

And perhaps, in 1976, when we meet to celebrate the Declaration of Independence, we can read those brief immortal words, that "all men are created equal," and be able to persuade black America that when it says "all," it means "all."

--Edward Kennedy, Senator,
Address to the Washington
Press Club, Washington, D.C.,
January 17, 1972.

