

CAN THERE BE A COMPROMISE.

THE STANDARD reads carefully and critically the editorial utterances of the two leaders, pro and con, in the money question.

Messrs. J. P. Caldwell, of the Charlotte Observer, and Josephus Daniels, of the Raleigh News and Observer, have waged battles of such character that their readers have fallen in line on one side or the other. And just like editors, when once decided it is hard to get the laymen to see anything to the contrary to that they have been induced to believe.

The gold standard democrats and 16 to 1 democrats are at it on all sides and constantly. The lesser lights among both watch carefully what their respective leaders say. Drive as they do, with an occasional cessation of warlike discussions, but are they in a position to look out ahead and see a point where there is an indication of a solid democracy for the campaign of 1896?

If these people be sincere and we believe it, and a great compromise is not made, nothing is left for them but to set up two national tickets. When men are saturated with the belief that free coinage of silver on any terms is not only unwise but dishonest, they can not be induced to readily support a platform at all favorable to silver. And so, if you reverse the case. Already some prominent men have threatened a belt is so and so occurs.

It is hard to find an easy common ground between the very strong gold standard democrat and the very strong 16 to 1 democrat—the discussion will go on in such way, it is feared, until the great masses of the party will be thrust into an irreconcilable conflict.

The St. Louis Republic, seeing the drift out West, says: "It is none too soon to ask both sides whether they intend to carry this dispute to the conclusion of splitting the Democratic party. The inflammation cannot go much further on either side without making two tickets and Democratic defeat inevitable."

DURHAM'S A PROPHECY.

The Durham Sun, whose editor is the genial, honest Jim Robinson, publishes this editorially:

"If Freeman, in the Caucasian, writing about the Alliance meeting in Wilson county today, and Maj. Gutheie, the speaker, invites the people to 'hear one of the best speakers in the State—the next Governor of North Carolina.' While we are not of the same political opinion as the Major, still we are pleased to hear our townsman spoken of in this way. It is a pleasing pastime. The Major is a good man—a conscientious man—and he would make a far better Governor than any we know in the Populist ranks. But we are strongly inclined to the opinion that Durham will furnish the next Governor of the State—and however kindly we may feel disposed towards the Major we must whisper in his ear that we do not think he will be the man. However, time brings about strange incidents and we may yet see the co-incidence of Durham furnishing the two candidates for Governor of the opposing parties. Such a thing is possible and probable."

[Col. J. H. Carr would be an elegant and good Governor. He deserves the best the State has.]

LOWER STONE CHURCH.

The history of Lower Stone, or rather Grace, is a treasure with the German Reformed church in North Carolina. There is nothing to be ashamed of, but on the other hand it is all to be proud of. That has been a long and splendid life enjoyed by Lower Stone, and the great church deserves it. We complete the history today. THE STANDARD thanks its friend, Rev. Barringer, for the clever write-up.

It is a consolation to know that there is a time lock on the Hor-Harvey moth.

Tillman is hailed as the Andrew Jackson of our day.

Since the original Andrew reduced the per capita circulation by putting the country on a specie basis, the crown offered to Tillman will not fit.

Sam Small was sued for libel by Superintendent Massey, of Virginia. The Pilot lost the suit and the damages were put at $1,600. The next thing the Pilot did was to assign to the tune of $17,000.

Cripple Creek, Col., will soon hold a carnival of sports at which the principal feature will be a genuine bull-fight, after the Spanish fashion with all the fixings and trimmings. A pen 140 feet in diameter has been constructed, and seats to accommodate 10,000 persons are to be built around it. Two toradors from Mexico City have been engaged to conduct the fight. This, it is claimed, will be the first real bull-fight ever given in the United States. The local authorities say the fight will be prevented; but the management is confident of being able to "juggle the law" until the fight shall have been ended.

Professor Garner, the monkey man, is going back to Africa to study up monkey talk. He is sent out by a Chicago company, which has subscribed $30,000 to cover expenses. The Richmond Dispatch informs us that the professor was born in Abingdon, Va., and served in the Confederate army, and for several years after the war taught school. He began to monkey with the monkey language at zoological gardens in Cincinnati.

DOWN ON HORSE RACING.

