Good must stand well with the study people. Some one from Salisbury told us recently that a child in one of his sections was going to heaven. A few years ago when they had to come here for the first time they called it Egypt.

A big brown bear, led by a black dog, was seen near the factory and attracted more attention than the proverbial hand organ and monkey or the brass band. The streets were deserted by customers and folks alike. It was about the first ever seen here and could dance and climb trees in fine style.

Rev. J. G. Schaid, formerly President of North Carolina College, and in present a member of the faculty of Concordia College at Concord, N. C., was on last Sunday the pastor of the church at Newbern. The fall session of the college which he is connected, closed last week with one hundred and two students.

As some one on horseback was riding with another on the pavement, front of York & Wadsworth's store, a mischievous boy tied the horse's tail to the hitching chain. When the man started off, both he and the horse were astonished at the sudden halt that was made. It was quite a pull up the stump, but the horse's tail is longer.

We have received lately copies of Branson's almanac for 1890, also Turner's. They are well known to our readers and with some are old standbys.

York & Wadsworth have just put in their large handsome establishment a big fire and burglar proof safe. There are not many people in this county now who have to increase their safe capacity.

Some one, who must have been pretty fresh, when he saw a "possum," was very indignant and said the "coon" who had him—should be punished for cruelty to animals, for he had "scraped all the hair off his tail."

Mr. Chas. F. King, of Charlotte, was here Friday and Tuesday. His purpose was to "write up" the town for the Greenville News, of South Carolina, and to establish an agency for that paper here. But our people seemed to think our local papers could write them up sufficiently and that a boom in a paper of another State would not avail much.

Those who anticipated the pleasure of hearing Bishop Hargrove, of Tennessee, last Sunday were very much disappointed. He was prevented from coming as he intended. This distinguished gentleman is president of the trustees of Vanderbilt University at Nashville, Tenn., and unlike most positions of the kind it pays a salary of $3,000 annually, having been so arranged by the munificent founder of that excellent institution.

Thanksgiving at St. Cloud.

The Thanksgiving dinner at the St. Cloud yesterday was a paragon among dinners, and if such a thing were possible, added very greatly to the already fine reputation of Capt. and Mrs. Clarke as entertainers. The tables were well loaded with all that was elegant and substantial, and it goes without saying full that justice was done to the occasion by the many guests of the hotel and the invited guests of the town, all of whom unite in wishing many happy returns of the pleasant anniversary for the genial Captain and his hospitable lady.

The Chairman—Who?

The magistrates are to meet next Monday to elect a chairman of the county commissioners. This is a very important office, and requires a good man. It seems to be commonly accepted that he would better be a resident of this place, and we have some excellent timber for that purpose. Prominent among those who are mentioned for the place are Mr. John P. Allison, who might be said to inherit a fitness for that responsible place; Esq. W. J. Hill, Mr. P. B. Fetzer, Mr. Geo. Lore and Mr. Elam King. The magistrates could not go amiss to select any one of these.

A Good Deed.

A one-legged tramp struck the town Monday. He was in very destitute circumstances, and seemed to be lame in the foot. He finally got down on the street, and being found in that condition by some of Concord's noble hearted ladies, they interested themselves in his behalf and had him sent to the poor house, where he will be cared for. He must surely have been out of his right mind, as one of the ladies offered him a piece of money; he declined with thanks, saying he had no use for any thing like that.

A Card of Thanks.

The mother and near relatives of E. Smith Patterson, deceased, desire to express their sincere thanks through your paper to many friends for kindness shown during his last illness. Every one seemed to wish with the other in manifesting their love and appreciation of him whom we prized so dearly—and may God bless each one for every sentiment expressed or favor shown during his sickness and since his death. Only those who have experienced similar troubles are fully prepared to appreciate the work and tokens of friendship.

Marriage in High Life.

As there was a marriage at the St. Cloud Wednesday in the handsome hall on the second story, we suppose it might be called a "marriage in high life." Pink Calabuss, colored, a porter on the 3 C's railroad, was married to Lula Lewis, a chambermaid at the St. Cloud, who has been for a long time a servant of Mrs. Clarke, and belonged to her before the surrender. Quite a number of the ladies of Concord and the guests of the hotel witnessed the ceremony as it was performed by Rev. Simmons, the colored Methodist minister of this place. They left on the noon train for Shelby.

The Taxes.

A comparison of the tax collections for the month ending November 24th, 1888, and those for the month ending November 24th, 1889, shows a difference of more than a thousand dollars in favor of last year. The amount collected by the sheriff that period this year, is only $4,435, and a settlement has not yet been made with the State. This is a bad showing for our county and is a clear index of the bad crops. Sheriff Propst asks us to state that it would be to the advantage of all who have not paid their taxes to call and do so at an early date. The sheriff is debarred from selling real estate for taxes before spring, but is allowed to sell personal property for that purpose.

Convicts on the Road.

A beginning, if it is a small one, has at last been made on our county convict system. During this week, work has been done on the big hill this side of Cold Water about a mile from town on the Mt. Pleasant road. The force now consists of three convicts, in ball and chain, and there will be another soon. H. McNamara has been employed as overseer and guard, all being under the supervision of John R. Patterson, the jailer. This insures some good work on the roads as Mr. McNamara has quite a reputation for skill in that work. These prisoners are given three good meals a day now, whereas when confined in jail, they get only two. They are returned to the jail at night.

Death and Burial of Mr. Jas. T. Odell.

