AGAINST BUTLER.

It is reported, says the Raleigh correspondent of the Charlotte Observer, that there is to be a meeting of the Populist State committee soon in which the guns are to be turned on Senator Butler with the hope that they can down him. This is represented as a sort of secret, but it is altogether an open secret that many good citizens without whose adherence the Populist party will go to pieces will not be led by Butler into fusion with the Republicans again to the shame of setting the negro in office over the whites. If Butler can no longer carry the Populists to the Republican side he will lose his power to dictate terms with the Democrats. There's little for him to effect and his detestable bossism and innate trickery is not relished by good men. Butler needs to be laid on the shelf, and we think he will go there.

MERGENTHALER AND THE LINO-TYPE.

Otto Mergenthaler is said to be declining in health, sinking with consumption. He is in Deming, New Mexico, where he has the benefits of great altitude and a dry atmosphere. He is surrounded by a wife and four children, and all the comforts that wealth can give him. He is devoting his time to the completion of the history of his great machine, the linotype, and also to the completion of some new labor-saving machine that is his secret. The linotype is easily the most wonderful, complicated automatic machine that we ever saw operate. As some one has said, it does everything but think. It is now a veritable gold mine for its inventor, but the history that Mergenthaler will give to the world will doubtless show that it cost more than most men could or would give for it.

A few of the scraps from that history are that its inventor gave himself from 1876 to 1880 to the most assiduous study and labor to effect it. He could not introduce it into use for lack of means and public confidence. The New York Tribune tried the first one in 1886, and the Louisville Courier Journal the second. Three thousand five hundred machines are now sold or leased, representing $10,500,000.

HOOD'S Sarsaparilla has over and over again proved by its cures, when all other preparations failed, that it is the One True BLOOD Purifier.

FIVE FOOTBALL CASUALTIES.

One man with a shoulder dislocated, one with concussion of the brain, one with his right clavicle fractured, one with his collar bone broken and one hurt internally, which with the one with concussion of the brain that will probably prove fatal are the casualties of football dispatched from Pittsburg for last Friday. That does not seem a very healthy game.

Judge and Editors.

The Charlotte Observer is moved to remark: "Editors with passes in their pockets are attacking public officials for holding and using passes." We take it that the Observer sees in this action of the editors somewhat of inconsistency; otherwise there is no point to the statement. But we fail to see why editors with passes in their pockets—if there are such—should not ask our public officials what railway passes in their pockets mean. They are employed by the people and paid by them, and are answerable to them if they accept favors that imply a divided obligation. Editors are not in the enjoyment of public money; their time is their own or their employers', and if they carry passes in exchange for advertising space it no more commits them to the support of the railway issuing passes, than acceptance of patent medicine for advertising space would compel editorial support of the advertiser. But if, at the same time we should find that a judge on the bench was accepting bottles of the medicine while trying cases against the proprietor who gave him the decoction, we should conclude that there was an African in the dust.

Some newspapers have advertising space to sell, and they sell or exchange some of it for railway mileage books or passes, leaving no obligations on either side. A judge or other public official accepts a pass and gives in return—what? We agree with the Observer, however, that it were better that passes were not issued to anyone, and we wish there was a law to that effect.—Asheville Citizen.

Train Breaks in Two.

The trains on the Air Line were out of gear yesterday on account of an accident which occurred near Bessemer City yesterday morning before day light. The freight train which left there the night before with Capt. Tom Hunter as engineer and Capt. E. Baird as conductor, broke in two and ran together, causing the derailment of several cars and right bad wreckage of freight. When the cars parted the brakemen in the rear gave the "broke loose" signal. Capt. Hunter put on speed and tried to run away from the uncoupled cars. As he was trying to do so, the air hose on the front cars burst, bringing the cars to which the engine was attached to a dead stand still. The rear cars crashed into them, with results as named above. Superintendent Ryder and Mr. Broege, master of trains, were early at the scene.

No. 36, the train due here at 6.30 a. m., did not arrive yesterday until 3 o'clock.

No one was hurt.—Charlotte Observer.
