WM. J. BRYAN.

No one can have watched Wm. J. Bryan through this remarkable campaign without being impressed with his wonderful powers that sustained a zeal born of implicit faith that he was leading a cause for the people against accumulated wealth and his confidence that the people would flock to his standard. The cause he felt was that of the people rather than his own. Now that his star of hope has sunk no wonder that his manly face should blanch and his wonderful powers of speech should rest in silence if not in gloom.

What Presidential candidate ever wrought as he did? When we review his peerless campaign and study that manly face and measure his great sincerity of heart his defeat seems only like the surrender of the immortal Lee at Appomattox.

What if he did fall into an occasional vein of bitterness, and what if some of his efforts smacked of resentment? Did not he have a terrible enemy to fight, and if the cause was to be contested, could it be done with dove-like gentleness?

No essential to a great leader seems wanting in Mr. Bryan, but he espoused a cause carrying with it an experiment for which the nation is not ready, and we believe defeat means a loathness to tinker with so great an institution as the nation's finance rather than any lack of personal admiration for Mr. Bryan. Defeat cannot lessen our admiration for him and we feel a personal friendship never before experienced for a vanquished political hero.

The Washington Post, in an editorial of Tuesday last, says of the famous leader:

"We think it proper to say of Mr. Bryan personally, however, that there need be nothing of humiliation or distress to him in the contemplation of his defeat. He has borne himself with courage and devotion from the beginning to the end of the campaign. He has exhibited such qualities of endurance, such sublimity of faith in himself and in his mission, such a power over men, such gifts of eloquence and magnetism, as may truly be said to be without parallel in the history of American politics. He takes us back eight hundred years to the days of Peter the Hermit, who, with his fiery appeals to passion and to shame, to indignation and to pity, to valor and to chivalry, turned all Christendom to tears and groans and set in motion those tremendous armies which, under Godfrey de Bouillon, Hugh of Flanders, Bohemond and Tancred, marched through Paynim's food until they gazed upon the spires and minarets and domes of Jerusalem, the Holy City. He has swayed multitudes as no political orator ever did before. He has moved men and women to sorrow and rejoicing, to hope and fear, to such exaltation as seemed beyond the experience of humanity in these days. That he was earnest, sincere, beyond the thought of selfishness and sordid appetite, we verily believe. Deluded, mistaken, blinded he may have been, but honest, fearless, ardent as the day. His will be a defeat without dishonor, for, as we judge the man, he has never for one moment harbored a base hope or entertained an unworthy or ignoble purpose."

The Discovery Saved His Life.

Mr. G. Cailloutte, Druggist, at Beaverville, Ill., says: To Dr. King's New Discovery I owe my life. Was taken with La Grippe and tried all the physicians for miles about, but of no avail and was given up and told I could not live. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in my store I sent for a bottle and began its use and from the first dose began to get better, and after using three bottles was up and about again. It is worth its weight in gold. We won't keep store or house without it. Get a free trial at Fetzer's Drug Store.

Hillyer's Wonders and Grand Gift Carnival.

Hillyer's Wonders and Gift Carnival will be at Armory Hall Saturday night, Nov. 7, and Monday night, Nov. 9th.

Of this entertainment the Atlanta Constitution of October 16th says: "Hillyer's gift show gave a remarkable performance of mysteries of spiritualism and mind reading at the Lyceum last night. Aside from the presents, which were really elegant beyond expectation, the show was well worth double the price of admission. Miss Belmont's second sight and mind reading baffles human belief and should be seen. She told with wonderful accuracy all manner of remarkable things, even describing a pretended murder scene. The spirit tests of Miss Hillyer are very mysterious and the best ever seen here. The coat test especially was extremely ludicrous and funny. The leading prize was a handsome gold watch and won by a young lady."

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

is the standard family remedy of the world for colds, coughs and lung diseases. It is not a palliative, and is not therefore put up in small cheap bottles. It is put up in large bottles for the household. They cost more but cure more.

Fads come and go but no theory or fad can overthrow the fact, that the greatest cure for all colds, coughs and throat and lung diseases, is Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.
