

THE PEOPLE'S CHIEF AMONG THE NOTES AND THE MEDIA PRINT THEM.

NO OTHER PAPER EVER HAD AN LARGER CIRCULATION IN THE COUNTY.

TOWN AND COUNTY.

Mr. J. C. Leslie, a former Concord boy, of Charlotte, was in the city a while Tuesday morning.

B. J. White brought us in a little cotton boll.

Some of the Richmond excursionists are badly broken up.

President Shirey, of North Carolina College, went over to Charlotte today.

Charlotte's big compress "did up" 126,000 bales of cotton the last season.

Mr. Jordan a store drummer, of Asheville is in town. He's a great Jordan.

Miss Jennie Smith has returned from a pleasant visit to relatives in Birmingham, Ala.

Misses Annie and Callie White, of No. 11, have returned from a visit to relatives in Rowan.

Adam Green, colored, was put in jail Thursday, for striking Jno. Sherill, colored, with a rock.

Rev. Mrs. T. E. Wincock, who has been quite sick at the home of Mr. J. B. Wincock, is convalescent.

Mrs. Cross and little Nettie Caldwell have gone to Matthews on a visit.

The farmers threshed wheat at Flows Friday and found the yield to be exceptionally fine.

Mrs. Delphia McEachern, of No. 1, found a cotton blossom in her field on the 18th ult.

M. J. Corl will have beautiful bus, when the workman gets through with the overhauling.

Hon. W. C. Whiney will not accept the chairmanship of the National Democratic Executive Committee.

Rev. J. J. Rann will fill the pulpit of Central Methodist church on Sunday at 11 a. m. and 8:15 p. m.

The family of Mr. C. A. Black, of Charlotte, formerly of this city, are at Sossaman's Springs for the summer.

Dr. Arey, of Stanley, was here Friday to stand an examination under Dr. Young, for a state license to practice medicine.

Miss Isabelle Montgomery and her guests Misses Seales, Settle and Hammond have gone to Charlotte on a visit.

A little child of Lester Quay, of Harrisburg, died Thursday evening of a prevalent disease in that section.

Miss Julia Shirey, who was a member of the faculty at Lutherville Seminary, Baltimore, has returned to Mt. Pleasant to spend her vacation.

Mrs. L. E. Stacy, the wife of Rev. Stacy, formerly pastor of the Methodist Church at Albemarle, died at Farmington Davis County, on Tuesday.

A June 29.—telegram from Chicago, says bankruptcy has reached the Worlds Fair commission. There is not money enough left to buy postage stamps.

The Standard has received the initial number of the Charlotte Medical Journal, by Drs. Register and Montgomery. It has been well received and typographically it is very neat.

Ed. Lipe was in to know about what dia sit on to make of a little black, wooly dog that had taken up at his home. Ed. was terribly wrought up. He didn't want the property found in his possession.

Next Thursday, Mr. W. J. Rogers, who has for a long time been a clerk on the depot force will retire. He has accepted a position with Rogers & Co., of Charlotte. The Standard regrets to see Mr. R.—leave town.

Miss Viola Petrea, of St. Johns, came near being drowned last Friday. While crossing Misenheimer branch (it being swollen from recent rains) she became "swimmy headed" and fell in. Mr. Will Misenheimer rescued her.

Standy News says this: The grave of Alex Whitley, the lynched man, needs attention at once. It has sunk in a foot from the top and should be refilled. The supposition that the body has been removed is unfounded and untrue. Let the authorities look after this matter.

Learned men tell us that in Latin the word editor means "to eat." In the United States it means to scratch around like blazes to get something to eat.—Texas Siftings.

Teacher—Tommy, what did our Saviour mean when he said to Peter, "From henceforth thou shalt catch men?"

Tommy—I suppose he meant that Peter was going to be a policeman.—Texas Siftings.

John Bulla is in Asheville working in his trade, masonry.

Mr. Geo. H. Miller, of St. Johns, and Miss Mattie Sanders, of No. 9, were married Tuesday night.

It is thought that the assaulter of Mrs. Klutz, of Rowan county, has been caught in Newton, N. C.

Ed Boone, who reported several days ago as being quite sick, we are glad to say, is improving.

Capt. Odell looks powerfully national in the bank. He rivals Cashier Coltrane in his amiable manner and treatment of customers.

