

GRAND JURY MAKES REPORT

The grand jury before being discharged Friday evening, made the following report:

Report.
"To His Honor, James L. Webb, judge of Superior court for April term, 1913.

"We, the grand jurors in and for the county of Mecklenburg, April term, 1913, desire to submit the following report: We have acted on all bills handed to us by the solicitor and find 31 true bills and one not true bill. We have made presentations of all violations coming within our knowledge. We have made a thorough inspection of the court house, and find the exterior damaging for want of paint, and we recommend that all metal and woodwork be overhauled and painted at once, also the roof be inspected and necessary repairs and painting done.

"We visited the jail in a body, and found 29 prisoners, three white and 26 colored. We did not find any complaint on the part of the prisoners of harsh treatment.

"We visited the department stores by a committee, and found that several of our larger stores have not complied with the laws in providing seats for the lady employees, but will do so at once. We discussed the jail proposition with Chairman Long, and he assured us that before we would be in session again, that the plans of the new jail would be well under way. We wish to recommend that in the consideration of the new jail on the lot where the jail now stands, that the county commissioners consider the advisability of erecting a criminal court room so that the prisoners would not have to be on public exhibition when brought to court.

"We recommend that the county commissioners devise some plan for inspection of the public highways about every 60 days, which would bring them necessary information, as to where quick repairs were needed.

"In this connection, we would recommend that a small repair gang be created that could be used to open up ditches and do necessary repair, which if left to be reached by a larger force, would cause considerable damage to the roads.

"We did not inspect the camps or county home, but will do so at our next session.

"Having completed our work we would respectfully request that we be discharged.

(Signed) WILLIS BROWN, Foreman.

Mr. Leonard C. Hollenbach, brother of Mrs. Philip Gallagher of this city died Tuesday last at his home in Philadelphia, and the funeral services were held yesterday at the residence of his mother, Mrs. Mary Hollenbach, his wife being too unwell for the service to be held at the residence.

Mr. Hollenbach frequently visited Mrs. Gallagher, and had many friends in Charlotte. He was a member of the Catholic church and esteemed as an upright, honorable man. Solemn Requiem Mass was held at the church of the Nativity, the interment being at Holy Redeemer cemetery.

The beauty of the First Presbyterian church yard is the comment of all strangers. The trees are with verdant clad, and the whole square beautiful.

Reconstruction Of East Trade

Within a week's time, or possibly less, a line of car track will be laid under the underpass and the street cars running on same. The track is now laid but not ballasted. The side tracks on the south side of the pass, which has been used by the cars, will remain in tact until the main line is completed. Work on the underpass is being pushed rapidly. The abutting property, or rather that in the underpass territory, is still in a rather chaotic condition, but the owners of the property and occupants of the buildings are beginning to get things in shape relative to the change in topography which the underpass brought about. A number of the old shacks have been pulled down, and in their places will rise good buildings. The Seaboard, which owned the brick building on the northwest corner of the railroad and Trade street—formerly the Charlotte Hardware Company—is tearing the building down, about one half of it being demolished. The building directly across the track from the old hardware building and occupied by the International Harvesting Company, is making the basement into a first story, the former first story of the building to become the second story. Similar work and similar changes are going on in the underpass section—a block east and west of the railroad crossing.

Mr. J. M. Morehead and Mr. C. C. West have the largest holdings on the south side of the block west of the underpass.

Mr. Morehead sometime ago announced his intention of erecting buildings in keeping with the improved conditions the subway will have brought about. Mr. West will also help to revolutionize East Trade between College and the Railroad. When the time comes for building he will be found in the lead for whatever makes for the benefit and good of the city, in the way of good buildings on East Trade.
