SIX SENSES

Were Once Owned by Humans-Hou the Pact Was Discovered.

One of the greatest discoveries of physiology is that we once had six senses. What the lost sense was no one knows, and probably no one will ever know. But that our forefathers possessed it there is no doubt for the remains of that part of the brain in which it resided are still to be seen in any one of us.

These remains are simply a small and now perfectly usoless little mass of brain substance, called the "pituitary body." It consists of two tiny little oval lobes joined together, and lying in a little cavity of the skull, strangely named the solla turcica, and situated over and behind the

It is quite possible that it may dles were invented, or it may have placed them in communion with ghosts and fairles, or it may have been an organ that enabled them to go home in a bee line when they loss their way in the primeval

On the other hand, it is possible that it was a bad substitute for vision or smell or hearing, and died out when the improved sense organ developed .- Ex.
