

RESUME OF WEEK'S DEALINGS ON WALL STREET

(By THOMAS C. SHOTWELL.)

New York, Oct. 14.—Stocks closed strong today under leadership of Reading, Union Pacific and Steel. The close was at about the best prices and strength was maintained throughout the session. Death of Justice Harlan caused covering of shorts in Reading on the theory that the proceedings against the coal trust in the supreme court would be delayed.

Prices were not materially changed as a result of the week's transactions except in a few specialties and American Beet Sugar was the chief of these, moving to high record prices in expectation of a dividend. Tobacco bonds were extremely active and made sharp advances, both the fours and sixes. Cotton sold at the lowest price in three years under an overwhelming movement from the farms.

Reports by the United States government showed that the crops have not changed materially in volume since the previous report of a month ago. The crop report for the United States was supplemented by an official report showing that the Russian wheat yield this year is 240,000,000 bushels less than last year, oats 150,000,000 bushels less and rye 48,000,000 less. Estimates of the cotton crop in the United States are being raised to above fifteen million bales and the staple is the finest ever grown.

Earnings of railroads serving the crop belt are holding up well but in other sections of the country the gross is yielding, although in many cases the net is being reduced to match it.

In connection with the advance of Beet Sugar stock it can be said on official authority that a dividend will be declared in less than thirty days and directors of the company do not hesitate to say that the stock will sell higher than it is. But small investors are being warned by banking interests that the high cost of living this winter and particularly the high price of sugar taken in connection with the frauds upon the United States government committed by the American Sugar Refining Company will cause agitation in congress against the sugar tariff. Although the Beet Sugar is innocent of any fraud it will suffer along with the American Company in the event of tariff agitation. Even the American Company is not guilty of any particular wrong doing in connection with the advance in sugar which is based upon trade conditions. The past record of the corporation, however, is such as to rob it of all hopes of getting fair play in this connection.

The steel corporation reported that on the first of October unfilled orders on its books were 84,568 tons smaller than on the first of the previous month. Prices have been reduced officially by the steel makers and unofficially they are reduced to whatever figure a purchaser is willing to pay. There is considerable demoralization in the industry except in the steel rail department and rails hold firm at $23 as an invitation for the government to make an attack.

The principles of fair play demand that the government make known its intentions in the near future regarding the steel trust. It is only honest in view of the agitation to let the public know what it proposes to do. In view of the fact that the Electric Trust and President Taft's reiteration that he proposes to re-establish old fashioned competition in the United States it looks as though the government would be forced to begin some action against the steel trust regardless of considerations for ex-President Roosevelt.

Some people are so careless that even their promises get broken.

You don't have to be an optimist to make light of other people's troubles.

Many a man has been thrown in the shade from standing in his own light.

Taken To The Hospital

After Operation Failed to Help, Mrs. Kendrick Found that Cardui Made Her Well.

Jonesville, S. C.—"I suffered with womanly trouble," writes Mrs. J. S. Kendrick, in a letter from Jonesville, and at times, I could not bear to stand on my feet.

The doctor said I never would be any better, and that I would have to have an operation, or I would have a cancer.

I went to the hospital, and they operated on me, but I got no better.

They said medicines would do me no good, and I thought I would have to die.

At last, I tried Cardui, and I began to improve, so I continued using it. Now, I am well, and can do my own work. I don't feel any pains. Cardui worked like a charm.

There must be merit in this purely vegetable tonic remedy for women—Cardui—when it will help an apparently hopeless case as this. Its ingredients are mild herbs, with a gentle, tonic effect, on the womanly constitution.

If you suffer from any symptoms of womanly trouble, take Cardui. It will help you to get well.

Cardui goes to the spot—reaches the trouble—relieves the symptoms, and drives away the cause.

Have you tried it? If not, do so. It may be just what you need.

