

Souls Responsive to Tender Emotions.
The scenes which marked the close of the General assembly of 1901 will ever be remembered tenderly by those who participated in them. After the business had been completed in the House and while awaiting announcement of adjournment of the Senate, members engaged in singing heart-touching songs and it is rarely the case that a body of strong men reach such a melting mood. The Speaker made a brief farewell address, with his eyes full of tears. After this the doxology was sung, followed by sentimental and soul-stirring songs and then goodbyes were exchanged and the session of 1901 was practically over. Such scenes as we have referred to may be criticised by stoics as childish, but they impressed us as evidencing that man is something more than animal, that he has a soul responsive to tender emotions and that not entirely forgotten is the new commandment, "that ye love one another."—Western Sentinel.

No Editors in Hell.
An editor died and slowly wended his way to hell. The devil met him and said: "For many years hast thou borne the blame for the errors thy printers have made in the paper. The printers have deviled thee on Saturday eve for wages when thou hadst not a red to thy name. Men have taken thy paper without paying a cent, yea, verily, and cursed thee for not issuing a better one. Thou canst not come in. In this place there will be a continual dunning of delinquent subscribers (hell is full of them) and the sad wailings of the town killers will be like unto an amateur brass band playing a dirge in rag time. Begone! Heaven is your home."—Ex.

A Dead Liar.
A rumor comes from Arizona to the Denver Post that the Hon. Joe Mulholland, the liar laureate of the world, is dead. If this be true, it would be just like those appreciative Arizonians to carve with a jack knife upon his head board something like this: Here lies what's left of liar Joe A truly gifted liar, Who could out lie the liar below In realms of flame and fire. He lied in life, in death he lies, And if, his lies forgiven, He made a landing in the skies. He plays the lyre in heaven.—Ex.

Systematic Bank Robbers.
A little troop of safe robbers wrecked a bank at Somerset, Pa. Tuesday morning early, getting $5,000. They left more, however, which they failed to find. They were hurried up by a fusillade from citizens and they went off under fire and were pursued with blood hounds. The leader commanded the movements as a military officer would.

Nicaraguan Canal Must Come.
The American people are long tolerant as to the shortcomings of public servants, and are disposed to look rather with charity than anger at their laches, even though the latter may at times entail public disappointments and breaches of faith difficult to reconcile with public duties and popular demands, created by party platforms and official declarations.
This applies with strong force to the Nicaragua Canal and its treatment in the National Congress during the past decade, when public hopes and expectations have been raised by both of the great National parties regarding this enterprise of acknowledged importance to the American people, the inauguration of which has so often appeared on the threshold of realization. The public has accepted the excuses offered for delays in good faith, and swallowed its disappointments with as good a grace as possible, but there are indications that public patience has been exhausted on this subject and that henceforth there must be no trifling on this matter.
From various sections of the country the strongest expressions have been heard demanding that the United States shall proceed with the building of the canal, and this sentiment is destined to grow from now until the assembling of the next Congress, when, if favorable action is not promptly had regarding it, some thing may be expected to drop on those who become responsible for its defeat. This is all that Southern Industry cares to say on this subject at this time, but the feeling that the canal must be built by the United States is in the air, and woe be to any public official who permits anything to defeat or further delay its construction.—Southern Industry.

Remarable Cures of Rheumatism.
(From the Violator, Rotterdam, N. C.)
The editor of the Violator has had occasion to test the efficacy of Chamberlain's Pain Balm twice with the most remarkable results in each case. First, with rheumatism in the shoulder from which he suffered excruciating pain for ten days, which was relieved with two applications of Pain Balm, rubbing the parts afflicted and realizing instant benefit and entire relief in a very short time. Second, he was afflicted with rheumatism in his right hip, almost paralyzing him with severe pain, which was relieved by two applications, rubbing with the balm on retiring at night and getting up free from pain. MR. ALFRED LITAKER DEAD.
Aged 62—Leaves a Wife But No Children—A Gallant Confederate Soldier.
Mr. Alfred Litaker died at his home on Union street at 8 o'clock a. m. this, the 29th, at the age of 62 years.
He was a citizen of Concord for long years and was well known.
In the great civil war he entered the service in Co. A, 20th N. C. Regiment, and received a wound in the left ankle at Cold Harbor on the 27th of June, 1862, which rendered him unfit for regular service and he served the remainder of the war on special detail. He was a gallant soldier.
He leaves a wife but no children.
The funeral services will be held at the first Presbyterian church Saturday at 2 p. m. and the remains will be laid to rest in the city cemetery.
—Daily of 29th.

