

"THERE'S A CHIEF AMANG YE TARIN NOTES AND FAITH HELL PRENT THEM."

Attention Company A. 52d N. C. Regiment.

You will meet at the Fair Grounds on Tuesday the 3rd of September 1889. The annual meeting of the Confederate Veterans Association.

A False Alarm. Mr. W. E. Loesser had quite a scare Tuesday night. In some unaccountable way, the electric lights that are to burn all night in his store, went out about one o'clock and the night watchman, suspecting the presence of burglars, tried to get in to see about it.

It Cost to be Sweet. The fearful trust has cornered sugar at last. Only two years ago one dollar would buy fourteen pounds of sugar, and strong weight, but now one dollar can get but ten pounds.

Molasses will play a big part in the sweetening business this year.

Got You Spotted.

This is a progressive age. Everybody is looking out for frauds and taking measures to protect one's interests and affairs from abuse.

The railroad company, at its office in Salisbury, in selling season tickets to Asheville, requires the age, the size, the weight, color of hair and beard, or in the absence of beard, the applicant is to judge what color his beard will most probably take on.

The Boys Reading Club.

The boys of Concord, or rather, those who are just on the border line between boyhood and young-manhood, organized sometime ago a Boy's Reading Club, and have rented and fitted up nicely a room over Fetzer's Drug Store.

Weight the Cotton Up Town.

There is being discussed upon our streets a plan that seems worthy of consideration by those of our business men who are interested in buying cotton. It is this: That a cotton platform be erected in the business part of town, instead of at the depot, as at present, and that the cotton be delivered and weighed there.

It would certainly be more convenient for the merchants for they frequently have to ride to the depot to see about their cotton, whereas, with the platform near, they could attend to business of that kind in a few minutes.

SHORT LOCALS.

—Fruit is coming in right briskly. —It is about time for butter flavored with garlic. —Everybody is "complaining" of a fine wheat crop.

—Be sure and read the article on bee culture on first page. —Good rains are reported from every section of the county.

—How do you like the "new bonnet," is this week's question. —Work on the new ware-house behind Dayvill's began this week.

—Mighty poor manners can be learned from books—it takes a little practice. —The colored people are looking forward to a grand time on the 4th of July.

—Don't forget that a bridge contract is to be let out on the 25th at Bradford's Mill. —A new jeweler, or perhaps he would think him a jewel, at Mr. Coram Correll's. Our congratulations, sir.

—Our farmers are so busy that the street railway company was forced to buy cross ties of the R. & D. R. R. —Read "An Enigma," written by a talented young lady, who has endeared herself to a host of warm friends in Concord.

—On the 14th, Hugh Fetzer, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Pharr, of Pioneer Mills, died at the age of eighteen months.

—The colored Base Ball club here must be feeling themselves They challenge the State for a game on the 4th of July. See their ad.

—The Lone Jack base ball club challenges any colored base ball club in N. C. for a game in Concord July 4th 1889: J. L. Cannon, secretary.

—After the recent election was decided for the "wets" in Monroe, some mischievous wag, hung crapes upon the doorknobs of the drug stores there.

—Mr. Will Alexander, of Rocky River is one of the graduates at Davidson College this year. He spent his senior vacation at home last week.

—Those who attended the union services at the Methodist church last Sunday night, were delighted with the excellent singing of Miss Lula Hester, of Granville county.

—A STANDARD reporter is due Mr. C. W. Swink a score of thanks for a pleasant ride given him with "Babe" and yellow cart. We were mortified, not that we were taken for an oculist, but that we could not fill the orders for "specks."

—Mr. Gattis, agent for the Charlotte Oil and Fertilizer Company, was here this week and made arrangements with Mr. R. A. Brown to act as local agent to buy seed for the company. They will build near the depot a house for the seed. Mr. Oglesby is the agent at Harrisburg.

—Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Lentz, Miss Etie Gibson, and Mr. J. P. Cook left Wednesday morning for a few days at the Teachers' Assembly at Morehead City. May they enjoy to the fullest the balmy sea breezes, and we wish for one of them at least a World of pleasure.

—We were shown a few days since some radishes of the Chertway variety that were monsters in that line. One was twenty inches long, another twenty-four inches in circumference. They were grown by Mr. Ed Johnson, of Poplar Tent, and he says that this variety is good to eat until quite large.

—Visitors to Charlotte and vicinity speak in high terms of the fine macadamized and graded roads leading out of Charlotte. One road is fixed this way for five miles. Mecklenburg leads the State now for fine roads, and we hope to chronicle soon that Cabarrus has adopted the same excellent system.

