Monday morning at Hawley's for the engagement next Wednesday afternoon and night. The Academy of Music of Mr. Gus Hill's original production of the successful musical comedy "Mutt and Jeff" which is founded on the famous cartoons of Bud Fisher.

"Mutt and Jeff" is playing to capacity houses in every city that they have visited, and judging from the unusual interest displayed by theatergoers in this city in the approaching engagement, two banner houses will see this great musical play here.

Creators' Band—Coming. An event that is looked forward to with much interest is the appearance here of Creators' Band next Thursday afternoon and night at the Academy of Music.

No other band ever did what it has done in the following instances: It has set New York city music-mad, and was the rage and talk of the town on several occasions, playing over 100 nights on Broadway, followed by a long series of summer concerts to the largest and most enthusiastic crowds ever seen at St. Nicholas Garden. It has broken all attendance records in 14 years at the Pittsburgh Expositions in previous years, and has just finished one of the most satisfactory engagements at this Exposition the past September. It set the musical people of cultured Boston wild in the first series of 18 concerts in the Boston Symphony Hall, and during a six weeks' engagement in this city the past summer met with the same success. Hundreds of people have been turned away from many of the concerts given in St. Louis, Detroit, Cleveland, and many other western cities. In all these places the highest praises have been sounded for this organization by the best of musical critics, and the highest authorities in America have declared Sig. Creators to be the most wonderful leader ever seen, his interpretations and readings the most inspired and soul-stirring ever known, and the local playhouse is sure to be packed to its capacity next Thursday at both concerts.

"The Man on the Box." Harold McGrath's novel, "The Man on the Box" may be found in all the libraries and up-to-date book stores, and was one of the most popular books ever published. The dramatization of the book follows the lines of the story closely and is a play that gives the play-goer quantity as well as quality. The play will be presented at the Academy of Music Saturday matinee and night of next week with Bertleigh in the leading role.

A Great Little Performer. Lovers of child life would not miss the very attractive act which the La Cella team is putting on at the Orpheum Theatre on West Trade street. This team is composed of three members and although the youngest of the trio has seen but few summers (most confessed that he is there with the goods when it comes to classy vaudeville. The Celles have very wisely not attempted to make the child carry too

Cold Caused A Wreck

Mrs. Mitchell Has Weary Search for Relief. Physicians State no Hope For Recovery.

Morganton, N. C.—"My health had been a wreck for years," says Mrs. C. C. Mitchell, of this city. "When I was 16 years old, I commenced to suffer. I caught cold, and it went into a fever. I stayed in bed for weeks, and though I used all kinds of medicine, I got no relief, until I tried Cardui, the woman's tonic. Cardui cured me. It is the best medicine I ever used. I cannot praise it enough. Then, some time ago, I was taken down again very bad. The doctors all said I could not live, and they gave me up. I used Cardui and was greatly relieved. Now, I am entirely well. Cardui is a good medicine and worth its weight in gold. I will keep it in my home all the time, as I do not want to be without it."

Do you wonder why Cardui is so popular, when it has cured so many sick and ailing women, after other medicines had failed? The reason is that it goes to the spot that needs attention and does the work that is required. All women need Cardui, the woman's tonic,—at times. When you do, will you try it? Please do.
