CONCORD, N. C., FRIDAY OCTOBER 29 1897

WHOLE No.—1036

THE BENEVOLENT FAIR

With Its Museum, Concert Hall, Dining Halls, Fruit and Candy Stores, Together With the Gypsies and Japanese.

As before noted, the Presbyterian Fair, held by the Benevolent Society of that church, opened Thursday evening. The baby show, under the supervision of Mrs. Geo. Lore, being the first on the programme. It was well that the managers did not offer some nice prize for the prettiest baby, as they had intended, for we know of no one who would have been able to have made a just decision as to which tot was most beautiful. It was indeed a lovely sight.

At the hour of 5 o'clock the doors of the fair were thrown open to all, while the Keesler orchestra played a few opening pieces. Scarcely had its doors been thrown open until the rooms were crowded so much that one could hardly pass from room to room.

One could see the placards hanging prominently about, which said that there would be a concert that night, which took place at 8 o'clock, the admission being only 10 cents.

The concert was well attended, as it should have been. It consisted of recitations, solos and instrumental selections and was concluded by a farce. The excellent solos were rendered by Mrs. Nel, Mrs. Fannie Yorke and Maj. R. L. Keesler.

After the concert was concluded, you were at liberty to roam about over the fair and take in the sights.

The first thing to attract our attention, before leaving the concert hall, was the tastefully decorated and arranged fruit and flower booth, under the supervision of Miss Nannie Cannon. Here one could find all the nice fruits and flowers from West Indies' bread to the florist's finest flower.

In this room also was the sweetest part of the fair, (except the ladies). This was the candy kitchen, where Mrs. Jno. Wadsworth had her waiters ever ready to serve you with their pure and unadulterated candies.

The next place we find ourselves in is Mrs. Geo. Brown's oyster booth, our appetite being our guide, where we found oysters in abundance, and prepared to suit the taste of any epicurean from the savage to the most elite French.

"Pass on" we must, and soon we find ourselves listening to the voice of some one who says that we will miss "half our life" if we do not take in the museum, and so in we go, and we soon find that the ladies standing outside are not fakirs by any means. Here we stand and wonder how Mrs. Elam King, who is supervisor of the museum, succeeded in getting together so many curiosities for eyes to gaze upon. Here we find the most singular curios, old relics, and also something to attract the eye of the mineralogist. But this is not all you are permitted to see while in this room, but turning around we find that Mrs. Frank Goodson has a Parthenon in store for us. Here we stand and gaze at the beautiful paintings and photographs contributed by the people. There are so many things in this room of special moment, and as space forbids we will have to say to all "go and see."

Bidding adieu to this department we once more get into the main entrance, but quickly we become fascinated by "The Gypsy Maid" and soon we are in Gypsy town, pure and simple. Upon entering here you are met by the rubicund cheeked maidens to have your future revealed by Dame Fortune, which is "great."

In another tent you find the gayly dressed Gypsy boy, who wears a sorrowful look upon his face as if to say, "I wish I were a Gypsy Girl." To ease your cares and reinvigorate you, those lovely Japanese girls stand waiting for you to take tea with them, and one can not help buying some of their nice chinaware.

Here in this room you buy your souvenir of the Fair. But one part of this room, and an essential part too, has been left off. Behind the town of the trinket-loving people is the main dining hall, where one is served a meal that is a meal. Miss Jennie Smith is due the credit of this nicely gotten up room.

This, now, completes our tour over the Fair, though one can spend hours taking in these various departments, and talking to the clever waiters, who will gladly show you through.

The Fair will last until Saturday night, being open during the day, too.

An Organ Recital.

We clip the following from the Morganton Herald:

A large audience was present at the Episcopal church on Tuesday evening to listen to the organ recital by Prof. R. L. Keesler, of Concord, N. C., one of the most skillful organists in the State.

The power and tones of the new pipe organ were fully developed by Prof. Keesler in a variety of classical selections, to the great delight of those present. The entertainment was complimentary to the public by the rector and congregation of the church and was highly appreciated.

"Them Foreign Drinks."

"You confounded idiot! Can't you understand plain English? I want a glass of water—water to drink—and I want it quick!" howled a stranger in an Australian restaurant.

In desperation the waiter hunted up the proprietor and told him the story. The landlord looked puzzled and himself entered the dining room, and approaching the stranger said:

"Excuse me, sir, but my waiter is a little hard of hearing. I will take your order."

"I ordered a glass of water—simply water."

"I'm very sorry," replied the landlord, "but I cannot accommodate you. There is so little call for those foreign drinks that it doesn't pay to keep 'em. We've some prime whisky in the bar, if you can get along on that."

The stranger finished his meal in silence.—Exchange.