—The Catalogue of the University of North Carolina for the year past, shows that the institution is well equipped for work. It enters upon a second century of life with every promise of enlarged usefulness, and prosperity. The next session begins September 5th 1889. For Catalogues address Hon. Kemp P. Battle, President, Chapel Hill, N. C.

—A very pretty and curious bird of the owl kind was killed one night last week by Mr. Lee Martin, and given to Dr. Arcey. It is of a light russet color with a great deal of white mixed with it. It measures forty-four inches from tip to tip. The negroes called it a death angel, and as the noise made by it was peculiar, there was considerable uneasiness about it. Doctor A. is having it stuffed.

—The Johnstown disaster was far-reaching in its effects. By the Cambria Iron Works failing to fill their contract for rails, the street railway company of this place lost seventy-five dollars. The iron will now be furnished by the Pennsylvania Steel Company. Had it not been for their disappointment in getting the rails at the proper time, the company intended having cars running by the 4th of July. As it is they will probably begin laying track next week.

—Read W. J. Swinks new ad. —Have you made your returns? —Many a new building is going up.

Laying brick on the Bag factory has commenced. —Peaches raised in this county are now plentiful on our streets.

—W. E. Loesser tells you about the wonders of a watch, in his ad. —Water was drawn off from the big tank at the St. James Wednesday, to fix the leaks.

—Mr. R. A. Brown has sold out his large brick-making establishment, machines and all, to Mr. Chapman. Mr. B. was to supply the new factory with 600,000 brick, and Mr. C. is to fill the contract.

—It is of our drug stores here that no one can get whiskey there unless he has a copperhead hanging to him.

—Mr. Burkhead is now agent for accident policies—good things for people that are going to be hurt. See his ad.

—Dr. Fitzgerald has moved into his nice office, and in a card in this issue offers his professional services to the citizens of Concord and vicinity.

—We are sorry to learn of the illness of Mrs. Giffard of Poplar Tent; and hope to hear of her early recovery.

—Messrs. W. J. Swink and N. F. York visited Norwood Stanley county this week on business.

—Mr. Albert Gillon and Dr. L. White are attending the Davidson College commencement this week.

—Mr. George W. Means returned Wednesday from a tour to the mountains on revenue business.

—Prof. O. W. Carr, of Trinity College, of Alamance fame, was here visiting Mr. Odell, Tuesday.

—Mr. T. H. Cannon, of Spartanburg, spent several days in town with his brothers. He was struck with Concord's progress.

—Miss Jennie Gibson is expected home from her visit to Rockingham to-day, and will bring with her her friend Miss Myrtle McCauley.

MARRIAGE OF REV. J. D. NEWTON.

Married Wednesday, June 19th, at the residence of the bride's father, Dr. J. H. Mills, near Thomasville, N. C., Miss Martha Mills to Rev. J. D. Newton, pastor of the Baptist church at Concord. Rev. A. G. McManaway, of Charlotte, performing the ceremony.

The occasion was an interesting one, and the auspicious event was witnessed by quite a number of relatives and friends, among whom were conspicuous the inmates and teachers of the Baptist Orphan Asylum, which is under the management of Dr. Mills. Tho' it was the original purpose to have the ceremony performed in the church near the bride's home, it was concluded later to have it at the house, and in order that all present might witness the ceremony better, it was performed on the porch. No more fitting place could have been found, as the decorations were Nature's own handwork, the fragrant jasmynes and white rose vines hanging in graceful festoons, and leding the summer air with their delightful fragrance. Where Nature failed, the omission was supplied by woman's fair hand, and in the centre of the porch was hung a beautiful floral wedding bell.

Just at nine o'clock in the morning the attendants, Mr. James Dodson and Miss Mittie Elliott, Mr. James Elliott and Miss Kate Stallings, Mr. Everett Cates and Miss Cora Page, Dr. L. M. Archey and Miss Humphries, Mr. F. L. Smith and Miss Mary Adderton, Mr. B. E. Harris and Miss Stella Adderton, came out and took their places on either side of the porch; then came the groom and bride, and standing in the centre of the porch, facing the audience, were pronounced man and wife in a short and impressive ceremony by Mr. McManaway, standing on the ground. At the conclusion, the happy couple received the congratulations and farewells of their friends and left at once for Thomasville; there they took the train for Concord their future home, where they were given a pleasant reception at the residence of Mrs. Henderson. There were many handsome and elegant presents, fitting testimonials of the high esteem in which both groom and bride are held by their many friends.