Rev. Prof. Kennedy, of the Georgetown High School, was in the city today. The prospects for the school, it is said, are very flattering.

Mr. Lambert tells us that the local company of the Covenant Building and Loan Association, of Knoxville, Tenn., is growing here in a manner very satisfactory.

The Standard learns that Master Jay Sims takes a position on the depot force. Jay is a fine little fellow, and the Standard congratulates him on his promotion.

A great deal of sickness is reported from the Harrisburg section. A little child of Mr. Quay, who runs the Harrisburg boarding house, is not expected to live.

Davis Brumley cut down nearly a hundred shocks of oats on Monday and the rain caught them. Up to last accounts they were not dry enough to be tied up.

A military company is being organized at Bulb's store on the Union and Cabarrus time. It is said quite a large list of volunteers is in the hands of the captain.

A coat and wad were found this morning on the East side of Big Cold Water creek. The owner can get information at this office about his property, and can pay for this notice.

The Lawn Party given by the ladies of Forest Hill Methodist church for the benefit of the parsonage, Friday night, was a decided success in every particular. They always succeed at Forest Hill M. E. Church.

The Roller Mill project is considerably more than theory. You have no idea how many young men of the town and citizens of the county are ready to get up in a stock company of this kind.

Mr. Geo. J. Helling, a most excellent and promising young man, of Pleasant, has gone to Jonesboro, Ill., to live. The Standard wishes Mr. Helling the success he so richly deserves.

Jacob F. Newell, who learned the reporting business on this sheet will hold the thing down for a week or ten days, while the worn out man of this shop will seek recuperation elsewhere. Be kind to Mr. Newell by giving him the news.

The Misses Linn, who have been attending school in Mt. Pleasant for two years, have returned to their home in Jonesboro, Ill. They made many friends while in North Carolina, the native home of their father, Mr. Jno. Linn.

The rains for the past week have been many and heavy. Saturday evening it began raining at Rocky Ridge, from an apparently clear sky, but the clouds soon became dense and by the time it reached Bradford's mill it was falling in torrents, and the country was flooded with the biggest rain of the season.

Mr. J. Whit Burhead, spent some time at Mill Bridge. He remarked to us that the Roller Mill there is a splendid success. They even ship wheat from the west and are able to sell flour cheaper than the western product. It will not be four months until Concord will have a Roller Mill, mark you!

W. L. Misenheimer when a boy spent much of his time in marking dry-land cooters." Occasionally he finds one of these. Thursday he found one that bore his name and the year 1871. This "cooter" is 21 years old and may be 100; it is not large enough to fill a quart tin cup.

The Greenboro Record says: "Register Kirkman, a few days ago, issued a marriage license to a Mr. Long. On the following day a like instrument was issued to Mr. Short. Whether Mr. Long married a Miss Short, or whether Mr. Short married a Miss Long, is not stated, but the long and short of it is that somebody got married."

Maj. Eugene Harrell, Secretary of the North Carolina Teachers' Assembly, has announced that he is making arrangements for an excursion of the North Carolina teachers to the World's Fair in Chicago next year. It is expected that twelve days will be devoted to the trip, and Maj. Harrell thinks that $35.00 will cover the entire expense of the excursion. This will be the biggest and most popular excursion ever taken by the assembly.

See notice of some distilling property for sale. It is a seizure.

Never was there a season when so much lace was worn.

Ex-Sheriff White, of Charlotte, is visiting at Col. G. M. Lore's.

Following close in the wake of the blackberry is an abundant crop of "cucumbers."

Masters Earl and Vardrey Brown have gone to Rowan county, on a visit.

A physician was sent for on account of the sickness of Mr. Giles T. Crowell's little boy.

A representative of a masonic insurance company has been doing some work here.

Mr. Ellwood Cox, of High Point, spent a part of Sunday with Dr. and Mrs. Cartland.

Mr. T. Lashley, goes to Reidsville, N. C. to superintend a cotton mill for a short time.

It is probable that the rains have caused many hides to postpone their quarterly bath for an indefinite time.

The rain continues to fall, fall, fall. It is said that many fish in several streams have been drowned by overflows.

Dr. H. C. Herring was visiting in Wilmington last week. He went down from Sampson county, his native home.