PREVENTION OF CRIME THE MOST IMPORTANT THING

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 16.—In his report to the American Prison Association, Prof. Franklin H. Briggs, chairman of the standing committee of prevention and probation, devoted all of his address to the subject of prevention, claiming that his committee had found that with prevention firmly entrenched, crime would be unnecessary. Prof. Briggs took up the serious menaces to humanity under separate topics and commented upon their prevention along the lines of progressive science. The professor called attention to the fact that at least 75 per cent of all the children in institutions for delinquents had suffered parental casualty, by the death of either or both of the parents. He complimented the private and public institutions which keep children off the streets and give them employment for mind and body and asked for legislation that would increase the force already in this field.

With regard to providing pensions for widowed or deserted mothers, the committee was of the opinion that such legislation would tend to perpetuate the crime. According to the findings of the committee the best method to provide for the maintenance of these cases was to offer employment of sufficient value to enable the mother and her children to make a decent living. This employment to be under state supervision.

The employment of school buildings after hours, in the evenings and on Sunday afternoons and evenings was also put forward as a movement that would greatly tend to keep men, women and children from the contaminating influences of the street. These buildings to be used not alone as houses of instruction but as reading rooms and clubs where the community could meet to discuss questions of mutual interest without having recourse to the street corners or saloons.

The committee's views upon the care of the feeble-minded are in part:

"More effective care of the feeble-minded of both sexes is a preventive measure of the utmost importance. Probably no measure would bear immediate results to such a fruitful degree as would this. Every feeble-minded woman left at large during the child bearing period becomes an element of danger to the community. Delinquents and defectives, and communities that feel that they cannot afford the funds necessary to segregate such cases are simply providing for a much heavier burden in the future. Feeble-minded men who constitute a constant menace to the communities in which they live, often being guilty of the most revolting crimes, instead of being actually and permanently segregated in custodial institutions are sent to some penal institution for a longer or shorter period and then allowed to come out to again prey upon the community and begot their kind."

The committee advocated the segregation and detention of all feeble-minded persons, with adequate arrangements for their maintenance in old age. The committee were taken into consideration the race feeble-minded delinquents would show a marked decrease in numbers.

When a Congress Quits.

Said an old member of the house to the new: "well, the jig's about up, and we are going home. Are you glad?"

"I am, from the bottom of my heart. The session has been oppressively dull for me."

"Haven't learned anything from it?"

"Only that our would-be-teachers don't know anything themselves."

"Come, come my boy. That's less majestic."

"Maybe. But it's also the truth."

"Considerably. If the debate at the next session is no better on our side than it has been at this I'll turn protectionist in sheer disgust."

"Cheer up. You'll find that you can stand a good deal more for party's sake. Shall you offer for re-election?"

"Oh yes and expect to lay some wibes the next few months. Asand you?"

"Oh, yes. Me, too. Suppose we arrange to change pulpits next year so to say. You visit my district and make a few speeches and I yours."

"Why, I shall be delighted. The favor will be all on my side. It will help me at home to participate in the campaign of a veteran of your distinction. It was kind of you to propose it. And when you visit my people they'll turn out to a man to hear you."

"Give me a pointer about their taste in stumping."

"It's too much better than it used to be. It was lowered at one time by one of my predecessors, a great lumbering, roaring, round-shouldered ignoramus, with his mouth full of catch phrases and his huge body full of assurance."

"What became of him?"

"Our people sent him to the senate—a just punishment for him—and he perished out there."

"Something then of an argumentative nature goes best there now?"

"Yes, but seasoned with a little guff. I haven't been able to dispense with guff altogether. Breaking a constituency of a taste for guff is like breaking an old topper of his taste for betzel. It's slow work."

"Don't forget upon your return home to play the part of the exhausted statesman. Remember your labors here have been extremely taxing sleep late. Seek the shade on your way down town. Work a fan at the office and one or two small fans on the ground that you are hardly equal to a case in court at present. Play the game."

