

Doctors Differ.

EDITOR STANDARD: I see in the Standard of the 23d instant, over the signature of J E L Winecoff, a question directed, possibly, to me, respecting the Waldensians, with this statement: "The forms and doctrines of the Waldensians have remained unchanged since 1100." Strange assertion. Schaif-Herzog says as late as 1530 the Waldensians believed in transubstantiation. Rev. R D Hitchcock, D. D., a Presbyterian, says in Johnson's Universal Encyclopedia: "As late as 1520 or 1524 their form of government was Episcopal." Possibly Brother Winecoff can respect these authorities. Most scholars do. Respectfully,
W. A. LUTZ.

Melling's Mill News.

Another marriage last week. Some of our farmers have gone into the fertilizer business, quite lively this year. Miss Ada S Fisher boarded the train last Tuesday for Maiden. There will be preaching at Grace church on the first Sunday in April. James Fisher and John L. O. Brown started for Ohio last Wednesday.

The Billville Banner.

This is the first Sunday we have been home since Washington. Our six votes are on record there, however, and we still hope for the best.

Three collections will be taken up in church today. Our expenses in Washington were quite heavy, and we need the money.

Our application for the postoffice has been refused and we will still be compelled to pay regular postage on our newspaper. A government corporation has no soul.

During our enforced absence from home our relations kept house for us. Brethren, if you have any groceries, we need them now.

Six men who owed us $6 died and left us the money in their wills. As soon as we finish suing their administrators we'll either be dead broke, or in the poorhouse.

Our family and the twins are doing right well. We still live and believe in free salvation.—Atlanta Constitution.

Red Hair.

In Henry Bebel's "Collection of Proverbs," published in 1512, occurs the following: "Proud are the short; untrustworthy the red haired."

A French proverb 500 years old, says: "Salute a red-headed man or bearded woman at thirty feet off with three stones in thy fists to defend thee if need be."

In early times all pictures of Judas were shown with shocks of red hair. This and the fact that the Judas in the "Miracle Plays" was provided with a red hirsute worked the superstitious people of the middle ages up to such a degree that it was actually unsafe for a red-haired person to appear in company. Writers of all classes began to denounce "the senseless prejudice against those of lively colored hair." Cyrano de Bergerac, in his "States and Empires of the Sun" said:

"A brave head, covered with red hair, is nothing else but the sun in the midst of his rays, yet many speak ill of it because few have the honor to be so."

The adjective, "Judas-colored hair," and many similar allusions are often met with in writings of the older authors. In "As You Like It," Rosalind says of Orlando, "His very hair is of that dissembling color," to which Celia replies, "Something browner than Judas."

Dryden, writing of Jacob Tounson, a publisher whom he thoroughly despised, says: "He has leering looks, bull-faced and freckled fair."

Two left legs and Judas-colored hair.