An Emporium of Beauty.
The opening on Wednesday at Miss Mary Brachen's was a show indeed. The writer, while not capable of a critical view, can only say it was the prettiest display he ever saw in Concord. The roses seem to beat nature at her own game, and the arrangement was exquisite to a degree that astonishes a clothopper men at woman's resources at combining things of beauty to exaggerate the very conceptions of the aesthetic. Of course one of the interesting features is an exact reproduction of Mrs. McKinley's inauguration hat. It has the merit, too, of not equaling two umbrellas at church or theatre.
A very cute window display is two Easter rabbits. The Miss in the other window has donned her Easter attractions.
University Catalogue.

We are in receipt of the catalogue of the University of North Carolina for the academic year 1900-1901. This catalogue shows for this session the large total attendance of 524 students. Of this number 391 are enrolled in the Academic Department. The Professional Schools have a total enrollment of 135, divided as follows: the Law School 64, the Medical School 42, the School of Pharmacy 32. This is the largest enrollment in the history of the institution.
The facilities of the University have been greatly increased by the construction of two new dormitories, which will accommodate 150 students and a building for recitation rooms. The total cost of these buildings will be $65,000. The increased appropriation of the Legislature will make possible an increase in the teaching force and additional equipment which will insure the best work.
Excellent water works are in full operation and a central heating plant will be installed before the beginning of the next session.

Death by Fork Prong.
The Wilkesboro Chronicle notes the death of little Roy Parlier at Kings Creek on Saturday the 23rd, by accident quite peculiar.
Mr. John Parlier, the father, had a colored man throwing out manure from the stable Little Roy was running past the stable door just as the fork was tossed out and a prong struck the boy and pierced the skull. He died in about 6 hours.

Handsome Tribute to Turner.
Mr. J. P. Caldwell, writing from Raleigh to the Charlotte Observer says:
"I have learned from the talk of men of all parties and factions of parties to know that the man who has grown most in North Carolina within the past 90 days is the Lieutenant Governor. As the presiding officer of the Senate and as chairman of the high court of impeachment he has borne himself as to have won the approbation of everybody. Lieutenant Governor Turner has more friends than he ever had before and it is the result of having done everybody and all interests right."

JUDGES ACQUITTED.
How the Vote Stood—Managers Would Withdraw Article But Senators Would Go On Record.
The great impeachment trial closed Thursday.
After Mr. Watson's speech Senator London moved an immediate vote which prevailed and on the first article there were 27 for conviction, 23 for acquittal; on the second, 23 for and 24 against; on the third, 26 for and 24 against; on the fourth, 25 for, 25 against; on the fifth, 16 for, 34 against conviction.
After the first article was voted on the managers desired to withdraw the charges but Senators wished to go on record and all the items were voted upon and the vote shows a drifting toward acquittal.
President Turner forewarned that no demonstrations would be allowed and there were none save hand-clapping after adjournment.
The acquitted judges were showered with congratulations after the adjournment.
Magnificent Work on South Union.
The job of filling up the big hole made by filling the great dip on South Union street is now complete and the space between Mr. L. D. Coltrane and Mr. D. F. Barrier is now ready for building sites of the very best in the town. This would have seemed a stupendous job but a few years ago. It is a monument to the progressiveness of the projectors and we hope each interested party will reap adequate financial reward.

Note of Thanks.
Mr. N. T. Blackwelder, of No. 4 township, asks us to express to friends in the neighborhood and citizens of Concord and all others who aided in replacing a neat and comfortable house on his farm where one was burned recently, his most profound sense of gratitude for such kindness so timely when his physical affliction made it so difficult to accomplish anything himself.

The Beautiful for the Beautiful.
The week of millinery openings has closed but not the better part, the selling. The department store took two days and made a good display of the artistic crowning of the feminine charms. Miss Brachen's display we already noted. Miss Alexander who always carries a stock to meet all demands had no less than an elegant display. Miss Hicks presides over the millinery department at D. P. Dayvault & Bro's and exhibited some most handsome specimens of artistic manipulations of the beautiful for the beautiful. Tomorrow promises to suit to wear the former productions. If tomorrow a week be fair and balmy much of the choice of all these displays will be transferred to the pews to lend additional fascinations to the complacent physiognomies beneath them.

Probably the Most Magnificent Building in the South Lies in Ashes in Richmond.
The magnificent Hotel Jefferson, in the very fashionable part of Richmond, Va., was burned Friday night, the 29th. It was a $1,000,000 structure and was hardly excelled in the South in its grandeur. It fronted on two streets and was connected in the center by a beautiful conservatory between. While the building was considered almost fire proof it burned in its entirety.
There were no lives lost but it required great effort to save all the guests, many of whom lost their baggage. A few were hurt in falling down stairs and scrambling out.