A Prominent Divine Opposed to the Proposed Races in September—Those Methodists who Attend Will Violate Church Laws.

MR. EDITOR: For some time I have been pleased with all the references made by the "STANDARD" as regards the fair. The thought that our pleasant little city with all its good reputation for sobriety and religion was not to be demoralized by a common fair has been a sound of pleasure to me. But now the announcement is made that we are not to have a fair but only the races. Why should Concord encourage racing? What good can come to Concord by it? I answer absolutely nothing good, but will, and only evil. It is true it will afford an opportunity for the blacklegs and "bums" of the whole county to meet and pour out their demoralizing and degrading influence upon this community.

Where is the good citizen who wants his son to become a gambler? Why then hold this school of gambling in our midst? I do trust that the good people of Concord will frown down any attempt to carry out the proposed races.

It is not worth a cent to deny the statement that with the racing always come drinking, gambling, and a whole host of other evils. Without the gambling there would be no racing. And it goes without argument that the board of directors of the Fair Grounds have if in their power to stop this evil now before it is fully matured. I do not know who these gentlemen are but I do say that if they will leave money out of the question and look only for the good of our city the races will never be.

There is but one stand for Christian men to take on this subject and that is emphatically against the races. And just here let me remind the Methodists of the community that no Methodist can attend the races without violating his solemn vows that he made when he joined the church. And all who do in any way aid and abet in the races should be dealt with as offenders.

Yours for the good of our city. J. R. MOOSE.

A Broken Nose—Baseball the Cause.

A very peculiar will is the one that carries Mr. Will Flowe's nose. While playing baseball Saturday in No. 10 township, the ball passed through his hands, broke his nose and otherwise freckled his face. Mr. Flowe has the sincerest sympathy of his many friends in the city. From the fact that his nose is broken is evidence enough that his face hurts him.

The drainage at the bleachery is being improved, larger and deeper ditches having been dug.

MASSEY GETS DAMAGES.

The Massey-Pilot Libel Suit Ended in a Verdict Saturday.

NORFOLK, Va., July 27.—The jury in the Pilot-Massey libel suit rendered a verdict of $1,600 against Sam W Small and H. B. Byrd and the Pilot Newspaper Company, clearing the directors of the Pilot.

The defendants moved to set aside the verdict as being contrary to the law and evidence. The court overruled the motion.

The defense then moved for a new trial on the ground, that there was irregularity in drawing the jury. There were too many tickets in the box, they claimed. The judge over-ruled this motion. Expectations were noted to each ruling, ten days given defense in which to prepare them.

The suit grew out of publications in the Pilot, then edited by Sam Small, formerly a well-known evangelist, charging bribery against Massey, who is Superintendent of Public Instruction of Virginia, in connection with the State's dealings with what is termed the American School Book Trust.

The libel suit has been on trial in court here for several weeks and interest in it throughout was intense. John S Wise represented the Pilot, and there was some lively passages between him and Massey when the latter was on the stand.

Will Green Come Back?

This is the question you hear asked on all sides—"is Ed. F. Green, the malicious slanderer and vile insulter of ministers, coming back to Sunderland?"

No one seems to know. The better element of the entire section would feel itself under slight obligations to him, did he remain away. He and his malicious and impious conduct are a stench in this community.

THE STANDARD learns that a number of prominent citizens of this community have written the proper authorities asking that Green be withdrawn. They have voiced the sentiment of the entire community that have self respect and love for the good name of our section and above all who resent a most cowardly and dirty insult to two Christian ministers, to say nothing of the mean, fendish allusions to the great church they represent.

This section stands ready to welcome all outsiders who come with good intent and with respect to our customs.

No self-respecting white man, neither will the better element among our colored population, will look with favor upon anyone who comes with malice in his heart, slander on his tongue and pen and with a hellish purpose in his heart to break down the bearers and distinctions which time has made, and who seeks to obliterate the lines that God himself drew.

Any honorable, high-toned, decent Northerner may come and he's given a hearty, Southern welcome—the line must be drawn, in self protection and self respect, against such cattle as Green and his like.

All trust that Sunderland may have for its head in the future some one who has honor, purity and manhood.

A Popular Institution.

