FOUR GUNMEN

The Italian. The state electrician turned the switch.

The first contact was gradually reduced, then a second shock was given. The prison physician, Dr. Farr and Dr. Meremo, with several other witnessing doctors applied the stethoscope.

"I pronounce this man dead," whispered Dr. Farr. It was 5:43 o'clock. The group of witnesses left the death chamber and the body of "Dago Frank" was removed to the autopsy room.

The doctors said Cirofici had made little resistance to the electric current which registered 1,920 volts and between 9 and 10 amperes. Of the four he died the easiest. He had intended making a statement but his mental processes had failed him.

A new lot of witnesses filed in. Then through the little door came "Whitey Lewis." The statement that he never finished was on his lips as he entered. The attendants, fearing a shocking spectacle of hysteria, sought to soothe him.

A current of 1,920 volts with a slightly higher amperage than had been used on Cirofici took his life. The switch was first closed at 5:47:36 and he was pronounced dead at 5:52.

At 5:56 "Gyp the Blood" was brought in. He had a Jewish prayer book in his left hand and Rabbi Goldstein walked by his side. "Listen, Israel. There is only one God," mumbled "Gyp" in Hebrew. Two shocks were given and at 6:02 o'clock physicians pronounced him dead.

"Lefty Louie," the last of the four to die, entered the chamber at 6:07. He handed his Jewish prayer book to Rabbi Kopfstein before the guard strapped him in the chair. Like "Gyp" he mumbled a prayer in Hebrew. The theory that the strongest shall die last, "Lefty" bore out by his uncanny resistance to the current. The first contact was given at 6:08. At 6:17 he was pronounced dead.

All the bodies of the gunmen will be claimed by relatives.

Mrs. Cirofici remained with her son as late as 4 a. m. This is an unusual procedure. She had thought until the last moment that on her son's plea for mercy the governor would grant a reprieve. She believed in his innocence to the end. She pleaded with Frank to confess but he said he had told all he knew and that he had not been present when Herman Rosenthal was killed.
