SOME PICTURE DONT'S.
 Don't hang too many pictures in a room.
 Don't hang inharmonious pictures together.
 Don't use too many gold frames.
 Don't use gold frames on black and white pictures.
 Don't hang pictures above the eye level.
 Don't let the cords or wires of pictures show.
 Don't hang a glass-covered picture where the light will cause it to glare.
 Don't surround a large important picture with little ones.
 Don't use white enamel frames—they suggest bathtubs.
 Don't frame or hang anything because it is "cute."

THE ACROBATIC TANGO.
 As further defense of the morality of dancing the tango, hum over to yourself these few bars from London Opinion: "I do not like to cross my feet when I dance. I do not like to go forward and backward at the same time. I do not like to knock my knees on the floor. I do not like to wring my neck and dislocate my shoulder and hop on my heel. I do not like to paw the parquet like a stallion or scratch it like a hen. I do not like to do stunts in mental arithmetic while I am flirting. I hate to feel like a vulgar fraction pretending to be a rhomboid or a trapezium. I hate to watch my feet lest they should plot and carry one. How anybody save an acrobat could cultivate then resence of mind necessary to tinge the tango with impropriety I fail to imagine."—Port Arthur News.

This in a measure confirms the suspicion that persons notably efficient in dancing the tango are recruited from geniuses who in youth tortured us with burning envy because they could simultaneously rub their stomachs with one hand and pat the top of their heads with the other.—Houston Post.

Wigwag—We should all love our neighbors.
 Henpeckie—Yes, but our wives might object.

DARING THIEVES ROBBED STORE

By Associated Press.
 Louisville, Ky., March 4.—Police today sought two youthful robbers who entered the jewelry store of W. P. Brandenburg here last night, drove him and his assistant, Ernest G. Sirock, into a rear work room, bound and gagged them and took cash and jewelry valued at more than $4,000 from the open safe. The store was brightly lighted and many pedestrians were passing when the robbery occurred. A customer who called was told by one of the men that the store was closed for the night.

JENKINS MEMORIAL CHURCH BURNED

By Associated Press.
 Raleigh, March 4.—With a loss of over $9,000, Jenkins Memorial church, Methodist, was burned to the ground here last night about 11 o'clock. A revival service had been held during the night and the supposition is that the fire started from a defective flue. The fire was discovered by Rev. C. A. Jones, of Bellhaven, who conducted the services.

There is quite a difference between being good and being known as a good thing.—Detroit Journal.