Prof. C. L. T. Fisher, principal of Mont Amoenia Seminary at Mt. Pleasant, was in the city Monday evening. He tells us that on his recent trip he had splendid success. Six young ladies, educated at other institutions, will enter Mont Amoenia and take their Senior year. If Mr. Fisher's assurances are fully realized he will have a graduating class of over 20.

A grand work is being done by this man of indomitable energy.

MONEY.

NO. 7 (Continued from first page.)

The foregoing transaction is supposed to have happened in 1895. Suppose that it had happened in 1795, just one hundred years ago. Can a correct idea be obtained as to the value of either the dollar or the corn in 1795? All that we can possibly be certain of is that in 1795, or one hundred years ago, a dollar would purchase two bushels of corn, that is, two bushels of corn were worth a dollar. But the dollar and the corn could have been twice, five, ten, or a hundred times their value in 1895, and still a dollar would have purchased two bushels of corn, or the values of the dollar and the corn might have been only one-fourth, one-half, one-tenth, or one-hundredth part of the values of corn and money in 1895, and still the value of a dollar would have been equal to the value of the two bushels of corn. Money and corn might have been both dear, both cheap, money dear and corn cheap, or money cheap and corn dear, and still in each case the value of a dollar could have been equivalent to the value of two bushels of corn. We can form no idea of the amount of esteem in which the dollar was held in 1795, and cannot tell what was the intensity of the desire for the corn. All we know is that at that time a dollar was considered to have the same value as two bushels of corn, and the contrary.

The fact that there must be a communication of minds in order to effect an exchange of commodities ought to render it clear that the people of 1895 cannot come to a satisfactory conclusion as to the estimate in which the people 1795 held the value of either corn or money. There can be no communication of minds between the people of 1895 and the people of 1795. The people of 1795 put their estimates on the value of commodities. They had their desires to satisfy. So, too, the people of 1895 put their estimates upon the value of commodities. They have their desires to satisfy. But whether the demands or desires of the people of the latter period agree or disagree in every or any particular with the demands or desires of the people of the former, will ever remain a matter of speculation based upon supposition.

Let us get closer to the subject money. In 1792, the U. S. Congress enacted that 371 1/2 grains of pure silver, a certain amount of alloy being mixed with it, should constitute a dollar. The ratio of silver to gold at that time was 15 to 1, that is, the value of fifteen pounds of silver was considered equivalent to the value of one pound of gold. In 1892, the value of thirty pounds of silver was considered equivalent to the value of one pound of gold, the ratio of silver to gold being 30 to 1. If equal weights of the two metals are considered, then, weight for weight, the value of gold at the former period was fifteen times the value of silver, and at the latter period it was thirty times as great. Now it is a characteristic of ratio to compare things that are alike. Yards may be compared with yards, weight with weight, value with value. To compare yards with weight, weight with value, would have no meaning. And further, ratios tell us nothing of the magnitude of the things compared. The ratio of 1 to 10 is the same as the ratio of 10 to 100, of 100 to 1,000. The ratio of 1 to 15 is the same as the ratio of 10 to 150, of 100 to 1,500. When it is said that the ratio of gold to silver, meaning the ratio of the values of the two metals, is 1 to 15, all that the ratio tells us, is that the value of gold is fifteen times the value of silver, equal weights of the metals being taken. The ratio is a definite and well understood quantity, but the values that have been compared are not definite and well known quantities. If a horse is worth three times a colt, we say that the value of the horse is equal to three times the value of the colt, and the ratio of their values is 3 to 1, or 1 to 1. It is clear that the ratio tells us nothing of the values of the horse and colt. All that we can learn from the ratio is that the value of the horse is equal to three times the value of the colt. If the colt is valued at ten dollars, the horse is valued at thirty dollars. If the value of the colt is thirty dollars then the value of the horse is ninety dollars. If the value of the horse is one hundred and twenty dollars then, since the ratio is also 1 to 1, the value of the colt is forty dollars. In each case the value of the horse is three times the value of the colt, or the value of the colt is one-third the value of the horse. We may know the ratio existing between the values, but of the respective values themselves we may be absolutely ignorant. Similarly the ratio of silver to gold may be 15 to 1, or 16 to 1, without our knowing anything whatever of the real values of the two metals, although we may know what the ratios themselves signify. HO! FOR THE RACES!

