CONCORD, SEPT. 16 1897.

A JOB LOT OF FIVE HANGED.

This is the way an outraged community got rid of five robbers at Versailles, Ind., Tuesday night.

For years this community has been terrorized by parties who were successful in evading the law. Men would go to market with produce and would be found on the way home lying robbed and more dead than alive. Even women were made to stand on hot stoves to torture them into telling where treasurers were hidden.

An accomplice led the officers to one of their planned deceptions and five were arrested and lodged in jail. So badly were the feelings of the citizens wrought up that they proceeded to the jail, shot three and with ropes around the necks of the five, with the arms and legs of the living ones pinioned, they dragged all five to a limb near and hanged them. This was taken as a mere job lot with some remnants yet to dispose of if the robberies do not cease.

It's a fearful remedy, but probably the most effectual cure and, it is not in the heathern South.

Gov. Mount is outraged but so have the people been and it is doubtful if anything can be done but to stop the robberies.

This would seem to be a day of nostrums of all sorts. Those of the political variety are so numerous and so well known that they may be dismissed to the limbo of exploded has-beens without further attention. North Carolina is afflicted with her share of religious nostrums, as well as political, just now. The Mormons and Faith-Christians and Sanctificationists seem to find in our people a more or less fertile soil. These things cannot be helped perhaps, but they are none the less harmful for all that. In the inevitable reaction from these extreme and irrational views the cause of genuine religion necessarily suffers to a certain extent.—Greensboro Telegram.

We hold to the proposition—indeed, it is a well established one—that Nature pays; that she evens up her accounts; that wherein she fails at one time she makes up at another. She is getting behind, however, in the matter of water. All last year there was a deficiency in rainfall, and thus far this year it amounts to 12 inches. If this keeps on it will call for a deluge to give us what is coming to us.—Statesville Landmark.

The Wesleyan Methodist protests stoutly against the habit of gentlemen smoking in the presence of ladies, and claims (and well too) that it can no more be right and genteel than for a lady to be using snuff in the presence of gentlemen. The author claims, too, that it is in the power of the fair sex to stop the objectionable habit.

Pointed Paragraphs.

A girl never tries to extinguish the spark as long as a man has money to burn.

Some people are like one-legged milk stools—no good unless sat upon.

The man who never argues with women, children or fools has but few arguments.

A millionaire has a better show in this world than the average theatrical manager.

The swan always sings before it dies and death often ends the mosquito's song.

When a wife puts on too many airs the atmosphere of her home is not what it should be.

An ounce of prevention is not worth a pound of cure in the pork-packing business.

There is something wrong with the woman who talks only when she has something to say.

An insurance policy often makes a man more valuable after death than during his life.

Don't think because a man is always harping on the idea, that he is a born musician.

Woman may supersede men in many pursuits, but the field in which a brindle cow grazes is barred to the female in red.—Chicago News.

Anyone who has ever picked up with a bare hand a piece of intensely cold iron knows that the touch burns almost as badly as if the metal were red hot. Indeed, the action of great heat and extreme cold are so similar that a Hungarian chemist has turned the latter to account to prepare meats for food. He subjects the meat to sixty degrees of frost, and then seals it up in airtight tin cans. The result is that the meat, which is practically "cooked by cold," will keep any time, and can be eaten with very little preparation.—Ex.

Notice to Bicycle Riders.
On and after Sept. 15th, 1897, we are instructed to arrest any and all persons who ride a bicycle on any of the sidewalks in Concord, and any permission to ride around the work on Depot street is revoked. The ordinance will be enforced. Any riding a bicycle on the sidewalk is a misdemeanor.

The Greensboro Telegram tells of a shocking crime which occurred in Rockingham county: George Craige, a farmer living on what is known as the Cornelius Williams place, walked into the room where his wife lay on a bed of sickness Thursday afternoon, picked up a revolver and shot her as deliberately as if she had been a beef. She was lying on the bed with her face turned toward the door and spoke to her husband as he entered the room. His reply was a ball from the revolver held in his hand. The woman died in a few hours.
