Laurinbury Exchange: Just bevond Old Hundred, early last Thursday morning, as the night train was 1 60 swiftly speeding along down grade, engineer F. B. Lewis saw the image 8 10 of what he thought a man some distance ahead sitting on the track. 8 90 Just before the engine reached him he aroused and undertook to cross the track. Before he could do so 8 50 the engine struck him and knocked him up on the flag stand, to which his coat became fastened, and for about 100 yards, before the train 1 60 could be stopped, he hung suspended therefrom with his head downward, repeatedly striking the cross ties. On examination his forehead was 1 60 found broken in and also other seri-1 60 1 60 ous wounds, which had killed him instantly. He was identified as Mr. J. R. McDonald, who had been put off the previously passing train a 1 60 few hours before in an intoxicated 1 60 condition. He is said to have been

1 60 a very kind-hearted, clever man and
