

SNEA sponsors tutorial again

By Marlene Whitley

The Student National Education Association will sponsor a tutorial program for underprivileged students, again spring semester.

Volunteers from the campus will travel to either Piedmont Junior High School, Villa Heights Elementary School, or Bethlehem Center to assist teachers and workers.

Dr. Charles Reavis, advisor to the SNEA, explained that the tutorial program at UNCC began five years ago when several education students volunteered to help with students at Villa Heights Elementary School

Following a great response last year and an expression of interest from non-education students, the SNEA opened the program this year to any UNCC student who felt that he had something to share and had a couple of hours a week to devote to such an effort.

Piedmont Junior High School offers opportunities for the tutors to aid both the slower and the faster learners. The slow student would receive more attention to bring out his potential whereas the gifted student could attempt supplementary material.

Bethlehem Center and Charlotte Memorial Rehabilitation Center, also expressed a need for help and were added to Piedmont and Villa Heights for fall semester. Mrs. Jane Carrigan, project chairman, stated that the results were very good.

Explaining that many volunteer tutors devoted more than the minimum of two hours a week, Mrs. Carrigan said, "You begin as a tutor, but you end as a friend."

Dr. Reavis has received calls from several other schools requesting tutors, but so far the SNEA has limited itself to those two schools which participated last year.

"Of course if we could get participation from 5% of our student body, we could expand," he added.

Dr. Reavis further stressed that volunteers for the spring semester will be recruited February 9-13, with actual tutoring to begin at the end of that month.

"Tutoring won't save the world," he concluded, "but it can help a student develop self-confidence in himself as a person."

out-of-state students is also lower than the state-wide increase of 25.0 percent for non-North Carolinians in public senior institutions. Public institutions show the highest price increases for out-of-staters, in comparison to 13.3 percent at public community colleges, 11.9 percent at private senior institutions, and 12.6 percent at private junior colleges.

Students who live on campus must pay additional charges for room and board. UNC dormitory students pay room fees of $325 and board charges of $475.

Other branches of the University charge for room and board, respectively: $266-316 and $450-$650 at North Carolina State University; $360-$460 and $590 at UNC-Asheville; $339-607 and $600 at UNC-Chapel Hill; $340 and $400 at UNC-Greensboro. (No students live on campus at UNC-Wilmington.)

State-wide charges for rooms range from a low of $130 at Southern Pilgrim Bible College to a high of $607 at UNC-Chapel Hill. Board charges vary from $300 at North Carolina A&T State University and North Carolina Central College to $720 at Saint Augustine's College.

All figures were provided by the institutions to the State Board of Higher Education.
