FREAKISH CORN EARS.

A Man Brings a Cob to Town. Each Grain of Which is Surrounded by Perfect Shucks.

The ingenuity of man has hit upon a plan by which corn and fodder can be grown together. As soon as the new crop comes generally into favor there will be no more fodder racks and hay will not be used as extensively as stock feed as it is at present.

Mr. W. H. Prickett who lives five and a half miles south of Atlanta brought a new fashioned ear of corn into the city this morning and all who saw it wondered. It was very much like the ordinary ear of corn as far as the cob was concerned, but there the likeness ended, for instead of having a big shuck over the cob and the grains, each grain was provided with a shuck of its own. These little shucks were as perfect as the big shuck, only they enveloped a single grain instead of the whole ear.

A genius from South Carolina who did not explain how he came to possess this new fashioned corn had some of it at the exposition. He sold it at one cent a grain to all who desired to plant it. Mr. Prickett bought 50 grains for which he paid a half dollar. He planted the 50 grains in the spring, and although this has been a very unfavorable year for all kinds of crops he has made from the few grains he planted six bushels of corn.

The grains that were planted with the shuck around them produced the same kind of corn, but those from which the shuck had been stripped produced ordinary everyday corn, with the shuck around the whole ear instead of around each grain.

Mr. Prickett claims that there is much merit in the new-fashioned corn, as it will be invaluable for stock. The whole ear can be fed to the stock and the cattle, and they will get the benefit of both the corn and the shucks. This will save much feed in the shape of shucks that are wasted as corn is now fed. The new corn is quite a curiosity, to say the least of it.

A Little Disappointed.

A large crowd was in town to-day, the drawing card being the hanging of Frank Howard, which did not take place. Of course it was generally understood that only a few was to have witnessed the execution, but those who are curious and naturally love to be on hand from all sections—some from neighboring counties, were here.

It was a disappointment to many that the hanging did not take place, while others are satisfied with the turn of affairs.

Howard a Scared Negro.

Quite a large crowd of colored people and a few curious whites went to the depot Friday evening, when Frank Howard was taken to Raleigh, and as the train was rolling up there was such a racket and so much confusion on the outside of the office that the negro criminal thought certain that a mob had come to take his life. He was surely a scared negro, and for the first time since his arrest showed signs of fear.

A Prayer for Girls.

You ask for a little prayer. Here is one written by Jeremy Taylor in his effort to teach the world what was meant by holy living: "Teach me to watch over all my ways that I may never be surprised by sudden temptations or a careless spirit, nor ever return to folly and vanity. Set a watch, O Lord, before my mouth, and keep the door of my lips, that I offend not in my tongue, neither against piety nor charity. Teach me to think of nothing but Thee, and what is in order to Thy glory and service: to speak nothing but of Thee and Thy glories, and to do nothing but what becomes Thy servant, whom Thy infinite mercy, by the grace of Thy holy spirit, hath sealed up to the day of Redemption."—Ruth Ashmore in October Ladies' Home Journal.
