The elevator in Mill No. 4, at Forest Hill became "cranky" at twelve. Seven or eight boys and young ladies were descending; when the elevator began moving so rapidly two young ladies jumped from it a distance of nearly 14 feet. An exchange says: Some of our exchanges are criticising the word remains, as it is used by pulpit and press but we did not learn what they would substitute for it as they only say it is indecent and really incorrect. The Business Men's Jubilee.

Some of the ladies of our town have secured this copyright of this entertainment for our prosperous little city and they will soon call upon the Business men, to solicit their advertisements. The Entertainment is intended to represent all the business interests of the town and every profession and industry is to be well advertised in a very novel and attractive way for which a small fee may be charged. Many prominent citizens have given this entertainment and we copy what they say of it. The ladies paid quite a nice little sum to procure it, after satisfying themselves that it was a most useful and taking way, of advertising the town and we bespeak for them a cordial response to their request for your advertisement; some young lady will be chosen to represent each business and the firm may select any special article it most wishes to call the attention of the public to; the jubilee is always the same in every town; music, scenes, and recitations abound; more cannot be told as the surprises are said to be the most effective part of the evening's enjoyment.
