

Wayfarers Draw Crowd of 350

Parquet Filled

By Wayne Eason

Last Wednesday in the Parquet Room a capacity crowd of over 300 students, some with standing room only, witnessed the fantastic performance of the superb folk group, The Wayfarers, s. Here at UNC-C for their second appearance of the year, Ray Blouin, Corky Hart, and David Hull packed then in and treated their audience with their usual fine banjo-picking and guitar-strumming-not to slight David's bass-playing.

To the surprise of those in attendance, Mr. Jim Turner of Charlotte television station WCCB, Channel 18, was introduced after The Wayfarers had performed their first number. Mr. Turner was here to present television star, Brigitte Hanley of the new ABC show, "Here Come The Brides".

Bridget Hanley Interviewed

Looking young and vivacious and very much like a student, Bridget Hanley spoke informally with students last Wednesday in the back lounge of the Union. Miss Hanley was in Charlotte on a tour promoting the television show "Here Come the Brides" in which she stars as Candy Pruitt. Although she was speaking primarily for the drama students, a crowd of about seventy-five people gathered to listen and ask questions.

Miss Hanley is a graduate of the University of Washington where she studied drama. Her goal was to perform on Broadway, but she began in Summer Stock after college and then changed to television, never getting to New York.

"Here Come the Brides" is a story much like the play "Seven Brides for Seven Brothers". It's the story of three brothers who own a logging camp where the loggers threaten to leave unless women are brought to the almost womanless camp. The brothers leave their Seattle home in search of brides for their workers. They go to Bedford, Mass. where there are over one hundred women without husbands because the men had been killed in the Civil War. There they succeed in arranging a contract with the women and set out on the journey back to Seattle on a "boat-a-mule" boat! Miss Hanley stars as Candy Pruitt, the leader of the women. The series is a combination of drama, comedy, and romance. Only twice does a gun appear in the series.

While Miss Hanley spoke she captivated the attention of the students and the crowd grew-mc- of the additional crowd was boy. Opened to questioning, Bridg t answered questions about salary, a typical day of Television shooting and the show. Asked about the presumed "fabulous" salary of a Television personality, she explained that although the average salary is about $800 a week, about 50% goes to income tax, 10% to the agent, and a star has to pay for her own publicity. She also said that a typical day consisted of about 15 working hours. She arrives on the set at about six o'clock A.M. for make-up and hair styling. Then the shooting lasts until about 7:30 P.M. After she goes home, she learns her lines alone.

"Here Come the Brides" premiered last Wednesday night and will be shown every week on channel 18 at 7:30.

After she had plugged her new show and told the audience about life in Hollywood as a television star, The Wayfarers returned to complete their new release "Skyjacker". The tone of their tunes ranged from the very comical to the very serious side of love and, when love is lost, the warm memories that linger in the hearts of those alone. The pitch of the listener's ear swayed with the songs of The Wayfarers. At times there was laughter all around, ringing through the roomother times looks of solitude and loneliness came over a few faces. One could see that The Wayfarers had gotten across their messages of joy and happiness, their feelings of love, and their unique style of singing.

Instead of taking their usual break in the middle of their concert, the fellows played from 11:30 right up to 1:00. During the concert people kept coming in and out of the Parquet Room. Those seated refused to give up their seats and s sat by greatly empathizing with The Wayfarers.

Legislature Acts On Budgets

By Sherry Drake, Junior Class Representative

On Monday, September 23, 1968, the Student Legislature met in regular session. The primary business of the meeting was to appropriate funds to the various publications and organizations on campus.

The Finance Committee, Chaired by Mr. Danny Phillips, worked for several weeks examining and re-examining request. Although all organizations turned in line item budgets, the committee followed standard Legislature procedure and only looked at total amounts indeciding when it was necessary to cut each application for funds. It was felt that the editors and other heads of organizations were better qualified to determine exactly where their budgets should be.

Although three of the five submitted budgets were reduced, none of the organizations received less than the amounts which they were given last year.

The budgets requested a total of $39,978, while the Legislature was only $35,000 given only from Student Activity Fees with which to work.

Organization	Amount Requested	Amount Approved
Publications Board	$16,310	$14,205
Carolina Journal	5,515
Rogues 'N Rascals	9,145
Barnstormer	1,600
Debate Program	1,300	700
University Union	18,350	15,736
Executive Branch SGA	3,993	3,993
French Club	25	25
Total	$39,978	$34,659

The following chart gives the amounts asked for by each organization and the amount which were allocated to them.

In addition to this year's funds, the Legislature had an unencumbered balance of $802 from last year and a savings accounts containing $2,318. These funds totaling $3,120, were not used because in the last few years several organizations have overspent, and the Legislature felt that these funds should be kept in reserve for any unforeseen emergencies that might occur between now and next May when this school term is over.

THE BARNSTORMER request was tabled in committee because of the uncertainly concerning its future at that time. The Legislature has the option of acting on it later.

The Legislature also approved 40 members for the Election Committee which is chaired this year by Mr. Jerald Burks. Mr. Burks asked that Section 3 of the division of the Bylaws pertaining to elections be altered so that Class Officers, Representatives, and Judges will be elected within three weeks after the election of President and Vice President of SGA instead of two weeks,