"About when should I begin to appear as my old vigorous self again?"

"Toward the close of September. Come around slowly and then show

The train will be made up of three lecture coaches, three exhibit coaches and one flat car for live stock to be furnished by the Southern Railway, and one Arms Palace Stock car to be arranged for by the Tennessee department of agriculture. Morgan, dairy agent of the Southern Railway, and well known experts connected with the state and university will accompany the train and will conduct lectures and demonstrations in each of the thirty-three points, which will be covered in twenty-three working days.

The lectures will attempt to acquaint the farmers with the latest scientific investigations relating to the soil, the plants and the farm animals, and to advise them how to increase crop yields and at the same time by a rational system of crop rotation to leave the soil richer year after year when crops are removed. The subjects of education and health will also be treated. The Southern Railway is bearing the whole expense of the campaign in pursuance of its policy to materially assist in the development of the territory it serves.

EDITOR AND GOVERNOR AT WAR

Spartanburg, S. C., Oct. 16.—Governor Cole L. Blease has taken charge by Charles H. Henry, editor of the Spartanburg Journal, and in a letter to Henry, published in the Journal says he will soon come to Spartanburg for the county fair, and dares the editor to repeat the offending epithet to his face. The sentence which aroused the gubernatorial ire was:

"There is fine material in South Carolina politics just now for a comic opera, with Cole Blease as the villain."

In reply to the Governor's threat, Henry says he would not dignify the governor by any such action; and again calls him "ridiculous, comical, grotesque, droll and absurdly vain."

CORSET STOPS SPENT BULLET.

Easton, Pa., Oct. 16.—While Mrs. Charles Firth, of Phillipsburg, N. J., was preparing luncheon here a bullet from a bobert rifle crashed through a window of the dining room and struck her. Fortunately, the bullet had spent much of its force, so it struck a steel stay in her corset which was discharged by a boy on the Easton shore of the Delaware river. With three companions he was arrested and arraigned in police court, and dropped to the floor.

Investigation showed that the rifle The magistrate ordered the weapon confiscated and held the case under advisement. Mrs. Firth has only a painful bruise on her body.

Many a white lie has left black mark behind it.

Glass Factory Lad Crippled When Caught in Belt.

Mays Landing, N. J., Oct. 16.—James Yannell, 17 year old, employed in the cut-glass factory here, was replacing a belt on a shaft when his left arm became entangled in the belt and was severed about two inches from the elbow.

The lad grabbed for his hand as it fell to the floor, and assisted by fellowworkmen, walked several blocks to the office of Dr. H. C. James, who immediately took him to the Atlantic City Hospital.

COST OF SAVING SOULS.

Varies Greatly With Cities According to "Billy" Sunday's Figures.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 16.—"Billy" Sunday, erstwhile baseball player and now evangelist, has issued a soul-saving pamphlet, showing the average cost of saving souls to the various cities of the United States. The cities and the cost in each of leading a soul, into the church fold are as follows: Chicago, $395; New York $545; Indianapolis $620; Boston $450; New Orleans $78; Atlanta $75.

Chicago pastors shown the process of computation declared that a rescued soul was cheap at any price in comparison with the actual and incalculable value of a soul.

It was also ascertained, that the price of soul-saving in a religious campaign or revival like those given in Chicago by "Gypsy" Smith, or Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman is much cheaper than the average cost to Chicago churches in the course of their year's work.

MINER DIES AS FOUR ESCAPE.

Shenandoah, Pa., Oct. 16.—Felix Ne-lavsky, 32 years old, a prominent contract miner, met a terrible death here. After firing a shot in a breast he went up alone to dress the face, leaving his four men out on the gangway. When he arrived at the face of the breast a heavy fall of coal and rock occurred, burying him alive. It took five hours to recover his horribly-mangled body. Had his men gone with him, as they generally do, all would have been killed. It will take days to clean up the heavy fall.