THE STANDARD joins the good people of Concord in welcoming to our midst the talented lady whom Mr. Newton has chosen for his helpmeet, and wishes for them both a happy and useful life with Heaven's choicest blessings. And as one of the party so happily expressed it, we hope they will always live in concord.

HALL OF STOKES LODGE, No. 32, A. F. and A. M.

BROTHERS: You are hereby notified that a regular communication of Stokes Lodge, No. 32, will be held in Masonic Hall Monday evening, June 24th, at 8 o'clock. Installation of Officers. Take due notice thereof and govern yourselves accordingly. By order of W. M. M. C. WALTER, Sec'y.

—Mr. Luther Bost was summoned to Montgomery county last Wednesday by the serious illness of his little baby. His wife and child had gone down on a visit the preceding day.

An Introduction. A jolly good fat fellow, who is a travelling man, spent several hours in town Saturday. He sells snuff. On his card is the following: Was born at an early age, in the year 1847. Am of American parentage. Weight 330 pounds. Have been fat all my life. Eat regular. Sleep well. My weight does not bother me. Am not desirous of losing any sleep. I use Ralph's Snuff. Have to carry a chestnut bell as a protection against old and threaddare gags.

AN ENIGMA. BY A YOUNG LADY. Our first is a bachelor—fine as ever you saw— Who succeeds so well in pleading at Law.

No. 2 is a dashing and handsome sweet lad, About whom all our girls have gone mad; But he heeds them not and chooses the best From their number—truly a "Queen of the West."

There is a boy with eyes so brown—what a pity That a! he loves a girl in—city. To what would a mention of this youth amount? Verily a "mortgaged man" is our "count!"

Wheel in his chum—ask him if 'tis so With a hearty laugh he of course answers "No."

What saddened our "Professor" with classical nose He pleases "Tell-not we are left to suppose. But I heard that a charming sweet little girl, With dancing blue eyes sad long golden curl, The girl with whom, alone, he was smitten Had given ah given him the mitten!"

Our banker who figures so well in a drill Is a romantic youth—fond of mountain and Hill.

A certain book-keeper is so very conceited I fear he would think my description him cheated; Let's leave him and sing of a Robin so fair Whose big bass violin makes discord in the air.

There's another musician of whom you shall read, He holds his head on one side—what is the need? That boy with the glasses and clerical looks Writes beautiful poetry and wonderful books!

A soldier he'd be if it were not for his law Had he rather face a Cannon in peace or in war?

Another has been a Good-son all his life But he leaves mother soon to get him a wife!

At the factory we find a young man—I am told Who thinks his mustache will make him look old

From a Far comes a man who fills you with dread When you see the majestic poise of his head! A goose watches with envy his rival go by Riding by the side of his lady so shy Fain would he kneel at her shrine— Gow-an' try— But I think my dear sir you'll get the "go!"

"To teach the young ideas how to shoot," To beat into boys the cube and square root, Is the only occupation—so the girls say— Of our handsome Professor of the C. M. A.

One there is who has long lived in seclusion But his new suit of clothes will dispel that delusion.

A Frank genial creature, who sells pretty toys, Is a general favorite with the girls and the boys.

If you pass a nice office on our prettiest street You'll receive an Arch look from its inmate so neat.

The twenty-first sprung from a long line of kings, His name—time of day, when the breakfast bell rings.

A descendant of Cromwell lately came in our midst And with him we will close this wonderful list.

The whole is a synopsis of the beaux of a town On which as yet Discord never came down.

Who are they? where living now? —guess, if you can, Which the girls think is the handsomest man.

IN MEMORIAM. Mrs. J. M. Odell, whose maiden name was Miss Rebecca C. Kirkman, was born in Randolph county, N. C., on the 18th of December 1835, and after making her earthly pilgrimage which embraced a little more than a half century, at her home in Concord, in the midst of her family and sympathizing friends, she gently fell asleep at early dawn, on the 13th of June 1889—wanting five days of completing half of her fifty-fourth year. She spent the years of girlhood and young womanhood in her native county where, on the 9th of March 1854, she was married to J. M. Odell, with whom she cheerfully shared life's burdens and sorrows and joys for thirty-five years.

In the bloom of youth, when only fourteen years of age, she yielded to the Divine call of the Holy Spirit, gave her young heart's affections to the Saviour, and her hand and her influence to the church of God.

The first opportunity given to the people of Concord of forming the acquaintance of our highly esteemed sister, was during the year 1870 when her husband established himself in business here—and here they have resided since that time with the exception of a brief interval of a few years spent in the town of Greensboro.

