

There is Thrift and Industry—These Hessians are not only good citizens, but they are also good soldiers. They are the best of the best. They are the best of the best. They are the best of the best. They are the best of the best.

In the main, these Hessians made good citizens and ultimately intermarried with the Americans. But when I was a boy 60 years ago, some of the members of the long struggle of 1775-82, were still burning. If a Hessian or the son of a Hessian made a mistake in life, or departed one jot or tittle from strict duty or fair play, the hated term was sure to meet him. Some of the hardest flail-cuffs I ever saw grew out of these feelings. The result was that a certain shyness and quiet demeanor usually attended those families. They were all industrious and thrifty; many of them were excellent mechanics and artisans, and in all the relations of life they did much to make the "Dutch Side" a prosperous, self-reliant, and a self-supporting people. All such distinctions are wholly done away with.
Generations and great-grandsons of the Hessians have, for a long period of time, held the highest positions in the county, and to this day, they represent the most eminent citizens of the county. The one-legged descendant of a noted Hessian made one of the best soldiers the Confederacy produced; and he is now one of the most prominent farmers of Cabarrus.

But the result of all this was to throw this Hessian element, in some degree, back upon itself. And this explains the strange superstition referred to in a former article as so prevalent among the Germans of some parts of Cabarrus and the adjoining sections of Stanly.

Probably the most interesting of all the Dutch Side Hessians was John Reed, owner of the famous "Reed Gold Mine," where the 28 pound piece of gold was found in 1803, lying in a small branch (See Wheeler's N. C. History—Cabarrus county.) His character was unblemished; he reared several daughters, who intermarried with the best families of the land; and he died at an advanced age, the owner of a large estate. But so sensitive was he on this point, that he long declined to take out naturalization papers, and did not do so till about 1843, when he was legally advised that it might be necessary to protect his estate.

It is pleasant to record that the once odious name of Hessian no longer attaches to that nationality.
After my "Luther Centennial" address at Concord in 1883, in which I alluded to the Hessians of the Dutch Side, I chanced to meet our late fellow-citizen Charlotte, Mr. C.
Hilker, when he told me with great gladness, "I am a full Hessian, and I am proud of all the Hesses. They, too, are now free and enlightened, and we thank America for it."

And such seems to be the coming verdict of History. The Hessians were probably not the hated mercenaries our ancestors painted them.
They were rather the victims of the last vestige of Feudalism that still bore away from central Europe. Of 25,000 sent here only 17,000 returned, and 12,000 perished, deserted, or took allegiance after peace. And now comes a late author, E. J. Lowell, showing that there were fewer desertions among the Hessians than from the English troops. Certain it is that the poor ignorant German encountered far greater risk in the effort to do so.

And so, likewise, struggles on the power of truth. One of the most interesting books ever written is the story of the surrender of General Burgoyne and the long captivity of 25,000 Hessians, marched all through New England and the North and finally quartered under the shadow of Monticello, near Charlottesville, Va. There they spent whole years, under the penetrating eye of Jefferson, in all sorts of efforts to beguile the tedious hours, and to turn to practical account German invention, ingenuity and thrift. This book is by the Baroness Reidesel, the wife of General Reidesel, the commander of the German contingents. She, with her three small daughters, shared with her husband all the dangers of camp, of the march, of battle and of prison; and she tells all as only a woman can tell. For a hundred years this book has been ignored as partial and partisan. But all of the best authorities now concede its substantial truth. Its hits at New England life had much to do with its rejection, while the incessant efforts at cheerfulness and gaily down South, lent a charm to even the slow ways and stupid make up of a Hessian soldier. R. B.

CONCORD N. C. THURSDAY, OCTOBER 20 1892.

WHOLE NO 2 47.

What Makes Cotton Low?

"If the scarcity of money makes the price of cotton low, what makes the price of meat high? Why does not it make meat low?"