The remains of Mr. Jas. T. Odell arrived here Friday night, and were interred in the cemetery Saturday morning in the presence of a large number of friends, the services being conducted by Rev. Mr. Hoyle, and the funeral sermon being preached Sunday at the new church at Forest Hill by Rev. Mr. Gibbs, the presiding elder of this district. The manner of Mr. Odell's death was very sad. He and a friend were out hunting Tuesday last week, riding in a dog cart. His companion got out to shoot at some ducks, when Mr. Odell in handing him the gun with the muzzle towards himself, accidentally struck the hammer on the wheel. The gun was discharged, and the whole load of large shot entered his breast, and caused his death within fifteen minutes. Mrs. Odell is here, having accompanied the remains.

There will be a regular communication of Stokes lodge Monday night at 7 o'clock.

Our Sewing Machine.

Today and tomorrow are the only chances you will have to get the new sewing machine we offer to some one of our patrons. You need have no qualms of conscience as to our method of awarding it. It is not gambling. You get what you pay for—a good weekly local paper a year for $1.25, which no one who appreciates a good paper begrudges. The sewing machine is a free gift on our part. We decide as to who the fortunate one shall be by chance, the only fair way in a case of this kind.

Avail yourselves of this opportunity before tomorrow night.

The Stolen Horse.

Mr. D. M. Lower advertises in this issue for a horse that was stolen from his stable at Bloomington, Stanly county, and offers a handsome reward for the return of the horse. It was an exceedingly bold thing. The thief went to the stable about eleven o'clock in the day, during the absence of the family, and stole the horse, after going to the house for the bridle. He was seen and can be identified by some neighbors. It is to be hoped the horse will be found and the rogue brought to justice.

Notes on Words.

CHARACTER, REPUTATION.—These words ought to be carefully discriminated. Character denotes the traits which are peculiar to any person or thing. Reputation is really the result of character. Character is what one essentially is. Reputation is the estimation in which one is held. A man may have a good character and a bad reputation, or a bad character and a good reputation.

COMPLETED, FINISHED.—That is complete, which is lacking in no particular; that is finished which has had all done to it that was intended. A poem may be finished, but not completed.

CONVENE, CONVOKE.—An assembly of any kind may convene—i. e., come together without any authority. A body is convoked by an act of authority.

CUSTOM, HABIT.—Custom refers to usages of society, or to things which are done by great numbers of men. Habit relates to things done by the individual. Custom is therefore an external act, habit an internal principle.

DISTINGUISH, DISCRIMINATE.—We distinguish one thing from another; we discriminate between two or more things.

EVIDENCE, TESTIMONY.—Evidence is that which tends to convince; testimony is that which is intended to convince. They may be a great deal of testimony and but little evidence.

LUXURIOUS, LUXURIANT.—Luxurious now means indulging or delighting in luxury; as, luxurious ease, a luxurious table. Luxuriant is confined to excessive growth or production; as, luxuriant branches.

OUGHT, SHOULD.—Ought implies that we are morally bound to do something. Should is not quite as strong a term. We ought to be honest; we should be tender toward little children.

PERPETUAL, CONTINUAL.—Perpetual means never ceasing; continual, that which is constantly renewed, with, perhaps, frequent stops and interruptions.

PORTION, PART.—A portion is a part set aside for a special purpose, or to be considered by itself.

QUANTITY, NUMBER.—Quantity refers to that which is weighed or measured; number to that which is counted.

VOCATION, AVOCATION.—A man's vocation is his business, his calling, his profession. His avocation is his occasional business. Such avocation may be recreation.

Try This.

A certain young man in Durham went to see his inamorata the other night, and she, wishing to get rid of him, used this device: She gave him a paper and pencil with one of her sweetest smiles, and said: "Now make a row of eleven ciphers, now make a perpendicular mark downward on the right of the first cipher, upward on the right of the fourth, downward on the right of the fifth, upward on the right of the seventh and eighth, downward on the right of the tenth." She then asked him to read what he had written. The effect was electrical. The marks are to be made half an inch long.

EDUCATIONAL.

[Articles intended for this column must be mailed to the County Superintendent of Public Instruction.]

The following subjects will be discussed to-morrow at the Council, the discussions opened by papers read by those whose names here appear:

"The teacher's personal influence."—Rev. W. G. Campbell.

"Webster's Blue Back Spelling Book."—By a friend.

After the presentation of each paper the subjects will be open for general discussion.

The meeting promises to be an interesting one, and it is hoped that a full "turnout" of the teachers will be present.

Time: Saturday, November 30th, 10:30, a. m. Place: Virginia Dare Institute.

Stolen.

On Sunday November 24th at 10 a. m. there was stolen from my stable a dark colored horse 5 years old, medium size, black face, half of me and half of next to wethers, left hind foot white, right fore foot white half way to knee. It was taken by a man about 21 years old, medium size, with dark complexion and small dark mustache. A reward of $25 will be given for his return to me. JOHN M. LOWDELL, Bloomington, Stanly Co., N. "What is that place up there on the street?"

See the people go with hurray! What is it?—a query we everywhere meet—

It's Vaughan's candy store near the corner.

"Where do you go for chocolates fine, Or any thing else in that same line, Where do you yet ten cents worth for nine?"

At Vaughan's candy store on the corner.

"Creams, hand-mades and nougat, so delicious!"

Mixtures—plain or fancy, both are mentioned, and you'll find them all.

Go, invest your money, don't be avaricious,

When you buy at the store near the corner.

"The boxes are marvelous, each one complete,

And what they contain—a 'Confession'—

For mother, or sister, or wife they're a treat.

If you get them from the store near the corner.

"Then let your good will guide your feet,

To the place where all is new and neat,

Quantity and quality hard to beat,

To the new store near the corner."
