PEA-VINE HAY. Bill Arp, in a letter to the Country Gentleman says: Peas are better than clover or grass, or anything better for the land and better as a profitable crop.

I have seen old farmers pull peavines up by the roots and hang them on the fence to cure. The common idea is that pea-vine hay is hard to harvest and hard to cure. This is a great mistake.

An American Planter For Russia. Charleston, S. C., Jan. 21.—So famous have the South Carolina cotton planters become all over the world that they are now in demand in foreign countries.

For the Ladies. We may live without poetry, music and art. We may live without conscience, we may live without love.

VELVET PUDDING. Five eggs beaten separately, one tea cup of white sugar, five tablespoonful of corn starch, dissolved in a little cold milk and added to the yolks and sugar.

LEMON MERINGUE PUDDING. One quart of milk, two cups of grated bread-crumbs, the yolks of four eggs, half a cupful of butter, one cupful of sugar, the juice and grated rind of one large lemon.

SAGO PUDDING. Soak four tablespoonful of sago two hours in warm water, then boil it in one quart of milk until it is soft and well done.

cupful of white sugar, and a little nutmeg. A cup of currants may be added. Pour the milk and sago into a buttered dish and bake.

Wit and Humor.

A Tennessee Husband.

The wife of old Jеспerson Balch, of Coffee county, Tennessee, was arrested on a charge of having stolen a lot of silverware, writes Opie Read in the Arkansas Traveler.

"Judge, I wish you would sorter button up the mouth of these here proceedings till I make a few remarks." "If you have anything to say, say it Mr. Balch," the sympathetic judge asserted.

"Well, I have got suthin' to say," Balch replied, "an' I hope that attention will be paid to it. I ain't got no objections to this presentin' attorney doin' his duty, but when he gets up here an' p'intly says that my wife stole silver spoons, w'y, I think he's gone a little too far in the matter."

"Liar!" said Balch. "Did take, steal and carry—?" "Liar!" Balch repeated. "Your Honor," said the attorney, "I cannot proceed with this case if you grant this man so discourteous a privilege."

"Mr. Balch," the judge remarked, "you must not use such language in this house. I deeply sympathize with you, knowing that you are greatly distressed, but I cannot permit you to interfere with the course of the trial."

"But, judge, just think er 'emmit. Suppose you was in my fix, how would you like—?" "We cannot entertain suppositions, Mr. Balch," the judge returned.

"Well, den I'll fling out suthin' that you ken entertain. My wife ain't guilty. I know she ain't, 'cause why? I'll tell you why, I stole them spoons myself."

"Your Honor," exclaimed the prosecuting attorney, "I admire this man's fidelity, but he has not stated the truth, for I have actual proof that he was not in this community when the theft was committed."

THE ALLIANCE COLUMN. On a Cash Basis.

[The following is an editorial from the News and Courier, and tho' it is written with reference to one particular alliance, it is so full of good, practical sense that it applies to farmers in general. Eds.]

Whatever may be the purposes and plans of the Farmers' Alliance in general, and whatever shall be the ultimate fate of the new Order, it is evident that the particular branch of the organization at Wilkesville, in Union County, has discovered one of the first principles of success in farming, and that its members at last have their feet set in the furrow that leads to independence and prosperity.

The allied farmers at Wilkesville, it was stated yesterday in the Spartanburg correspondence of The News and Courier, are "going on the cash basis." They have already raised the money amongst themselves to purchase their main supplies.

However, the members of the Wilkesville Alliance have a great deal to learn yet. In the same letter that tells of their wisdom in adopting the plan of cash-purchases, we are told that "they have ordered a car-load of corn, and will buy their flour and bacon" on the same liberal scale.

But why should the Wilkesville Alliance, or any Farmers' Alliance in South Carolina, have to buy corn and flour and bacon by the car-load at this season of the year? There has been a serious error of management some where, when any farmer is compelled to buy for cash or otherwise, what he should produce on his own farm.

The Wilkesville farmers would have a poor opinion of their wives' management, if their wives should have always to sell butter when they needed eggs, or to sell a hen when they needed vegetables for the family dinner; and their wives might very well ask of them now, why they have to sell cotton every year when they need corn and bacon for the purposes of the farm!

The judge—"How old are you, man?" Witness—"I have no personal knowledge of my age, and hearsay testimony, I understand, is not accepted in this court."

D. D. JOHNSON, DRUGGIST, CONCORD, N. C.

BE OF GOOD CHEER.

To the honest inquirer after truth, who, troubled with some contagious blood disease, seeks a remedy which will completely eradicate from his system every germ of blood poison, that the ones he loves—his wife and his children—may be saved, the experience of others comes as a mighty revelation.

Twelve years ago I contracted a terrible case of blood poisoning. My appetite, did not sleep well at night, my digestion was impaired, my throat was full of ulcers, and in fact I was a total wreck.

Three years ago I was laid up with rheumatism. My knees were drawn up in such a position that I could not leave my bed for months.

During the month of February I bought one bottle of B. B. B. for my four-year-old boy, who had what doctors term hereditary blood poison, and to my utter astonishment one bottle cured him.

I was "cured" with a copper-colored eruption all over my body, which was the loss of appetite, excruciating pains in my back, aching of my joints, general debility, emaciation, falling off of my hair, sore throat, and a general feeling of weakness.

I had 24 running ulcers of one leg, and 5 on the other, and felt greatly prostrated. I believe I actually swallowed a barrel of medicine in vain efforts to cure the disease.

Now comes the great secret which I want all the world to know: That three bottles of B. B. B. medicine has done my work which would sound incredible to any one who did not know it to be so.

This is to certify that three years ago I got my left leg amputated four inches below the knee by the removal of a cancerous tumor. After it was amputated there came a running ulcer on the end of it that measured 7 1/2 inches one way and 4 1/2 inches the other, and continued growing worse every day until a short time ago.

Now comes the great secret which I want all the world to know: That three bottles of B. B. B. medicine has done my work which would sound incredible to any one who did not know it to be so.

I have moved into the stable lately occupied by Brown Bros., near the courthouse. The best accommodations for drovers. Leave your orders at 214 State Street with Mr. I. I. Brown for omnibus, horses and mules for sale.
