CONCORD, N. C., MONDAY APRIL 26, 1897.

WHOLE NO. 1,701

MORE WHISKEY.

One Hundred and Eleven Gallons Seized Sunday Morning—A Good Team Captured By Officers Means and Hill.

Sunday morning officers George W Means, of the revenue department and Deputy John S Hill, received notification that a blockader was doing a flourishing business in No. 11 township, and acting upon this announcement a search was instituted and the outfit was captured within less time than two hours.

Mr. Dan Krimminger came to town at an early hour and reported the matter, stating that the man had been in his neighborhood and was making toward.

Messrs. Means and Hill found the man with his team while crossing Cold Water creek near V Litaker's and commanded him to throw up his hands. The outfit consisted of a team of two good mules and a wagon, and three barrels containing 111 gallons of whiskey, in charge of one Theophilus Combs, a Wilkes county Moonshiner. Combs was relieved of his outfit, which was brought to town, he taking his course in another direction. Combs is about 25 years of age and seems to be well known to a number of people throughout the county.

It is said that "there are others" operating in the county.

This seizure, with the one made Saturday, is somewhat of a record in a county where there is not a still or an open bar room.

Picknickers Out Saturday.

Misses Addie Alexander and Belle Moser, teachers of the fifth, sixth and seventh grades, took all of their pupils on a picnic excursion Saturday, making their playground and spread in the beautiful grove near White Hall. After spending the day in the pleasures that an outing brings, the wagoners returned late in the evening and as the little ones arrived at the graded school building to disperse, they gave the yell as follows:

"Rub-a-dub-dub

Ra-Ra-Ree,

"Sixth grade, seventh grade,

"Oh, do see!"

Miss Laura Leslie, of the eighth and ninth grades, with her pupils and several friends, spent the day at Pharr's mill on Rocky River.

An Aged Citizen Dead.

Mr. Milas W Johnston passed away in death this (Monday) morning from a second stroke of paralysis at noted in THE STANDARD last Saturday.

It has been evident for some time that the end was nearing and Mr. Johnston had set his house in order and was awaiting the summons of departure.

It is but natural and right that as a last tribute to his memory we should review to some degree the noble life now ended on earth.

When, from a Southern point of view, patriotism demanded prompt and vigorous organization, he was among the first to respond and was chosen Second Lieutenant in Company F, First North Carolina Cavalry, of which Rufus Barringer was Captain. He left Concord with the company on the 3rd of July, 1861.

At training camp at Ridgeway, in Warren county, Mr. Johnston found that his comrades had chosen him to an office from the love and esteem in which he was held rather than from any military turn in himself. He therefore resigned an office uncongenial to him and returned to his home. Later however, in September, 1864, he rejoined the same comrades and served till the end of the war.

Mr. Johnston held a most conspicuous position in the First Presbyterian Church for long years of faithful devotion, and his memory will be held with sacred reverence by his co workers in the kingdom of grace to whose fruition he has been called. Mr. Johnston attained the good ripe age of 76 years and now leaves a wife, three sons and three daughters to mourn his loss and cherish the memory of a life well worth emulating.

The funeral rites will be held at the homestead Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock when the remains will be interred at the city cemetery.
