Freshmen Elect New Officers

Larry Williams and Kit Ward were elected President and Vice-president of the freshman class at a meeting held last Wednesday, at which time five legislative representatives were also elected.

These positions had been vacated at the end of fall semester. Most of the officers elected last fall were forced to resign for failure to maintain a 2.0 or higher quality point average or for other personal reasons.

The election of Williams and Ward to executive positions increased the number of representative positions to be filled from three to five. Chosen to take the vacant positions by a simple majority were Allen Hickok, Thurman Willis, Becky Ballentine, Steve Kendrick, and Joe Blanton.

Approximately forty freshmen were present at the meeting, which was opened by student body president John Gaither.

Mr. Gaither addressed several remarks to the freshmen prior to the elections. He informed these yearlings that their class was in possession of "the most atrocious attrition rate I can remember," and explained to them the necessary qualifications for a member of the legislature. Following the elections, he advised the new officers and representatives of their duties, the principal ones being to represent their class in the student legislature and to serve on committees as appointed.

Mr. Gaither then explained the upcoming referendum for the constitution change and instructed the freshmen to read the copy of the constitution printed in last week's Journal. He also informed those present of the student government assembly that is to take place today in the Parquet Room. The purpose of this assembly is to formally present the new constitution to the student body and to answer any questions that might arise concerning the differences between the old and new constitutions.

Third Forum To Discuss University, World Politics

THE FORUM

THE UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA AT CHARLOTTE, MARCH 1, 1968

This forum, "The University and International Relations—The Challenge of Tomorrow," is the third in a series of annual campus events designed to explore major issues confronting higher education, the United States, and the world. Traditionally, universities have addressed themselves to the problems of international relations in the present or in retrospect. It has become increasingly evident, however, that what is needed is a systematic effort to peer over the horizon and to understand the potential problems of tomorrow. Toward this objective, the University Forum Council has invited four specialists to examine a number of provocative questions in what we trust will be a highly imaginative, pathbreaking inquiry.

Members of the Forum Council are drawn from the University faculty, administration, student body, and the local community. The Forum was made possible by support from the Foundation of the University of North Carolina at Charlotte and other friends.

The third annual University Forum, entitled "The University and International Relations—the Challenge of Tomorrow," will be held on campus on Friday, March 1.

This year's forum will feature four outstanding scholars whose addresses will explore several of the major issues confronting education at present and in the near future.

The forum is designed as a "systematic effort to peer over the horizon and to understand the potential problems of tomorrow."

According to the Forum Council, which consists of several students, faculty members, administrators, and community figures, the four international relations specialists will "examine a number of provocative questions in what we trust will be a highly imaginative, path-breaking inquiry."

Following Chancellor D. W. Colvard's official greeting at 10:00 a.m. Friday, Dr. Henry Kissinger, Professor of Government, Harvard University, will deliver an address entitled "The Study of International Relations as an Imaginative and Futuristic Enterprise."

Dr. Kissinger, a Woodrow Wilson Prize winner, Phi Beta Kappa member, and prolific writer in government, politics, and international affairs for many years, is a former Department of State consultant.

In the second session, Dr. Fred Warner Neal will speak on "The Never-Never Land of International Relations." Dr. Neal is Director of the Program in International Relations and Professor of International Relations at the Claremont Graduate School and University Center.

A Ph.D. FROM THE University of Michigan, Dr. Neal has studied and taught extensively abroad. The former correspondent for the Wall Street Journal is Special Consultant to the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions.

Following a buffet lunch in the Union cafeteria, Dr. Fred Sondermann, Professor of International Relations at Colorado College, will address the assembly on the relationship between today's intellectual and the process of foreign process.

A refugee from early World War II Germany, Dr. Sondermann is former president of the International Studies Association, of which he is a founding member. Dr. Sondermann is presently preparing a book for the Chandler World Politics Series entitled "Diplomacy." He is also editor of "International Studies Quarterly."

The final individual presentation will be made by MIT's Lucian W. Pye, Professor of Political Science and Senior Staff member of the Center for International Studies.

Holder of a Ph.D. from Yale, Dr. Pye is a specialist in Asian political behavior. He was born in China and began his education there. Although he serves as chairman of the Committee on Comparative Politics of the Social Science Research Council and is a member of the board of directors of the Council on Foreign Relations, the Asia Society and the Asia Foundation, Dr. Pye has still found time to author several books on the politics of developing countries.

Following a buffet dinner in the Union cafeteria, the final session

DR. HENRY A. KISSINGER

DR. LUCIAN W. PYE

DR. FRED WARNER NEAL

DR. FRED A. SONDERMANN

of the forum, a symposium, will feature Professors Kissinger, Pye, Neal and Sondermann in discussion of "The University and International Relations: Problems and Prospects."

The symposium will be moderated by Dr. Nish Jamgotch, assistant professor of political science here.

The forum is financed by the Foundation of the University of North Carolina at Charlotte and other friends of the University.