There was held an informal meeting in regard to a Roller Mill, to be built here. The matter is assuming fine shape now.

A little child of Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Kerner died Saturday night, at their home, in Rowan. It was buried Sunday.

The South is not going to be fooled and bite at every hook that is held out for them. They are not wanting to get bit.

A vicious looking bastard came very near sitting down in the square at the bank today. What was he after, you reckon?

Signor Ritz was so unwell that he could not attend the 4th of July picnic at Misenheimer's Springs, with his legionnaire camp.

Mr. Chas. Wadsworth, the handsome Charleston whose portrait adorns many Concord hearts, was in the city today.

The St. Cloud has treated itself to a new register. If Clerk Reed can prevail on the drummers to write their names legibly, we make no complaint.

Mr. J. J. Shinn reports that his mining operations have stopped until they get water. It rains, but it doesn't run on the bigger mine worth a cent.

We hear many compliments for the speeches delivered by C. W. Swink, J. C. Wadsworth and M. T. Stallings at Rural Retreat, on Saturday.

From the many piles of rubbish on the street it would appear that there will be lots of building done or else there should be lots of cleaning up indulged in.

A banana of unusually large size was laid on a Standard table this morning. It seems to have been a twin-growth and will probably weigh as much as two pounds.

Mr. W. L. Black, an engineer on the Spartanburg and Asheville a brother of Dr. J. C. Black, of Pioneer Mills, spent several days in the county. His headquarters are in Asheville.

Rev. Roger Martin, of Mallard Creek, Mecklenburg, will fill the Rocky River pulpit next Sunday the pastor, Rev. Jno. G. Anderson, being absent in Gaston county, where he is conducting a protracted meeting.

Miss Clara Oehler was called home, on account of a serious accident to her mother at her home in Rowan. While a mail was being driven, it broke and a piece struck her in the eye. The physicians fear the total ruin of the sight.

Emmet Swink had a narrow escape on Sunday. When the sudden rain storm came up a batchet blew out of a second-story window. It struck Mr. Swink on the head and he didn't know what struck him for some time. Had the batchet fallen three feet farther, Swink would not now be selling ice.

The usual crowd of fools, who act as color-bearers for the Northern Republicans, have started on their rounds awful tales of "Southern outrages," and the dishonesty generally of the South. The vilification that the sealwags of the North have heaped upon the South always was too contemptible to be tolerated. But the question is: "Will the South help this party back into office and rule by voting any other way than the Democratic ticket?"

Our Republican friends at the North now tell us that the Force Bill is a little insignificant thing that does not amount to anything after all. The Republican party usually sticks closely to "insignificant things." We learned this when we saw them handling the pension business, the McKinley law, and the billion dollars that was in the treasury.

The betting in New York is now with the ones on Cleveland, according to the morning Advertiser, a strong anti-Cleveland paper, which gives the details of several bets made on that basis. The Kansas City Times thinks the odds will be five to one on Cleveland before the campaign is over.

UP TO JERUSALEM.

THE CONCORD ALLIANCE AND POLITICAL MEETING.

Let Everybody Attend, Alliance and Non-Alliance—Chat on the Omaha Nominations.

Extensive preparations are being made for the next meeting of the County Alliance which will be held at Rocky Ridge, (three miles from Concord), on Thursday and Friday of next week, the 14th, and 15th, of July.

An abundance of grub will be on hand, and if any one has not had enough to eat in some time, they had better attend, for there will be no charge made for dinner, except the charge that will be made for the table when the dinner is spread upon it.

Thursday will be devoted to public addresses and a political mass-meeting, in which every man, whether Alliance or not, has a cordial invitation to participate. Alliance speeches will be made just before the mass-meeting is held. Messrs. G. E. Kester and Chas. P. Sapp, of this city, will be the orators of the day.

A STANDARD reporter was informed by Capt. Chas. McDonald, who is one of the most prominent Alliance men in the county, that the object of this mass-meeting was to decide on some action in regard to the Omaha nominees for President and Vice-president.

Let every man in the county, and especially Democrats attend this mass-meeting on the 14th, and 15th, which way the straws are pointing. The Omaha nominees are General Weaver for President, and Gen. Jas. G. Field, of Virginia, for vice-president.

