Vol. XV.—No. 47

CONCORD, N. C., WEDNESDAY, MARCH 10, 1897.

WHOLE NO. 1,662

Its Promises Unfolding

A Galaxy of Young People Will Assist in the Pageant—Fine Array of Local Talent—Catharine Von Bora and Her Sister Nuns.

Royal trappings, quaint costumes, historical dialogues, realistic stage pictures, sacred music, and allegorical processions will form the background of the "Story of the Reformation" or Life of Luther, to be presented in the Court House, on Monday and Tuesday evenings, March 15 and 16. Considering that the whole vocabulary of complimentary emphasis is worn thread bare on entertainments not above the grade of mediocrity, it is hard to justly characterize this literary, spiritual and aesthetic entertainment. The story of Luther's life is the most interesting and thrilling in religious history. There is a fascination in reading the story and to witness its portrayal, with picture and song, and to hear it from the lips of one whose eloquence is inspired by recent visits to the land where the great reformers did his greatest work, is a pleasure which will appeal to all. One of the most interesting and impressive representations will be the Nuns Scene in which the following ladies appear.

Sarah—Bell Moser.
Isabella—Addie Patterson.
Catharina Von Bora—Addie Alexander.
Agnes—Sallie Erwin.
Ruth—Nellie Fisher.
Ursule—Mrs. C A Cook.
Josephine—Mrs. N E Young.
Cecelia—Mrs. J K Patterson.
Nacmi—Mattie Cook.

NOVICES.

Hilda—Agnes Moss.
Sallie Castor.
Sadie Fisher.
Chassie Brown.
Willie Richmond.
Alice Sims.
Valley Brown.
Claude Fisher.
Ida A Weddington.
Besides there will be represented four other scenes. To give an adequate idea of the uniqueness and literary features of the production would be an undertaking almost impossible. The whole accoutrement is so variedly complete that the picture lingering in the auditor's mind is very striking. The entertainment is attracting unusual attention. Admission 50c. Children 25c. Reserved seats can be secured at Fetzer's Drug Store by paying 25c. extra.

The San Jose Scale.

The Experiment Station regrets to announce that the dreaded San Jose scale has reached North Carolina. Bulletin No 139 describes the character of this destructive pest, the damage which it has done to the fruit industry in other states, and what it is likely to do in North Carolina unless it is stamped out at once. It is stated in the bulletin that from a single pair, three billion insects may result in a single season. Although these scale insects do not move from one place to another of their own accord, yet they are blown by the wind or else carried on the feet of birds to other orchards not infested. Such is the rapidity of increase that these orchards will soon be covered and the trees will be destroyed in a very short while, besides being a standing menace to other localities. The Horticultural Society, aided by the Experiment Station, has prepared a bill which is now being considered by the Legislature, the purpose of which is to appoint an unsalaried commission to prevent the introduction and spread of such pests. There are other insect and fungus pests as bad as the San Jose scale. The commission, if established, will prevent large losses in horticultural and agricultural crops from other pests. Some of these pests are the cotton boll weevil, now proceeding northward from Mexico and Texas; the Gypsy Moth (to destroy which the State of Massachusetts has already spent $650,000); the tobacco leaf miner, a recently discovered insect of most destructive tendency; and the peach yellows, which has practically ruined the peach orchards of many states. The above bulletin contains a copy of the bill now before the General Assembly. It is believed to be one of the most important that the legislature has before it for consideration.
