

The Carolina Journal

Volume Six

Thursday, March 18, 1971

Number 18

New infirmary To Open

Wednesday, March 16 the new $405,000 Student Health Services Building, having been four years in planning and construction, is due to open, pending last minute inspection by the state.

The new facility will contain accommodations for a maximum of 22 students, with equipment for x-raying and developing, a lab room, full emergency facilities accessible through the rear entrance, and electronic ringing systems branching from the nurses station to strategic locations throughout the building.

Along with reception and waiting rooms, two doctors offices and four examining rooms will give the infirmary all the advantages and conveniences of a modern, efficient hospital which will be ample to serve the university community now as well as in the future because of provisions made in its design for modification and expansion at a minimum of expense.*

The present system of retaining Drs. Albergotti, Greenwood and Salley of the Eastway Medical Clinic will continue until two full-time doctors can be screened from those being interviewed now.

Dormitory students will be interested to note that plans are under consideration for the construction of a path or walkway of some sorts, to connect the dorms and the center. Also plans for a pond, to be located somewhere in the vicinity of the center, have been proposed.

Also, some of the necessary equipment for operation of the new building has been donated by the family of the late Dr. John P. Harloe. Dr. Harloe was a physician at the Providence Medical Center in Charlotte.

Credit for the administration supervision of the project is due to Mr. Donald McKay and thanks especially to Chancellor D.W. Colvard. Originally the North Carolina legislature had turned down a proposal for an appropriation of money for the infirmary. It was following this that Dr. Colvard met with the legislators in Raleigh and through his debate and dedicated work, swayed the General Assembly to reconsider the matter and, finally to O.K. the project.

While enthusiasm among those associated closely with the new center is high, the average student knows very little or cares very little about just what's going on "down there in the woods." Student reactions to questions about the center ranged from classic phrases such as: "I'm indifferent"; "Where is the new infirmary?"; "I think every high school should have one."; to "I thought that was a tennis court locker room."

But one student took at least a critical view of money spending by the university; "It beats the hell out of spending money on patios and flower beds." And one even stated that it would "make room for more living space in the dorms."

*Colvin, Hammill & Walter of Winston-Salem are contractors for the 11054 square foot structure.

A familiar sight around campus? Views like this will serve to counteract the beautiful landscaping plans that are now underway. (photo by steve wilcox)

UNCC drafts talent from Vanderbilt, Queens, Berkeley...

Six new faculty members have been appointed for next year at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte, and a part-time faculty member has been given a full-time appointment.

The appointments were approved Friday by the Executive Committee of the University of North Carolina Board of Trustees.

The new faculty members are:
-Dr. Phillip Eugene Johnson, assistant professor of mathematics. A native of Bostic, N.C., he holds the B.S. degree from Appalachian State University, and the M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from George Peabody College, and an additional M.A. degree from American University. He has been an assistant professor at Vanderbilt University and has taught at the University of Richmond and in Virginia high schools.

-Thomas Fuller Mason, assistant professor, Department of Creative Arts. During the past year, he has been an assistant professor at Queens College. He holds the B.S. degree from Stephen F. Austin State College and the M.F.A. degree from the University of Iowa. His work has been displayed in 33 exhibits, 7 one-man shows, and 12 private collections. He has won six awards.

-Gary Paul Ferraro, assistant professor, Department of Sociology. He holds the B.A. degree from Hamilton College and the M.A. from Syracuse University where he is a candidate for the Ph.D. degree.

-Earl Leslie Backman, assistant professor, Department of Political Science. He holds the B.S. and M.A. degrees from the University of Oregon, where he is a candidate for the Ph.D. degree.

-John Layton Bedford, assistant professor, Department of Geography. He holds the B.A. and M.A. degrees from Miami University and is a candidate for the Ph.D. degree at the University of Georgia.

-Perry Melvin Robinson, assistant professor, Department of English. He holds the B.A. degree from the University of California at Berkeley, where is a candidate for the Ph.D. degree.

Mrs. Sadie Hamrick Williamson was named assistant professor of Business Administration, having been a part-time member of the faculty since 1958. Before that she had been dean and instructor of Carolina Business College and at Howard Business College. She has also served as an accountant for two firms. She holds the A.B. degree from Woman's College of UNC and the M.S. from UNC at Chapel Hill. She is a Certified Public Accountant.

In other action, Nancy Claire Edwards was promoted from instructor to assistant professor in the Department of Biology upon completion of the Ph.D. degree.

View on Channel 42

Kahn's seminar broadcast

When Herman Kahn agreed to speak at the University Forum March 3, he also secured a promise of a seminar with students. Kahn, who is not renowned for his publicspeaking ability, felt that he could best show his talents by interacting with students.

Forum Council Program Chairman Nish Jamgotch arranged for several briefing sessions for interested students in order that they would be prepared when March 3 rolled around.

Kahn spoke at 2 p.m. After his speech he was taken to WTVI, Channel 42, in Charlotte. There, with seventeen eager questioners, he fielded queries for an hour. The video-taped seminar, Kahn later told Jamgotch, was an excellent capsule of his philosophies.

The seminar will be broadcast in its entirety Thursday March 25 at 7:30 p.m. and March 29 at 6 p.m. Part I will be broadcast at 8:45 a.m. March 29. Part II will be shown at 9:45, 10:45, 11:45 a.m., 12:45 and 1:45 p.m. Monday April 5.

The UNCC students who participated were Ann Osiecke, Steven Smith, Sandy Harwell, Earl McClain, Veegie Short, Joe Bravo, Steven Kemp, Jane Mabry, Bob Macey, Charlie Barnes, Mary Penny, Connie Lee, Julia Graham, Carolyn Wellman, Mike Drye, Burwell Ware, & Judy Frickie.

Kahn was so pleased with the results of the seminar, that he extended an invitation to each of the participants to be his guest at the Hudson Institute in New York, of which he is director.

UNCC hosts

business seminar

The third annual production and inventory control management seminar is scheduled for Saturday, March 20 at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte.

Speakers will include Chancellor D. W. Colvard of the University; Joseph J. Fiorilli, supervisor of the fastener section of the Automotive Assembly Division of Ford Motor Company; Oliver Wight, partner of the firm of Plossl and Wight Associates and co-author of the book, "Production and Inventory Control, Principles and Techniques;" Hugh A. Delfs, senior manufacturing industries representative of the IBM sales organization; and Ty Boyd, announcer for WBT radio and motivational speaker.

Tom Byarlay, instructor in the UNCC College of Business Administration, is seminar chairman.

Topics will include improving efficiency and the use of data processing in monitoring and controlling the manufacturing and flow of materials.

Visitation violated

The Moore Residence Hall Court was in session on February 22, 1971 in the Chancellor's Conference Room. The accused (male and female) were charged with violation of the University's visitation policy in that a female was found in the room of a Moore Hall resident at 11:00 a.m.

The accused entered a plea of guilty.

The Court found the accused guilty as charged. The Court extended the sentence of Practical Penalty which provided that the accused (male and female) would not be allowed on any of the upper floors, second floor and up, of Sanford Hall and Moore Hall respectively for a period of six (6) weeks.

A petition for an appeal was filed on February 24, 1971 with the Court on the grounds the sentence was too harsh. The Student Court met in closed session to review the case on March 8, 1971. The sentence of the Moore Residence Hall Court was upheld by the Student Court. Therefore, the sentence went into effect as of March 8, 1971.