General Weaver is charged with having introduced in Congress a bill to pay the Union soldier the difference in the money he was paid in and gold, and it is said that this bill was the origin of the Union Soldier plank at St. Louis. Every man should fully inform himself and then attend the mass-meeting.

When Game Wasn't Severe.

While talking with one of the older citizens of the city a Standard reporter was told of an occurrence of 1853, that doubtless most people have forgotten. At that day it was nothing unusual for a hunter to bring down a deer with his rifle, and there were many men who loved the sport, and were often rewarded as above indicated.

It was one summer's day in that year that a pack of dogs ran a deer into Concord and as it crossed the street where St. Andrews Lutheran church now stands, Mr. W. A. Patterson fired the shot that was fatal to the deer.

When Game Wasn't Severe.

While talking with one of the older citizens of the city a Standard reporter was told of an occurrence of 1853, that doubtless most people have forgotten. At that day it was nothing unusual for a hunter to bring down a deer with his rifle, and there were many men who loved the sport, and were often rewarded as above indicated.

It was one summer's day in that year that a pack of dogs ran a deer into Concord and as it crossed the street where St. Andrews Lutheran church now stands, Mr. W. A. Patterson fired the shot that was fatal to the deer.

When Game Wasn't Severe.

While talking with one of the older citizens of the city a Standard reporter was told of an occurrence of 1853, that doubtless most people have forgotten. At that day it was nothing unusual for a hunter to bring down a deer with his rifle, and there were many men who loved the sport, and were often rewarded as above indicated.

It was one summer's day in that year that a pack of dogs ran a deer into Concord and as it crossed the street where St. Andrews Lutheran church now stands, Mr. W. A. Patterson fired the shot that was fatal to the deer.

When Game Wasn't Severe.

While talking with one of the older citizens of the city a Standard reporter was told of an occurrence of 1853, that doubtless most people have forgotten. At that day it was nothing unusual for a hunter to bring down a deer with his rifle, and there were many men who loved the sport, and were often rewarded as above indicated.

It was one summer's day in that year that a pack of dogs ran a deer into Concord and as it crossed the street where St. Andrews Lutheran church now stands, Mr. W. A. Patterson fired the shot that was fatal to the deer.

When Game Wasn't Severe.

While talking with one of the older citizens of the city a Standard reporter was told of an occurrence of 1853, that doubtless most people have forgotten. At that day it was nothing unusual for a hunter to bring down a deer with his rifle, and there were many men who loved the sport, and were often rewarded as above indicated.

It was one summer's day in that year that a pack of dogs ran a deer into Concord and as it crossed the street where St. Andrews Lutheran church now stands, Mr. W. A. Patterson fired the shot that was fatal to the deer.

When Game Wasn't Severe.

While talking with one of the older citizens of the city a Standard reporter was told of an occurrence of 1853, that doubtless most people have forgotten. At that day it was nothing unusual for a hunter to bring down a deer with his rifle, and there were many men who loved the sport, and were often rewarded as above indicated.

It was one summer's day in that year that a pack of dogs ran a deer into Concord and as it crossed the street where St. Andrews Lutheran church now stands, Mr. W. A. Patterson fired the shot that was fatal to the deer.

When Game Wasn't Severe.

While talking with one of the older citizens of the city a Standard reporter was told of an occurrence of 1853, that doubtless most people have forgotten. At that day it was nothing unusual for a hunter to bring down a deer with his rifle, and there were many men who loved the sport, and were often rewarded as above indicated.

It was one summer's day in that year that a pack of dogs ran a deer into Concord and as it crossed the street where St. Andrews Lutheran church now stands, Mr. W. A. Patterson fired the shot that was fatal to the deer.

When Game Wasn't Severe.

While talking with one of the older citizens of the city a Standard reporter was told of an occurrence of 1853, that doubtless most people have forgotten. At that day it was nothing unusual for a hunter to bring down a deer with his rifle, and there were many men who loved the sport, and were often rewarded as above indicated.

It was one summer's day in that year that a pack of dogs ran a deer into Concord and as it crossed the street where St. Andrews Lutheran church now stands, Mr. W. A. Patterson fired the shot that was fatal to the deer.

When Game Wasn't Severe.

While talking with one of the older citizens of the city a Standard reporter was told of an occurrence of 1853, that doubtless most people have forgotten. At that day it was nothing unusual for a hunter to bring down a deer with his rifle, and there were many men who loved the sport, and were often rewarded as above indicated.

