Japan is a land without the domestic animals. It is this lack which strikes the stranger so forcibly in looking upon Japanese landscapes.

A POLITICAL SITUATION

A political situation that is probably unique developed in the little town of Acree, near Albany, Ky., last week. It was the annual election of municipal officers, and there were forty-two voters on the list.

IT MAY AND IT MAY NOT BE TRUE

It may and it may not be true that too many boys and young men of this town are growing too fond of playing poker. It is said that the fascination of the game is so sneaking and deceptive that the awful results are not fully known until it is entirely too late.

ELECTRIC BITTERS.

Electric Bitters is a medicine suited for any season, but perhaps more generally needed, when the languid exhausted feeling prevails, when the liver is torpid and sluggish and the needs of a tonic and alterative is felt.

THE DARK-WHISKERED EVANGELIST

Proctor, preached in "new town" at Forest Hill Friday night. His welcome in that part of the city is not very cordial, and if the nights were as cold as our citizens are to this class of moralizers and soul saving instruments, they would soon be "frozen out."

FROM A LETTER WRITTEN BY REV. J. GUNDERMAN

of Dimondale, Mich. we are permitted to make this extract: "I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were almost marvelous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the Baptist Church at Rives Junction she was brought down with pneumonia succeeding La Grippe.

MONEY.

NO. 19.

Let us examine the subject of money and prices a little further, and to fix our attention let us consider our own community which is only a part of a still bigger community.

Looking at the community we observe, say, two classes of persons, viz: dealers and producers. The dealers buy and sell, the producers produce and sell. Each class is dependent in a greater or less degree upon the other.

Now, if more money be placed in the community, what effect will it have on prices? This question can not be answered with any degree of certainty until it be ascertained into what hands the money goes. If the money goes into the hands of the dealers, it will, no doubt, increase the activity of trade. Money will be plenty and dealers will be anxious to buy.

If the money that was put into the community should go into the hands of the producer for the purpose of improving their means of production, that is, if the manufacturers should use it to improve their machinery and to extend their operations so as to produce more yarn, cloth, etc., or if the farmer should use it to improve his lands, tools, etc., thereby increasing the number and amount of commodities to be put on the market for sale, the market would be likely to be over-supplied, and as a consequence prices would fall.

If money should be put in the hand, say, of farmers to enable them to pay their bills and hold their products for future sale, it would have the effect of diminishing the supply of products temporarily in which case prices would be likely to rise. But as the amount of produce would not be decreased by withholding them from the market, and as they would ultimately have to go on the market, prices would fall again to their natural economic level.

If the money should be placed in the hands of parties who are engaged in constructing railroads, building houses, etc., it would be used to purchase such labor, supplies, and materials as might be needed in their business, and consequently the price of only a part of the products of the community might be affected.

Mistook Keel: Other for Burglar.

Hagerstown, Md., Oct. 18.—Ambrose Gray went home last night about 12 o'clock and got into the house of his neighbor, William Carr, thinking he was going into his own. The houses are exactly alike and are side by side. He had to kick the door before he could effect an entrance. Carr thought a burglar was in the house, and leaping from bed he began firing upon the intruder. Gray on the other hand thought he was surprising a burglar in his house and began firing in return. Six shots were exchanged. Gray was wounded in the hand, while Carr was shot in the stomach. Neither of the wounds are thought to be serious.

Why She Stopped.

Walter Sadler was walking with his best girl by a lumber yard the other night, and all at once she began to blush and blush, and Walter said my darling why do those roses all tastings enounce themselves in the opulent luxuriance of that peach bloom beauty found on the starlike surface of thy parian alabaster cheeks? She replied it was because all that lumber was undressed. Walter hid his face behind a nickle-kent up against a zephyr and wept.—Wilson Mirror.
