editorial

"Whereas training has been denied the existing publications, the Journal questions the propriety of establishing a radio station, without establishing a training program that would benefit not only the publications and broadcasting media, but the entire University community."

Food service committee hears gripes

by peggy caldwell

Student and faculty gourmets who have complaints about the food service at UNCC will soon be able to express their gripes and suggestions on detailed forms to be reviewed by the Campus Food Service Committee. The Committee, which held its 1970 organizational meeting on November 11, will soon install suggestion boxes in both cafeterias to serve as outlets for diners to air gripes in the current attack on SAGA.

The Committee, chaired by Dr. Larry Bostian, directed the complaints and ideas that they had received to Mr. Bill Ernest, SAGA Director of Food Services. Complying with complaints left over from last year, Mr. Ernest agreed to extend the lunch hour to 1:30 on Tuesday and Thursday and to serve a Continental Breakfast from 8:30 to 9:00 each morning.

Problems discussed at the meeting include poor menu selection, too few special meals, no meat for breakfast, stale desserts, unfair selection of steak nights, inadequate milk selection, and short meal schedules. Most of the gripes concern the residence halls' cafeteria; the Committee has received no real complaints on the food itself from the commuter students.

As may be seen in the cafeteria, apparently the dissatisfaction expressed by the Food Service Committee and by other interested individuals has effected results in many cases.

Instead of being only a complaint-review organization, the Food Service Committee wants this year to serve more as an advisor to SAGA, offering suggestions concerning the food service in order that SAGA may better satisfy the students.

The members of the Committee plan to investigate the reasons why SAGA was chosen to serve UNCC and to determine whether or not the company is fulfilling its contact.

Spring scheduling

Advising for second semester will be held December 7-11.

Any degree student who expects to be back next semester should participate in order to maintain registration priority.

Schedule Booklets are available at the registrars office in the Administration Building.

If your club or organization wishes to be represented in the 1970-71 annual, it is necessary for you to buy one page ($35.00) or two pages ($70.00). Payment must be made first before pictures are taken. Particulars of how the photograph will be taken will be decided by the Section Editor and photographer.

No pictures will be taken after February 1, 1971.

Please hurry. Time is running out.

Miss AKPsi wins Miss 49er

by mike mcculley

For three exciting evenings, thirteen UNCC coeds competed for the "nugget" of becoming the first Miss 49er. When the selection was made, Miss Sharon L. Ballard had made history.

Sharon, a nineteen year-old hazel-eyed blonde from Charlotte, was crowned by Miss Katrina Powell, Miss Kappa Alpha Psi, who aided Master of Ceremonies Larry Reid in the pageant.

Sponsoring the pageant in its inaugural year were the brothers of Kappa Alpha Psi fraternity.

Sharon, crowned on Friday, November 20, was the representative of Alpha Kappa Psi fraternity in the contest. She performed song-and-dance from "Your a Good Man, Charlie Brown," for her talent.

The festivities commenced Wednesday night, November 18, with an "original" Forty-Niner, Miss Bonnie Cone, welcoming the crowd. The contestants competed in costume, swimsuit, and evening gown competition, interlaced with the singing of Cora Pearson, accompanied by Bill Lenfesty.

Thursday night the preliminary winners were announced. Brenda Glenn won the costume competition with an original Afro outfit. Michelle Crawford was the preliminary winner in the swimsuit event, while Dianne Vaughn was the winner in evening gown competition.

Friday night capped the event with the announcement of the five finalists and concluding competition in each area. Sharon Ballard was the preliminary talent winner. Miss Wiyetta G. ("KoKo") Knight was named Miss Congeniality by her fellow coeds.

Dianne (Dee Dee) Vaughn was first runner-up in the pageant. Other runners-up were: Betsy Carroll, second; Brenda Glenn, third; and Michelle Crawford, fourth.

The singing of Cora Pearson, a talented freshman, was only one of the talent-studded highlights of the pageant. Also singing were Don Keaton, Bill McSween, and Eddie Millis. The crowd-pleasing comments on the brothers of Kappa Alpha Psi delivered by Larry Reid eased the wait for the judges' decision.

Kappa Sigs get a baby bottle?

by susie sutton

Kappa Sigma fraternity became the third fraternity to receive a national charter at UNCC. After being presented with a certificate of installation, the Kappa Sigs were presented with the Kappa Sig baby bottle.

Ed Kavanaugh of Villanova made the presentation to Thurmond Willis the local president of Kappa Sigma, after reciting a brief history of the baby bottle.

Kavanaugh said Villanova's Kappa Sigma chapter would have liked to maintain possession of the bottle that has traveled more than 28,000 miles since its first presentation in 1966. As he handed the bottle over to Willis he confessed, "I was going to steal it."

A brother of UNCC's Kappa Sigma will present the baby bottle to the next chapter of Kappa Sigma to be chartered.

Chancellor Colvard, Miss

Bonnie Cone and Dean Weston welcomed the guests of the fraternity brothers which included the national worthy grand master of Kappa Sigma, Horton Early.

Early was the keynote speaker at the dinner for two hundred. He told the Kappa Sigs that the precedents and actions of the charter members of Kappa Sigma brothers were "not only for future generations". He told the audience that if "we as individuals refuse to measure up to our responsibilities, then we have let down our forefathers."

All the guests at the banquet were entertained at a cocktail party at the Barringer Inn.