It was one summer's day in that year that a pack of dogs ran a deer into Concord and as it crossed the street where St. Andrews Lutheran church now stands, Mr. W. A. Patterson fired the shot that was fatal to the deer.

When Game Wasn't Severe.

While talking with one of the older citizens of the city a Standard reporter was told of an occurrence of 1853, that doubtless most people have forgotten. At that day it was nothing unusual for a hunter to bring down a deer with his rifle, and there were many men who loved the sport, and were often rewarded as above indicated.

It was one summer's day in that year that a pack of dogs ran a deer into Concord and as it crossed the street where St. Andrews Lutheran church now stands, Mr. W. A. Patterson fired the shot that was fatal to the deer.

When Game Wasn't Severe.

While talking with one of the older citizens of the city a Standard reporter was told of an occurrence of 1853, that doubtless most people have forgotten. At that day it was nothing unusual for a hunter to bring down a deer with his rifle, and there were many men who loved the sport, and were often rewarded as above indicated.

It was one summer's day in that year that a pack of dogs ran a deer into Concord and as it crossed the street where St. Andrews Lutheran church now stands, Mr. W. A. Patterson fired the shot that was fatal to the deer.

When Game Wasn't Severe.

While talking with one of the older citizens of the city a Standard reporter was told of an occurrence of 1853, that doubtless most people have forgotten. At that day it was nothing unusual for a hunter to bring down a deer with his rifle, and there were many men who loved the sport, and were often rewarded as above indicated.

Substantial Appreciation.

The operatives in one of the departments of the Odell factory remembered their old overseer, Mr. "The" Lashley, in a handsome way, upon his retirement from that position, by presenting him with a costly rocking chair. Mr. Lashley goes to Reidsville to accept a position in the cotton factory.

A Trip of a Dog.

Sunday evening, "Racket," a dog owned by Mr. Jas. Gibson, became so rabid that it was deemed prudent to have him killed. Jas. Boxer, while making arrangements to put an end to the dog's life, was bitten on the arm. Some contend that the dog had a genuine case of hydrophobia, while others think not. It will be well however, to watch the dogs that Racket has bitten.

The Annual Picnic.

C. W. Swink and J. C. Wadsworth have returned from Rural Retreat and Misenheimer Springs. They spent Saturday at Rural Retreat, where the annual picnic took place. It was an enjoyable occasion. The writer of this must make a public acknowledgment to Col. B. S. Cotes for the delivering of an address in lieu of the one that was to have been made by this person, but whom sickness prevented from being present.

When Game Wasn't Severe.

While talking with one of the older citizens of the city a Standard reporter was told of an occurrence of 1853, that doubtless most people have forgotten. At that day it was nothing unusual for a hunter to bring down a deer with his rifle, and there were many men who loved the sport, and were often rewarded as above indicated.

It was one summer's day in that year that a pack of dogs ran a deer into Concord and as it crossed the street where St. Andrews Lutheran church now stands, Mr. W. A. Patterson fired the shot that was fatal to the deer.

When Game Wasn't Severe.

While talking with one of the older citizens of the city a Standard reporter was told of an occurrence of 1853, that doubtless most people have forgotten. At that day it was nothing unusual for a hunter to bring down a deer with his rifle, and there were many men who loved the sport, and were often rewarded as above indicated.

It was one summer's day in that year that a pack of dogs ran a deer into Concord and as it crossed the street where St. Andrews Lutheran church now stands, Mr. W. A. Patterson fired the shot that was fatal to the deer.

When Game Wasn't Severe.

While talking with one of the older citizens of the city a Standard reporter was told of an occurrence of 1853, that doubtless most people have forgotten. At that day it was nothing unusual for a hunter to bring down a deer with his rifle, and there were many men who loved the sport, and were often rewarded as above indicated.

It was one summer's day in that year that a pack of dogs ran a deer into Concord and as it crossed the street where St. Andrews Lutheran church now stands, Mr. W. A. Patterson fired the shot that was fatal to the deer.

When Game Wasn't Severe.

While talking with one of the older citizens of the city a Standard reporter was told of an occurrence of 1853, that doubtless most people have forgotten. At that day it was nothing unusual for a hunter to bring down a deer with his rifle, and there were many men who loved the sport, and were often rewarded as above indicated.

