WHOLE NO. 1,571

THE HERRMAN COLLEGE.

Some changes made in the original plans are being expected here within ten days. When work will be commenced.

Rev. Mr. King, of the Southern Presbyterian College, has been in Concord a few days past, consulting the architect relative to some of the original plans of the buildings which it has been thought desirable to make. It has been determined that the work has been done on the grounds here. After the plans had been adopted, the building was where improvements could be made, and the architect has now indicated them in the revised plans. Mr. King is expected in Concord within the next ten days, when the work will be commenced with all possible delay as possible.

The excavations for the foundation have already been dug, and they will not be materially changed. It is reasonably sure that the buildings will be ready for the proposed opening of the big building next October. The committee on building wants to be right and make no mistake at the start, and in this the members have displayed sound judgment. Once the work begins it will be pushed rapidly to a finish, and next October will see a cluster of magnificent buildings on the wooded hill overlooking the State from the east.—Charlotte Observer.

WHAT THE RETURNS SHOWS.

Precious Small Populist Vote for Republicans in the Ninth, Eighth, Fifth and Second.

A post-mortem examination of the election returns disclose some interesting facts. These returns show that in the five congressional districts carried by the Populists the total vote received by the Populist candidates was 99,531. In these districts McKinley received 77,179 votes. It is fair to assume that 75,000 of these votes were cast by Republicans for the Populist candidates. In return for these 75,000 Republican votes it appears that the Populists gave Pearson, in the ninth, 140 votes; Linney, in the eighth, 750 votes; Settle, in the fifth, none; White, in the second, none. In other words, in carrying out the "arrangement" made by the two State committees, the Populists received 75,000 votes from Republicans, and gave in return less than 1,000 votes.

These returns also show that if each of the three parties had nominated straight tickets in each of the congressional districts every Populist candidate would have been defeated by more than 5,000 pluralities, and that the Republicans would have carried the first, third and sixth districts, and the Democrats would have carried the fourth and seventh districts, making the representation stand in the Fifty-fifth Congress six Republicans and three Democrats.

If these facts have no influence upon the present situation, they may be profitable in shaping the make-up of future "arrangements." —P. B. DEE in Charlotte Observer.

The Electoral College Meets.

The Electoral College met at Raleigh Tuesday according to law. Dr. Tyre York was absent. The electors proceeded to organize by electing Hon. B. B. Davis the Populist elector at large as chairman and W. D. Merritt as Secretary. They then adjourned till Wednesday 12 when it was learned that York was sick. It was the opinion of the Attorney General that the college had no authority to declare a vacancy and could not then fill one. The meeting adjourned till Jan. 11, '97.

GIVEN TO SHARKEY.

Though Fitz Knocks Out the Sailor the Referee Calls it a Foul.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 2.—The ten-round contest between Fitzsimmons and Tom Sharkey was witnessed by 15,000 people. One hundred blue-coats were on hand to see that order was preserved and that the law was not over-stepped. Everything went off quietly and no interference was found necessary. Betting was in favor of the Australian.

Sharkey fouled several times and spectators say the fight should have been given to Fitzsimmons in the third round, when the sailor made a palpable foul. The referee seemed to have it in for Bob, however, and could not see the unfairness of his opponent.

Fitzsimmons knocked Sharkey down at will, but he took his medicine bravely, and came up to the scratch smiling till the eighth round, when Bob landed his right in Sharkey's face twice in rapid succession, and the sailor was carried away to his corner (by) as a dish-rag.

The crowd cheered Fitzsimmons to the echo, but when the uproar subsided the referee announced that the fight had been given to Sharkey on a foul by Fitzsimmons. The unanimous sentiment is that the Australian had been robbed in a most cold-blooded manner. He came out of the fight without a scratch.

George Buckler Here.

Buckler's Big Stock Company with brass band and orchestra arrived in Concord this morning. They play a three night engagement at Armory Hall, opening this evening in the great melodrama "Led Astray or the Wages of Sin."

Among the stellar lights both the classic and modern drama none shine more brilliantly than Mr. George Buckler and his beautiful and charming wife, Eleanor Newton.

Mr. and Mrs. Buckler bring with them this season direct from the Grand Opera House at Washington, D. C., one of the strongest supporting companies that ever left the city of New York.

A special feature of the Buckler's Big Stock Company this year is his superb uniformed brass band and orchestra. It is composed entirely of finished solo musicians, and every member is an artist. Their concerts alone are worth the price of admission. They are the talk of every town and the delight of all who hear them. The band is under the leadership of the famous bandmaster, Mr. J. C. Cornelius, and the direction of the orchestra is in the hands of Mr. H. L. Baker, the celebrated clarinet soloist.

Tomorrow evening "East Lynne" will be presented. On Saturday afternoon at two o'clock there will be a ladies and children's matinee when "The Two Orphans" will be given, and the engagement will close Saturday night with a grand production of "Ten Nights in a Barroom." Popular prices at night: 25, 35 and 50 cents. Matinee 25 cents to everybody.

Death at Forest Hill.

Miss Ella Gadd, aged 18, surrounded by loving friends, last night passed quietly to the great beyond. She had suffered with pneumonia only a few days. The remains will be shipped today (Thursday) to Stanly county, her former home, for interment.