King Edward Much Pleased.
It will be remembered that the late Legislature passed a resolution of sympathy and condolence to King Edward and the English on the death of Queen Victoria. On the 25th Secretary of State Grimes received the following:
"British Embassy, Washington, March 22. Sir: I have the honor to inform you that I duly forwarded to the Marquis of Lansdowne for transmission to its high destination the resolution sent to me by you on behalf of the State of North Carolina on the occasion of the deeply lamented death of Her late Majesty, Queen Victoria, Empress of India. The King was much pleased at this touching tribute to the memory of the late Queen, and I am instructed to convey to you His Majesty's most sincere thanks for this highly appreciated mark of sympathy."
"I have the honor to be, Sir, Yours obediently,
"PAUNCEFOOT."

An Evening With Verdi and Nevin.
It would be hard to imagine anything more enjoyable than an evening with Verdi and Nevin—a pleasure that awaited the hospitable and spacious parlors of Sunderland Hall Thursday evening. If Nature herself had been one of the favored guests having an invitation for this event she could not have smiled more propitiously, the balmy air of early spring having just enough of the spice of winter to lend an eager zest, and the moonlight being all that even an unconscious victim of cupid could ask.

The program, just long enough, was divided equally between the masters whom the guests were to enjoy, Verdi and Nevin, each part being introduced by a sketch, the first by Miss Montgomery and the second by Miss Goss, both of which in graceful style, elegant diction and rare discrimination in the selection of interesting events fitting for the occasion, did honor to the distinguished subjects.
By way of illustration, the best efforts of these masters were rendered by the following ladies, the mention of whose name to a Concord audience is sufficient evidence of the elegance with which it was done—Misses Harris, Goss, Cole, Lora, Harris, Moss and Craven. The unavoidable absence of Miss Addie Patterson, who was on the programme for a number, was regretted by both hostess and guests.

After partaking of refreshments more substantial than intellectual and musical, but equally as elegant, the guests departed to carry with them for many days the memory of a most delightful evening.

AGUINALDO CAUGHT.
Gen Funston Makes a Complete Success of His Darling Plan.
A Manila dispatch of the 25th says Gen. Frederick Funston, who has before made a most brilliant record in the Philippines, made a complete success of his daring venture to capture the wily leader Aguinaldo. The latter had appointed to meet parties in the province of Isabela, island of Luzon. The scheme was given to Gen. Funston who took a few select Americans and a group of friendly Filipinos and laid a trap which caught his game.
The Gen. arrived on the morning of the 25th at Manila with his distinguished prisoner.

Maybe, Maybe.
That was a sad case printed in the Bee yesterday of where the North Carolina father came to Danville to get his daughter who had gone astray. She had been a good girl at home; had been a member of the church and Sunday school—and she had left home and stopped in Danville and chose to become a woman of the town. All the time that she was living beneath the roof of the red-lit windows which floated the scarlet flag of sin she wrote to her people letters full of cheer and hope and told how she was prospering as a sewing girl. Finally the eyes of the old people were opened by a friend. The father came, bowed down with grief, and found his unmarried daughter with a child six weeks of age, and he took her to his arms and carried her back to her home—back where innocence and virtue and love and hope still dwelled. How many fathers would have done what that old man did? Many, doubtless, but not all. So as he carried his sorrow in silence and returned with the soiled and polluted daughter, maybe, maybe somewhere beyond this world of strife, a white-winged angel saw what the old man did and wrote upon the scroll: "Both shall be saved!"—Danville Bee.

A Night of Terror.
"Awful anxiety was felt for the widow of the brave General Burnham, of Machias, Me., when the doctors said she would die from pneumonia before morning," writes Mrs. S. H. Lincoln, who attended her that fearful night, but she begged for Dr. King's New Discovery, which had more than once saved her life, and cured her of consumption. After taking, she slept all night. Further use entirely cured her." This marvellous medicine is guaranteed to cure all throat, chest and lung diseases. Only 50c and $1. Trial bottles free at Fetter's drug store.

Freaks of Nature.
When it comes to freaks, Guilford county always comes in for her share of the glory.
A farmer living about three miles south of town has a healthy, full developed, two weeks' old calf whose body is covered with a luxuriant growth of black wool. In other words, having wool where hair ought to be. The owner of this calf wants it distinctly understood that the calf's mother does not give goat's milk, as might be supposed by some folks.
Guilford county has another farmer who owns a two-headed goat, each head having a ravenous appetite—eating all those things that goats relish, such as tin cans, barbed wire, etc.—Greensboro Record.

Handkerchiefs are not naturally quarrelsome, but they often come to blows."
