

Maxwell NIT MVP

By Ron Green
Cedric Maxwell, Most Valuable Player in the recent National Invitational Tournament, has been named to the Independent All-American team. The squad is made up of the outstanding performers on independent basketball teams.

Joining Maxwell on the ten man team are Adrian Dantley of Notre Dame, Earl Tatum of Marquette, Robert Parish of Centenary, Eddie Owens of Nevada-Las Vegas, Alex English of South Carolina, Lloyd Walton of Marquette, Phil Sellers of Rutgers, Bo Ellis of Marquette and Freeman Williams of Portland State.

Maxwell finished in the voting behind Dantley, Tatum and Parish but ahead of Associated Press All-American Sellers. The voting was done by members of the media nominated by Sports Information Directors from each Division I independent school. Each voter was allowed to vote for five players off a list of All-American candidates.

The junior from Kinston, North Carolina was the key factor in UNCC's runnerup finish to MVP Cedric Maxwell shooting over Oregon player.

Kentucky in the NIT. He scored 109 points in four games and set a tournament record for most foul shots made. "Cornbread" became the darling of the New York fans with his outstanding play and his ritual before each free throw.