Meat is a Northern product; cotton is a Southern product. The President of the United States has made meat high. In his letter of acceptance, he said that the people of the United States were to be congratulated that meat was now free to enter foreign ports. The prohibition had been taken off of meat.
The price of cotton kept up till 1890. The fall in cotton began in October, 1890. The McKinley law went into effect Oct. 6th, 1890. In 84 days after this law, the price of cotton fell 2 1/2 cents on the pound.
Why? Why? Because the McKinley law put a prohibition on the importation of cotton goods into this country. The foreign markets could not afford to give so much for cotton. Thus you see, the prohibition off of meat, the price increases; the prohibition raised on cotton, the price decreases."—Ransom in Clinton.

The Fustian in Minnesota

St. Paul, Oct. 12.—The action of the Democrats and Populists in several parts of the State to day makes plain what the four Weaver electors were put on the Democratic national ticket for.

At Rochester two candidates for Legislature were nominated for the populists, and the Democrats promptly endorsed them. The same thing was done in three other counties.
The scheme is to bring about fusion in every part of the State. The Populist will withdraw all their candidates in St. Paul and Minneapolis and in return the Democrats will withdraw all their candidates in the Alliance strongholds.

Mrs. Harrison's Condition a Great Deal Worse.

Washington, Oct. 12.—Mrs.
Harrison's condition seems to be yielding to the effects of the disease from which she is suffering and she is gradually growing weaker. The nourishment consisting of raw eggs and beef tea, which has been so important an element in keeping up her strength is now taken in smaller quantities. She rests quietly as a rule, and sleeps much of the time, but awakes exhausted and refreshed. The cough which has distressed her at intervals has ceased, but this is regarded as an unfavorable symptom. The disease is progressing rapidly and the left lung is now involved. Tonight Mrs. Harrison is fairly comfortable notwithstanding the unfavorable conditions mentioned in the foregoing lines.

Wadesboro Intelligence: W E Henderson, col'd Republican revenue collector from Concord, and Ben Pratt, col'd, of this county, made speeches here last Saturday.
Henderson abused the Democratic party roundly, but had nothing but words of praise for the Weavers.
He said the negroes would never be satisfied until they were allowed representation on juries, and were accorded all the privileges to which they were entitled as American citizens. It was almost night when Henderson finished speaking, and Pratt had to cut his remarks short.
He spoke in the usual Third party strain, saying that the "two old parties" were responsible for all the ills that afflict mankind at the present day.

A Letter From Mr. Cleveland.

Topeka, Kan., Oct. 12.—Secretary Holiday of the Kansas Democratic Editorial Association is in receipt of the following letter from Grover Cleveland in reply to a telegram from his association:

"I assure you that the guarantee you give that Kansas will not support by her electoral vote the in-iquities of the McKinley tariff bill is most gratifying. Nothing could be more encouraging than to see Kansas break away from the partisan bonds that have so long and firmly held her and turn to the support of a principle which promises prosperity and contentment to all our people and a fair chance to those who have long borne the rule of unjust taxation for the benefit of the hard task-masters.

A QUEER HONEYMOON.

How a Newly-Married Couple Escaped the Carthagenians.

Out in Kansas a few months ago, said Foster Lonsdale to a Globe-Democrat reporter, a young miner married a beautiful country girl after a brief courtship. He knew about what to expect from his rough companions, and when they came to nuptials, where he had taken a room, informed them that the newly married couple were not in the house, and such proved to be a fact. The groom had secured a leave of absence for a week and neither his landlady nor anyone else could tell where he had gone.

At the end of a week he and his bride returned just as mysteriously as they had departed, and no one knew where he had spent his honeymoon. He finally admitted to me in confidence, after I had appointed him pit boss in one of our coal mines on the Santa Fe Road, that he and his sweetheart had talked the matter over, and just before they were married they had taken a lot of provisions, bedding, etc., down into a coal mine which had just been "worked out," and the night after their wedding had disappeared into the earth. It was not quite as well as a trip to Paris, I imagine, but it certainly carried off the palm for originality.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Captured by "Kentucky Bill."

New York, October 14.—A special to the World from Covington, Va., says Keadle and the two Birchfields, members of the Hatfield-McCoy gang, who, on October 14th, ambushed and killed a farmer named Meadows and one of his sons, near the West Virginia line, have been arrested and are now in jail here, through strategy of a detective named Wm. Napier, alias "Kentucky Bill." They were captured without bloodshed.