The Second Week in September is the Time Set—The Course at the Fair Grounds to be Put in the Proper Shape.

Cabarrus will not have a fair this year. She will help Atlanta. But then there will be two days of racing the second week in September. A reporter was told by a party who is well up in racing circles that work would soon begin on the race course and that it would be properly graded and a fence fixed up around the track.

There will be horses and horsemen here from all parts of the South. The size of the purses and the contracts for entering are now being considered. It will be a great time.

We Are Downed, Mr. Landmark.

A Landmark reader, noting an item which appeared in this paper some days ago about a Union county man who conceived the idea that he could, by cutting a race below his mill, run the water back into the pond and thus keep a head of water no matter how dry the weather might be sends the following as a companion piece to it:

"There is an old mill site in Orange county that will bear comparison with the mill in Union county. An old man built a mill out in an old field and expected to run it by shot running over a wheel instead of water. He thought he could carry the shot up an inclined plane and have power enough left to grind."

The Orange county man was certainly ahead of the Union county man.—Monroe Enquirer.

Notes From the Organ.

ORGAN, N. C., July 29, 1895.—Rev. C. A. Brown, of Union parish, preached a very interesting and edifying sermon at Organ last Sunday, subject: "Self Examination," after which the communion was administered to over 300 persons.

The Sunday school at Organ numbers less than 200; now this is only about one-fourth what it should be. There is at least 350 members at Organ church, everyone should be in the Sunday school and at least that many more children and persons not connected with the church. What excuse have they for not belonging to the Sunday school?

Rumor has it that Parson Cox is soon to have a new housekeeper at the parsonage. Only rumor.

The drought still continues. Corn is needing rain very much, while garden truck and such like are literally burning up.

The wheat is mostly threshed, the general yield being about fifty per cent.

Mr. Tom Rinehart, who is living on the Paul Klutz farm, has rented Rev. H. M. Brown's farm adjoining the parsonage, and will move there as soon as his present crop is gathered.

Daniel M. Weaver became suddenly ill this morning. He has symptoms of pneumonia. WHITE.

North Carolina College Reunion.

There will be a reunion of students, ex-students and friends of North Carolina College at St. Paul's church, in Rowan county, and promises to be one of much interest, both to the institution and to the people. An attractive programme for the occasion has been prepared. The exercises will begin at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, and refreshments will be served in the grove. Every person interested in education is invited to attend.

TO MISENHEIMER'S GROVE

The Odd Fellows Have Made a Change of Date and Place for Their Picnic—Saturday Instead of Monday Will They Depute to Pleasant.

At a meeting Monday night of the committee of arrangements for the Odd Fellows picnic, it was decided to change the place of entertainment from McDonald's grove to that of Misenheimer's, on account of the bad water service and the inconvenience of the place.

The date, too, has been changed from Monday to Saturday. It will be a grand affair and Grand Master Lumsley will be here and address the Odd Fellows.

All kinds of amusements have been and are being arranged for the occasion and the public is expected and cordially invited to attend.

There will be special entertainment for children, so let everybody turn out with their families and baskets.

Wed Before Breakfast.

On Sunday morning directly after sun-up, R. v. J. O. Alderman had a call to Annsville, where he married William T. Mayhan, of Fort Mill, S. C., to Miss Nannie A. Forshee, of this place. It was quite an unusual hour for such a ceremony, but like the good man he is, Rev. Alderman proceeded to do the act even without his breakfast.

At Poplar Tent.

No. 2 township Sunday school convention met today at Poplar Tent church, and a large concourse of people gathered there for the occasion. Lawyer M. H. H. Caldwell delivered an address. Rev. W. C. Alexander and others from the city were in attendance. A large crowd went out this afternoon on their bicycles, among whom were Messrs. Gus Correll, Albert Freeze, James Bell, Ross McConnell and Lacy Dick.

The New Church.

The trustees of the Methodist Protestant church held a business meeting Monday night and decided upon the location of their church, that will be erected. It will be built somewhere between the Odell Mills and the Buffalo thread mill. About one-third of the capital required for the building of the church has been subscribed and work will begin on said church in the early fall. It will be a wooden building to cost nearly one thousand dollars.