Soon after making her home here she identified herself with the membership of Concord Station, Methodist Episcopal Church South, and through all these years she has ever been a very consistent and valuable member—"always abounding in good works," freely giving wise counsel, active influence, and liberal means to help forward every movement which looked to the promotion of the honor of God, and the extension of the blessings of his kingdom.

Her valuable service during her connection with this church cannot be fully estimated by any methods of computation known to mortals—"the day of Eternity alone will reveal it."

When the Forest Hill Station was organized by the authority of our last Conference, she with her husband and children transferred her membership to that church. Here she felt the same lively interest in everything pertaining to the welfare and prosperity of the young Society—always being present at public service as a devout worshiper, when her rapidly failing health and the state of the weather would permit, visiting the sick, comforting the distressed, and relieving the wants of the destitute. Oh how keenly will these feel their great loss, in whose homes her presence was esteemed a genuine benediction!

The handsome and commodious house of worship in process of building and now nearing completion lay close to her heart. She earnestly wished to see it finished and to have accorded to herself the privilege of furnishing the pulpit with whatever a correct taste would suggest as needful to make it a suitable place from which the ambassadors of Christ might proclaim to dying men the saving truths of the Gospel.

By the orderings of a wise and loving Heavenly Father her wish was not gratified. No doubt proper means will be adopted by surviving friends to have her name inseparably blended with the Sanctuary she loved so well.

The testimony of those who for many years have been intimately associated with our departed sister in church fellowship and as friends in the social circle and in the daily walks of life, is clear and strong to the effect that she was a oon woman in the broadest and best sense of the word. She was decided in her convictions and firm in her purposes, yet possessed of a disposition gentle and amiable to a high degree. Her love to her own church—the church of her choice—was strong and unwavering, her loyalty to its institutions was intense—yet her christianity was as broad and liberal type, reaching out and welcoming to her heart and to her confidence all Christians of whatever name. As she honored her Savior during her life, He was with her in the closing struggle—He did not forsake her when the supreme trial came. As she stepped down into the dark valley and shadow of death she feared no evil for God was with her. Her dying testimony, voluntarily given to pious friends who ministered to her in her closing hours, is truly comforting and refreshing to loved ones who remain on this side of the river.

When her mind was entirely clear and under no excitement she gave witness positive and emphatic to the sufficiency of Divine grace for every emergency and every trial. That grace enabled her to surrender with cheerfulness, herself, her husband, and her children into the hands of her Heavenly Father—having assurance that He was able to keep in safety all that she had committed to Him. She passed away in the full triumph of faith. The sorrow and the weeping are here, but up there are shouts of victory, and anthems of joy and praise.

"Weeping may endure for a night but joy cometh in the morning." "She being dead yet speaketh." The influence of her pious example and consistent life is as precious ointment poured forth. She lives—and will live—in the memory, in the hearts and in the lives of those who loved her and who are now sad at the parting. So many dear ones have gone on before it seems to draw the unseen world very close to us. Let us follow their footsteps as they followed Christ, and soon we will all be safely gathered with them into

"That land upon whose blissful shore, There rests no shadow, falls no stain, Where those who meet shall part no more, And those long parted meet again."

JESSE H. PAOR. Concord, N. C., June 14, '89.

The following was adopted by the Concord and Forest Hill Missionary Society Sunday, June 16th 1889:

Mrs. Carrie Kirkman Odell. The Lord's way in dealing with his people is often mysterious to us. "What I do thou knowest not now, but thou shalt know hereafter." In the midst of a useful life the free hand of disease is laid upon her, and from the bosom of an affectionate family she is taken to enter upon the realities of eternity. But God knows best, and we trust it is well with our sister.

The subject of this memoir was at honored member of the Concord and Forest Hill Missionary Society, of the M. E. Church South, from its organization, and as long as her strength permitted, was an active participant in every movement, looking to the progress of its work.

It is with reverence, and with submission to the will of our infinitely wise and gracious Heavenly Father, and with tender Christian sympathy, toward the bereaved household of our highly esteemed and much beloved sister, and with a profound sense of our own irreparable loss, that we can not regard her death only too early for our good, but too early for her great gain, and for the glory of our common Master.

It is our request that a copy of this paper be furnished our town papers for publication.

A copy spread upon a page of our minutes, dedicated to her memory, and a copy furnished this family of our deceased sister.

"Thy life work being done, rest, beloved sister, till the resurrection morn."
