Le Mans

To the editor:

The following is an open letter to the students, faculty, and administration of UNCC:

The same mind that dreamed up the detours to Southpark must have created the new entrance to the main parking lot for A, B, C, D and E (or whatever aliases you wish) buildings. With the help of "our" innovation, the time it takes to get from the parking lot to the spotlight on 49 has at least doubled.

Perhaps the idea behind the new entrance was to protect pedestrians from speeding cars. Only one factor was not considered: nobody drove fast through the old entrance. And, just in case someone did, a small, inexpensive speed break would have been enough to slow him or her down. Instead, someone okayed a small scale Le Mans course.

To a university that is rational even in its peace rallies, that insane maze is a disgrace. Thank you for the space.

Giles S. Abernethy

Group for Educational Ecology at UNCC

If you are still alive, please let Richard Butterfield in the Student Government office know.

Ratification soon

by Janet Cline

The Chancellor early in 1971 convened a meeting of the faculty to form a committee to draft a new constitution. This constitution was to be in accordance with the University's constitution. The Committee was established on April 7, 1971 and fully established and convened October 20, 1971.

On September 21, the constitution committee met to advise the Chancellor to convene a meeting on October 18, 1972 in order to ratify the new constitution. Each college before October 18 is expected to have held separate meetings in order to discuss the constitution.

It is hoped that with successful ratification by vote, nominations could be entertained for two officers of the faculty, the President and Secretary. This would eliminate any limbo in faculty business. As stated in the new constitution, this would enable the president of the faculty to call meetings for business pertaining to the faculty.

Judge not

To the editor and whoever is interested:

Jesus Christ, man! Communication on this campus is bad enough with out you screwing up the god damn news. I realize that this is a small thing, but, damn, did you screw up the news from the Judicial Committee. The new members elected were C.F. (Buddy) Warren III and Annie Howell not Andy Howe! The Chess Club did not receive their charter; they are still being investigated and worked with. Also I have not, am not, and never hope to interview people for judgeships in the dorms. Judges from now on will be elected from the dorm constituenc, with no interference from the S.B.G.

If memory serves that is all the news that needed to be corrected. I just hope to heaven that I won't have to correct every release that you people put into the paper.

Richard Butterfield
Chairman Judicial Committee

P.S. Although the news was completely screwed, I think it's great that the paper publishes any of our news at all! Keep on screwing up, and let the people know what you think is happening!

Speaking Here

"Now, when you were quite young, you were in sound body and mind and intellect, you should have tried to see God... to solve this mystery of life. But instead of dling that, you have only been engaging yourself in all matters which are not so important as knowing your self.

"Theoretically, no doubt, we have done so much, we have learned so many philosophies about all these subjects, but practically we do not know who we are. Can we separate our self? Can we know the indweller of the house? Can we leave the body at will? Is our inner eye open to see the Light of God? These are the practical subjects.

"Know thy self! If you know your self practically, you can separate your self... who you are, what you are... only then will you be in a position to know, to see, to come into contact with that great Reality Which you call 'God', not before."