It was one summer's day in that year that a pack of dogs ran a deer into Concord and as it crossed the street where St. Andrews Lutheran church now stands, Mr. W. A. Patterson fired the shot that was fatal to the deer.

When Game Wasn't Severe.

While talking with one of the older citizens of the city a Standard reporter was told of an occurrence of 1853, that doubtless most people have forgotten. At that day it was nothing unusual for a hunter to bring down a deer with his rifle, and there were many men who loved the sport, and were often rewarded as above indicated.

It was one summer's day in that year that a pack of dogs ran a deer into Concord and as it crossed the street where St. Andrews Lutheran church now stands, Mr. W. A. Patterson fired the shot that was fatal to the deer.

When Game Wasn't Severe.

While talking with one of the older citizens of the city a Standard reporter was told of an occurrence of 1853, that doubtless most people have forgotten. At that day it was nothing unusual for a hunter to bring down a deer with his rifle, and there were many men who loved the sport, and were often rewarded as above indicated.

It was one summer's day in that year that a pack of dogs ran a deer into Concord and as it crossed the street where St. Andrews Lutheran church now stands, Mr. W. A. Patterson fired the shot that was fatal to the deer.

When Game Wasn't Severe.

While talking with one of the older citizens of the city a Standard reporter was told of an occurrence of 1853, that doubtless most people have forgotten. At that day it was nothing unusual for a hunter to bring down a deer with his rifle, and there were many men who loved the sport, and were often rewarded as above indicated.

It was one summer's day in that year that a pack of dogs ran a deer into Concord and as it crossed the street where St. Andrews Lutheran church now stands, Mr. W. A. Patterson fired the shot that was fatal to the deer.

When Game Wasn't Severe.

While talking with one of the older citizens of the city a Standard reporter was told of an occurrence of 1853, that doubtless most people have forgotten. At that day it was nothing unusual for a hunter to bring down a deer with his rifle, and there were many men who loved the sport, and were often rewarded as above indicated.

It was one summer's day in that year that a pack of dogs ran a deer into Concord and as it crossed the street where St. Andrews Lutheran church now stands, Mr. W. A. Patterson fired the shot that was fatal to the deer.

When Game Wasn't Severe.

While talking with one of the older citizens of the city a Standard reporter was told of an occurrence of 1853, that doubtless most people have forgotten. At that day it was nothing unusual for a hunter to bring down a deer with his rifle, and there were many men who loved the sport, and were often rewarded as above indicated.

It was one summer's day in that year that a pack of dogs ran a deer into Concord and as it crossed the street where St. Andrews Lutheran church now stands, Mr. W. A. Patterson fired the shot that was fatal to the deer.

When Game Wasn't Severe.

While talking with one of the older citizens of the city a Standard reporter was told of an occurrence of 1853, that doubtless most people have forgotten. At that day it was nothing unusual for a hunter to bring down a deer with his rifle, and there were many men who loved the sport, and were often rewarded as above indicated.

It was one summer's day in that year that a pack of dogs ran a deer into Concord and as it crossed the street where St. Andrews Lutheran church now stands, Mr. W. A. Patterson fired the shot that was fatal to the deer.

When Game Wasn't Severe.

While talking with one of the older citizens of the city a Standard reporter was told of an occurrence of 1853, that doubtless most people have forgotten. At that day it was nothing unusual for a hunter to bring down a deer with his rifle, and there were many men who loved the sport, and were often rewarded as above indicated.

It was one summer's day in that year that a pack of dogs ran a deer into Concord and as it crossed the street where St. Andrews Lutheran church now stands, Mr. W. A. Patterson fired the shot that was fatal to the deer.

When Game Wasn't Severe.

DEATH OF AN AGED CITIZEN.

Mr. William A. Patterson Passed Away Monday Night.

After a long illness Mr. William A. Patterson, an aged and highly respected citizen of this city, passed away in death.

Mr. Patterson had a host of warm friends, who are pained to know that the end of their boyhood is gone forever.

The funeral will be conducted from the residence on Church street tomorrow morning at 9:30 o'clock and will be concluded with Masonic honors, of which order he was a faithful and honored member. Mr. Patterson was in his 68th year and