

Food Day April 8

Food Day, April 8, a national emphasis sponsored by the Center for Science in the Public Interest, is being coordinated on the UNCC campus by a coalition of faculty, students and Charlotteans through the International Studies Committee and United Religious Ministry. A spectrum of issues and ideas will be presented. Among them, the following:

10:00 am - 2:00 pm: Film showings each hour in the Cone University Center, Northeast Lounge. Eat Drink and Be Wary. The film is an examination of American nutritional habits and hazards-junk food, food additives, nutritionally poor processed foods and food advertising. Beyond the Next Harvest is a documentary on recent developments leading to the current food shortage crisis. It argues for global independence and commitments that transcend regional privatism.

11:00 am - 2:00 pm: Tasty treats, both nutritional and natural. Samples of natural foods will be provided by members of La Leche League and UNCC Distaff-free. The tickets are available at three locations: the plaza at the Cone University Center; the patio between Sanford and Moore, and beneath the overpass between Barnard and Denny.

11:00 am - 1:30 pm: Buffet line special of the day in the Commuter Cafeteria will be a vegetarian menu with nutritional excellence-entree, salad, rice, dessert. One of the other entree options will be a meat dish also with high quality protein and nutritional balance. Recipes and nutritional information also available.

April 5-9: Competition will be held all week by the dorms to eliminate waste of foods. Prize for winning dorm. The Clean Plate contest is sponsored by Professional Food Management (PFM).

12:30 pm - 1:15 pm: A simulation game on world hunger and population will be held at the plaza of the Cone University Center. Participants will simulate the disparity of food, capital, land and food resources distribution by continents. The project is sponsored by International Studies with the aid of several student religious, social and service organizations. Information on curricular offerings at UNCC which deal with Food and Population issues will be available at this location as well as at other events during the day.

Also participating in the activities will be the North Carolina Hunger coalition which will be available to discuss pending Food Stamp legislation. Copies of a congressional resolution declaring as national policy the right to food will also be available.

Students protest Mosley firing BCA 'political hassles' blamed

By Michael Evans

The recent firing of Michael Mosley, a guitar instructor in the Creative Arts Department, (BCA), has brought about protest from some students within the department.

Robert Dulin and Elizabeth Dees, both senior music students, agree Mosley's dismissal has come about as a result of political hassles within the department. (The political issues were discussed in an earlier issue of the Carolina Journal). Both students say Mosley is one of the best and most popular professors in the music area of the BCA.

Dulin said he understood the firing of Mosley had taken place "because he has a bad attitude and it's bad for the BCA program," while he contends "Mosley has not done anything to damage the program. In fact, he has worked as hard as he can, doing everything he can, to build it up." Dulin said the firing was typical of the way the department is run.

Dulin then gave a background of the music area to get the students' point across. "There are two factions - the Rowe Quartet and the non-Rowe Quartet. Much of the office time of the Rowe Quartet members is taken up with doing concerts and tours. Many of their seminars and student lessons are cancelled," Dulin said.

"Mosley is constantly seeing more students than probably any other faculty member. His day is longer than any other faculty member in the department and he will even see students during his lunch hour," according to Dulin. Ms. Dees added that of the viable seminars last semester, Mosley's were "most beneficial."

Of 38 music majors in the department, 14 are guitar majors. Dulin said there are now "two string students." Mosley had 14 guitar students while three faculty members who are string instructors have only two students.

"In the last three years, (Luca) DiCecco and the Rowe Quartet have given concerts for the school, emphasizing they were for the school," Ms Dees continued. "The purpose of the Rowe Quartet was to attract excellent students. In the last three years, the number of string students has decreased, yet they receive all the recognition and all the promotions."

Dulin and Ms. Dees have circulated a petition among the music area of the BCA and "out of 25 people, all but two signed it. Most were more than glad to sign it."

"His (Mosley's) 'greatest concern is for the students. He is the most conscientious, most respected and one of the most popular of the music faculty teachers. This is absolutely a political thing on the chairman's part," said Dulin.

"Mosley has offered more and done more for the students," according to Ms. Dees adding, "A person's performance in relation to students should be the most important thing."

