DOES IDLENESS CAUSE IT?

Last week the Standard copied an extract from a paper furnished a magazine by a college professor, one Editor Standard what the Wil nington Star says:

It is caused by the low prices, ordinarily, for the products of the farm, low prices caused by raising too much for the market which our farmers have to supply. If there were less raised there would be a more active demand and better prices, the price increasing in proportion to the shortness of ket riots. the supply, so that if the farmer didn't work half as much as he does, and didn't raise half as much as he does, he could get as good or better pay for one-half his labor than ne has since this depression era be gan, got en for all of it. The farmer commits errors, there is no doubt of that; he with some excelons, pursues methods that are not remunerative, there is no doubt of that: he gets into ruts that it seems very hard to get out of, there is no doubt of that; but if he does not prosper and is not getting rich, idleness is not the cause. There are too many farmers in this country raising food and cotton for the number of people there are to feed and to clothe, and the result is an overstocked market and consequently low prices, and then on top of this, out of these low prices the farmer is required to pay heavy tribute to the protested manufacturers for the various things he needs and has to buy. That's where the trouble is, and not in too much idleness.

A homicide in Duplin county, ten miles from Mt. Olive, Sunday even ing, is reported by the Goldsboro in which a white deaf mut named Summerlin was killed by his wife's two brothers named Rogers. Domestic troubles between slaughter was agreed on. Judge Carter sentenced the prisoner to bornieride.
