CONCORD, N. C., MONDAY OCTOBER 18 1897

WHOLE NO.—1026

DRIVEN TO DEATH.

Bart, the fine Bay of Brown Bros., fell dead in the shafts—Kate, the only mare, also in a bad fix.

Bart, the favorite buggy horse of Brown Bros., today lies a corpse from the effects of being ruthlessly driven by a thoughtless young man.

Crawford Steele, a young white man of Cannonville, hired the horse early Sunday morning, and after a trip to Mooresville in a round-about way, on his return the horse fell dead while ascending the little grade in front of the new Cannon factory. The animal had been driven to death.

Bob Brown, another young white man, had Kate, a beautiful gray mare, to a buggy. She is a fine beast, but came near expiring last night from the effects of hard driving. Dr. Griffin, the Messrs. Brown and others, worked with her until 12 o'clock Sunday night. The animal is foundered.

Steele and Brown were together all day long, and covered an immense amount of territory.

A Sad Home—The Remains Conveyed to Prospect for Burial.

Fred Atwell, the little six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. H O Atwell, of Cannonville, who was accidentally shot Saturday, died Sunday morning at 8 o'clock.

It was a sad death, and the home is shrouded in the deepest gloom.

The little fellow suffered a great deal and fought for life with a brave spirit, but all to no avail—the wound was fatal. The ball entered below the breast, taking an upward course under the heart, through the left lung to the shoulder. Surgical skill could not save him.

The remains of the unfortunate child were conveyed to Prospect church, near Mooresville, for interment.
