MR. L. C. CALDWELL.

This citizen of Statesville brought up in Concord and so well known here came to Concord and addressed the people last night in the court house.

Two years ago he entered the Democratic race for solicitor of this judicial district, but it was soon seen in Convention at Salisbury that his hopes were to be blasted. For awhile he seemed true to the cause of Democracy and made some vigorous speeches in the campaign. He seemed then to have principle or sagacity enough to hold him on a political poise, but alas! as if intoxicated by the desire for something too slow at coming in the Democratic party he lost his balance and made a flop to the Populist party.

There too he found plenty who thought they were quite capable of filling all the offices within the gift of the party and Mr. Caldwell is left out. Now he is using his vehement powers and his eloquence that might do good in a good cause if it were not mixed up with foul and dirty yarns in heaping abuse on the party that is today just what it was when he was defending and championing it. The party has not changed since he was in it. Mr. Caldwell has done the changing. And for what? Does he think that sensible Populists are going to put any confidence in him? Do they not know that he is liable to be somewhere else two years from now and just as venomous toward them as he is now to his former friends and political associates that were not quite certain that he was true enough to be placed above all others.

We did not hear Mr. Caldwell's speech last night, being otherwise engaged, but we have it from reliable source that it was very vile in its tone in point of calumny and immodesty.

It was the thing to be expected by those who have kept an eye on Mr. Caldwell. The part most deplorable was its tone of alienation of the different elements of citizens. This has been avoided by most of our speakers in the campaign.

He would have the negroes to believe that the Democrats endorse Ben Tillman and his methods and are seeking to disfranchise them, when it is a well known fact that Democrats in North Carolina do not take to Tillmanism and that it was the Populists who got him to come here and address the people two years ago.

Mr. Caldwell may go on in his inglorious course to the disgust of those naturally most interested in him and to the regret of those who are in politics as far as patriotism dictates, but it will work evil to himself and to the interests of what should be dear to every citizen, a peaceable, quiet and happy frame of mind between man and man.

We have builders in our town that do not dread inspection or just criticism, but they do dread the power of evil men in the quick destruction of their wise and painstaking building.

The work of many good and patriotic efforts may be badly shattered in unthinking minds by injudicious and sinister speeches.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The fac-simile signature of Dr. J. C. Peck is on every wrapper.

Russell on Civil Rights.

It ought not to be forgotten that when Russel was a Judge in the days of Reconstruction, he rendered a decision that negroes had a right to sit in theatres with the white people even against the will of the owner of the theatre. The Radical Supreme Court couldn't stand this Civil Rights decision, and he was overruled.—News & Observer.

A Financial Question.

The colonel had been missed at the Ague Club for the last week. Yesterday he reported there as of old. "What's the matter? Where have you been?" queried one of the boys.

"There's a note over there in the bank that's been bothering me a little," confessed the old man.

"Ah, I see," continued the questioner; "you've been trying to meet that note."

"Nope," was the frank reply; "I've been trying to find a place where it wouldn't meet me."—Chicago Times-Herald.
