MAJOR FINGER.

Death has drawn the pall over this distinguished citizen. A bright star in the educational sky has sunk behind the brink of mortal life. "The workman dies but the work goes on," is probably true of educators above most other men. Our subject entered the Confederate service and was made quartermaster sergeant, then captain, collector of taxes in the Charlotte district, then major and collector of taxes for the State. When the war ended he associated himself with Dr. J. C. C. app, of Catawba College, till 1874, when his health gave way, and he had to abandon the school room, but his interest in the educational work never abated. He served in both branches of the State Legislature, and from 1884 to 1893 he served the State as superintendent of public instruction in which office he left a good record.

He took a lively interest in political affairs, especially in the late campaign. While he was not in robust health his death was quite unexpected and was a severe shock to the community at Newton.

He was an unassuming character of much real worth, commanding the esteem and the respect of all. He leaves a wife, but no children.

PASTEUR TREATMENT FAILED.

About a month ago eight boys in Baltimore were bitten by a rabid dog. They were all treated at a Pasteur hospital in New York. Three have died of hydrophobia and indications of great agony. These three, however, were bitten about the head while the others were bitten elsewhere and seem to be doing well. There seems not to be the greatest comfort in the Pasteur discovery.

The Sunday Washington Times tells of Harry Parker in his desperation over the fact that a girl he loved could not love in return so silly a fellow as he, attempted to get even with things by treating his inner parts, so near the region of his pain, with whiskey at first and then with two ounces of laudanum. The doctors used his stomach as a pumping tank and relieved him of the laudanum and, it is to be hoped, some of a fool's love. In a few days the youngster will be in trim for a new mash probably, and will be less surprised at the good sense of a girl that rejects a simpleton.

Kentucky is getting an unenviable reputation for mob law. Six or seven in one week is rather strong. They go about it in a determined but quiet way and effect their purpose. It is a dangerous way of regulating public affairs. Kentucky needs to get settled down on the right side of partisan lines to have fewer provocations.

President Alderman in an interview says the outlook for the State University is very bright. The number of students enrolled is 540, being more than in any year since the war. He has no fear of legislation this winter unfavorable to the university.

The European powers have practically agreed upon a method by which to coerce the Turkish government into certain reforms looking to the better protection of the Armenians. This course might be reasonably expected and has come to a head entirely too slowly for the hasty and impulsive, but some delay with much diplomatic caution is better than such course as might have raised a war storm in Europe.

Sometimes it seems to weary woman that she must certainly give up. The simplest and easiest work becomes an almost insurmountable task. Nervousness, sleeplessness and pain harass her and life seems hardly worth the living.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was made for her. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery was made for her. The former is for ill distinctly feminine, the other for her general system. Together they supply a scientific and successful course of treatment. The "Favorite Prescription" restores healthy, regular action to the organs distinctly feminine. It forces out all impurities, strengthens the tissues, allays inflammation. The "Golden Medical Discovery" makes appetite, helps digestion, promotes assimilation, fills out the hollows in cheeks and neck with good solid flesh and brings back the glad glow of girlhood.

Send 21 cents in one-cent stamps to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y., and receive Dr. Pierce's 1008 page Common Sense Medical Adviser, illustrated.

A special to the Charlotte Observer from Asheville says: "Lucilia Harriss caught fire while she was sitting near the fire Christmas morning in her room at Z F Rush's, Jr. She died before any one reached the room. The body was horribly burned—frightful to behold. The deceased was the widow of the late Jason Harriss, and was the mother of Mrs. Z F Rush, Jr."

MR. BRYAN'S LECTURE

Ever since it has been announced that Mr. Bryan would enter upon a lecturing tour people have been curious to know the subject of his lecture. In due time it was announced to be "The Ancient Landmarks." Then of course the question was, what will be the drift of the lecture. We clip from the report of the Southern Associated Press a synopsis of the lecture believing that our readers will receive much satisfaction therefrom.
