

in the day of. . .

chicken on the porch of Sanford listening to music from SAGA.

Gov. Hodges and old friend, Elmer Garinger tour the campus. The former "B" building was dedicated in Garinger's name.

happenin', baby," one student gets a birds-eye view of Moore Hall.

Back in Moore Hall, the former governor greets Susie Sutton during open house.

day...

UNCC...

Oct. 9

made this day so special? There is more going on than a dance in the lobby and bluestrippedawning, and the old ladies to a luncheon. Governors and legislators touring with chauffering dignitaries, and off points of interest at a university.

Speeches recalling the achievements of benefactors of Charlotte college. Accordion music in the lobby of Moore Hall, and a chicken fry on the lawn in front of the dorms. Teachers honored for excellence in their profession. Grooving to the Villagers in the cafeteria or to Loonis McGlohon in the old union. Recognition Day....Who says good guys always finish last?

Wayne Goodnight moves with the Villagers music during the dance sponsored by the University Center and Delta Phi Zeta.