Eleven Men Killed.

Pottsville, Pa., October 14.— Eleven men were killed and injured by an explosion of gas at the Philadelphia and Reading company's Sterling Run colliery at Shamokin. Of these five are dead and the remaining six so badly burned and mutila-ted that small hopes for their recovery are entertained.

Two Killed in Twenty-Four Hours.

Forsyth, Ga., October 14.—Beck Speer, a negro living at Milner, was killed by a Central freight train early this morning. Speer's body was found near the track by Section Master Moore about a mile and a half south of the depot. The head was horribly crushed and almost severed from the body. This is the second victim of the Central's at this place within the last twenty-four hours.

The pumpkin pie is now a delicacy.

A Woman's Sentence Commuted.

Gov. Holt has commuted to a sentence for life in the penitentiary the death sentence of Leah Nixon who was convicted of murder in the first degree in Perquimans county in the fall term of 1892 and sentenced to be hanged December 2nd, 1892.

As reasons for his action the Governor says: In this case it appears that Leah Nixon and Martha Holt were tried upon two bills of indictment charging them both with murder in the first count and Martha Holt with being accessory before the fact in the second count. The State had no evidence against Martha Holt (who was convicted and sentenced to imprisonment for life) except by using Leah Nixon upon whose testimony she was convicted.
The Judge and Solicitor who tried the case ask for commutation of sentence of Leah Nixon on the ground that she was a mere tool of Martha Holt, being a half-witted creature, and was induced to do what she did by threats and promises. They show that there are many authorities showing that a prisoner used by the State has the right to clemency, that the death sentence was pronounced as a matter of form—such being the facts in the case, sentence is commuted to imprisonment for life in the State penitentiary.

If It's True, 'Tis Pity.

A young girl of not more the 23, while on a yatching party one day last summer, took preceptibly too much drink. Everybody supposed that it was an unfortunate accident, but during the subsequent winter, at a ball given in a private house, a similar misadventure happened to her, her condition being such that two young men who had been on the yatching party aforesaid, were obliged to hide her away up stairs, taking turns at guarding her, so that she could not escape and make an exhibition of herself.

Of course, however, the story got around. There is champagne at dinner parties, champagne at balls, champagne on the lawn at fetes champane—always champagne, no-compared by other tempting drinkables, with which the young women are pined by beaux who have more than commonly taken more of the same than was good for them. Any observant person who will take notice of the fashionable women on coaches at the races or on festive occasions at Newport will remark that they quite usually exhibit symptoms of having partaken too freely from the bottles that are kept convivially popping. What wonder that young married women have frequently to powder their noses.—Washington Evening Star.

A Plague of Diphtheria.

Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 14.—Secretary Trost, of the State Board of Health, returned yesterday from New California, Union county, where he went to investigate the epidemic of diphtheria. He greatly fears a general epidemic of the disease. The people in the vicinity of New California are panic stricken, but firm steps are being taken to stamp out the plague.

Plain City, four miles away, has guards on the road and permits no one from New California to enter the village. There are mounted officers to quarantine a house if diptheria appears in it.

Sensation in Wisconsin.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 8.—The Germania, the organ of the German Lutherans of Wisconsin, comes out flat-footed for John C. Spooner and John C. Koch.

A greater political sensation was never before known in the history of Wisconsin. The paper editorially announces that Pock declares the Bennett law question settled forever, and funds Spooner and Koch. It means the support of Germania for the whole Republican ticket.

The Germania was the head and front of the anti-Bennett law two years ago.

Capt. Pride Jones to Go to Winston.

Capt. Pride Jones, for years conductor on the Richmond and Danville between Charlotte and Richmond, has been given the company's agency at Winston and will enter upon his duties there right away.
Capt. Jones is one of the best known railroad men in this section. During the time he was on the road no more capable or popular man ever pulled the bell cord. That he will be a success in his new position, the Observer safely predicts and congratulates both Winston and the railroad, the one upon securing a good citizen, and the other a fine business agent.—Charlotte Observer.

Ridenhour-Fisher.