Honors and Awards presented April 19

By Steve Bass

UNCC's annual Honors and Awards presentation will be held April 19th. Betty Chafin, of the Dean of Students Office, is currently accepting nominations for the various awards to be presented. Ms. Chafin's office said that any student or faculty member desiring to nominate should submit a letter of recommendation outlining qualifications no later than April 7th. The nomination should be submitted to Ms. Chafin's office.

Ms. Chafin's office stressed that students do not need to know a great deal about the student nominated, as they will not be required to answer questions regarding the students. A faculty committee will interview the nominees.

The four major awards nominations are the Charlotte Panhellenic award, the Dill Mitchell Award, the Virginia Dare Chapter - American Colonists Award and the Society of 49. The Charlotte Panhellenic award is given annually to an exemplary freshman woman student who is "poised and gracious in conduct, able and cooperative in service, and superior and enthusiastic in scholarship."

The Bill Mitchell Award is given annually to two members of the graduation class who have shown outstanding qualities of scholarship and leadership. The student must also have maintained an attitude of unselfish interest in the welfare of their fellow students and the university as a whole.

The Virginia Dare Chapter of the National Society of Daughters of the American Colonists Award is made annually to a freshman for overall academic performance and citizenship.

The Society of 49 recognizes outstanding leadership and achievement among junior and senior students who have made significant contributions to the development of the university community. A student must have completed 24 hours at UNCC in order to be eligible. Between 24 and 30 students will be selected.

Ms. Chafin's office said that the Honors and Awards program, to be held April 19th, is the only university wide Honors and Awards program held. The individual colleges present their own awards.

CAMPUS SAFETY

by Rebecca Whitener
Safety Coordinator

National Defensive Driving Week is being observed from April 4 thru 10. The need for this type of National Campaign for highway safe driving is obvious when you look at the statistics: 46,200 persons died in 1974 from motor vehicle accidents, 1,800,000 suffered disabling injuries; and in the next 12 months, at least one out of five drivers will be involved in an accident.

DDC is a standardized eight-hour driver improvement program which stresses proven techniques for avoiding potentially dangerous driving situations. It is important training because most drivers today are self-made drivers who learned to drive from the teachings of a friend, father, sister, brother or other non-professionals. Therefore, what they know about safe driving is the result of common sense and intelligence, experience or what they have read.

DDC expands this knowledge to include the "anatomy" of accident prevention, the concept of preventability and the need for personal responsibility for the prevention of accidents.

It has been long proven that DDC graduates are involved in fewer traffic accidents and violations than non-graduates. In fact, it has been so highly recognized that several states have begun requiring the training for all state employees who drive state vehicles and at least 17 auto-casualty insurance companies grant insurance premium discounts to DDC graduates.

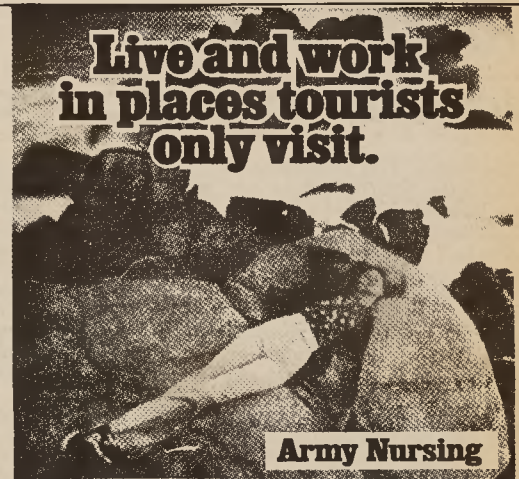

Think about the odds of your being that one driver in five who will be involved in an accident in 1976, and then do what you can to lessen the odds. Take the DDC. For further information, call extension 2449.

Please note: Due to a change in the instructor's schedule, the DDC originally planned for Monday thru Thursday, April 5-8, from 9:00 am - 11:00 am, has been changed to Wednesday, April 7 and Thursday, April 8, from 9:00 am - 1:00 pm. The Wednesday course will be held in Atkins 317 and the Thursday will be held in Reese Administration, Room 217. If you have not yet enrolled, you still have time to do so. Call 2449