That was a beautiful marriage, Wednesday evening, at six o'clock, in the St. James Lutheran church.
The decorations were possibly the most beautiful that has been seen in Concord. The decorating was under the direction of the superior taste of Mrs. R E Gibson, and Miss Ada Rogers.

The organ fairly talked the wedding march under the mastery and graceful touch of Prof. R L Keistler. Just then the ushers, Messrs.
C W Swink, Sam Erwin, J E Cline and H L Cannon followed by the attendants: Miss Ella Gillespie (first bride's maid), A J Yorke (best man), Miss Nellie Fisher and W A Ridenhour; Miss Ada Rogers and John C Leslie; Miss Minnie Thompson and Joe Goodman; Miss Claud Fisher and Dr. J M Riley; Miss Lizzie Thompson and B E Harris; Miss Jesse Hunt and H L Cannon; Miss Lallah Hill and Mr. Frank Smith; Miss Grace Gibson and Jim Harley.

Then came the bridal couple.
The ceremony that made Miss Fannie Fisher, one of Concord's noblest and best, and Mr. R E Ridenhour, a model young gentleman, wife and husband was performed by Rev. Wright G Campbell, the pastor of both bride and groom.

THE STANDARD joins a host of friends in congratulating these excellent young people and wishing them every good of this life.

The bridal couple left on the evening train for points north and for the Virginia coast.

The reception given Tuesday night at the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. J S Fisher, was enjoyed by a number of invited guests.
The Standard representative has never seen a more beautiful wedding, and one so largely attended, which attracts the popularity of the congratulating parties.

Another evidence of the popularity of the bride is seen in the lengthy and handsome list of

FROM TRINITY COLLEGE.

Mr. Editor:

According to promise I'll submit a few notes on the dedication of Trinity College, which took place to-day.

This morning, Dr. Foss, of the Nashville Advocate, preached the dedicatory sermon in Main street church.

At 2 p. m., the parade formed in the city square and marched out to the park; the city band came first and was followed by the different fraternities, military company and a throng of citizens. In front of the "Main Building" it was met by faculty, students and visitors; the whole crowd then proceeded to the Inn, where Capt. Parish delivered a warm address of welcome, to which Dr. Crowell responded. Next, Mr.
W Duke formally presented to the Board of Trustees the "Main Building" and the Inn. He was followed by Hon. J S Carr, who, in a very neat and pointed speech, presented Trinity Park. Dr. Crowell presented the Technological building, erected in memory of Laura K Crowell. Dr. F L Reid presented the furniture. The Board of Trustees made suitable acknowledgments, of the various donations, through their spokesman, Dr. Yates.

Trinity, as dedicated, besides the recitation rooms, has about 100 dormitories, each furnished with two single bedsteads, table, bureau stand and wash set. A hundred (100) horse-power engine turns the dynamo and furnishes hot air. No oil or wood is burned. There is a magnificent Inn, built after the plan of best modern hotels. Hot or cold water baths may be had at all hours; water is furnished on every floor.

Trinity Park is a mile from the main city and no student is exposed to city temptations unless he takes considerable pains to put himself in the way of temptation.

If this communication is not regarded as worth its room, and is consigned to the waste basket, the writer will not feel mortified.

All the Cabarrus boys here send their joint congratulations, Mr. Editor. Respectfully,
J. F. SHINN.

Durham, Oct. 12.

A Happy Surprise.

Wednesday at 1 p. m., in Wilson, N. C., Miss Julia Gay and Mr.
Lester D Coltrane, by Rev. J H Cordon, were united in the bonds of holy wedlock.

The bride is one of the loveliest young ladies of Eastern North Carolina, and has many friends here whom she made while on a visit to Miss Annie Cannon a year ago. Mr.
Coltrane is the affable and business like teller of the National bank and who is deservedly popular. The marriage was a very quiet one, it not being known in Concord until after the ceremony had been performed.

The Standard but voices the sentiments of all here in extending a hearty welcome to Mrs. Coltrane and in wishing for bride and groom such wishes that admiring friends can do to entertain.

The bridal couple arrived in Concord on Thursday at 12:47.
