PRACTICALLY UNCHANGED.

THE SENATE HANGS.

Unanimous Consent to Limit Discussion Asked for By Davis and Teller and Declined By Daniels—Vice-President Hobart Forgets Himself and Addresses the Galleries—Gen. Lee Talks Freely—Thinks Spanish Subjugation of Insurgents Impossible.

The country now stands on feverish suspense at the delay of the United States Senate.

This seems a necessary evil that must be born with as it can't be helped.

Senator Davis wanted unanimous consent to close debate at 5 o'clock Thursday. To this Senator Daniels objected. One objection breaks the unanimity and defeats such effort in the Senate. Mr. Teller wanted to limit speeches to fifteen minutes. To this Senator Daniels also objected and of course it fell to the ground.

Spirited and pathetic speeches were made for prompt action. Also learned and sage counsels were offered, all of which it would seem should move all auditors if they did not conflict.

A novel sensation was produced when an effort was made to continue the session till a conclusion should be reached. The galleries applauded noisily when Vice-President Hobart addressed the galleries, ordering the applause to cease. Senator Gray shouted, "The chair himself is out of order. He has no right to directly address the people of the galleries." "Such a thing has never been before in the Senate," declared Senator Bate, of Tennessee. Others joined in humiliating the chair for the blunder.

The Senate adjourned at 6:15.

Some twenty Senators desire to make speeches and if they are all heard there is no telling when action will be reached. When a vote is reached for the resolution it may cause much delay before getting a joint resolution by both houses.

The singular phase of the situation is that those most spirited in their sentiment in favor of prompt and vigorous action, involving measures more rigid and explicit than the president are the ones now causing the delay of action. They seem to prefer no action to such as does not come up to their ideas while many are willing to have less than a completeness of their ideas to stop human suffering on the island.

Dispatches show no signs of weakening on the part of Spain. Indeed it is now said that the Queen Regent would abdicate the throne if the Spanish ministry were to weaken.

Gen. Lee speaks freely to the Senate Committee, implicating Gen. Weyler in the blowing up of the Maine but exonerating Gen. Blanco. He does not think there is the slightest possibility of Spain's conquering the insurgents.

He says, though, that he does not think the insurgents have anything more than the skeleton form of a government—a moving capital, but that the Spanish soldiery have not been paid for nine months and the officers for four months.

He thinks provisions scarce in Havana and that the city would surrender quickly.

He does not believe that the Spanish provided $600,000 for the reconcentrados.

From Smith's Ford—A Boy Accidentally Shoots Himself—A Lady Found Dead.

The growth of the wheat and oats in our section is checked considerably by the late frost. The fruit in our section is killed.

A certain resident of Smith's Ford must be preparing for the coming war, as he has bought himself a pistol. You can hear the report for miles these cold frosty mornings.

A Good Entertainment.

We know of nowhere that our people could get half the real enjoyment for 15 cents as at the graded school exercises Thursday night in Caton's Hall.

Of course the imperfections of the little "tots" could be easily overlooked by the lovers of children (and it is to be hoped the petrified woman is the only human form in town whose heart does not beat in tenderness for them) indeed their sweet little awkwardness formed some of the most laughable parts.

But their better parts were absolutely charming while they inspired joy to parental hearts and exquisite satisfaction to ambitious instructors. While all the performances were good, yet highly creditable, the illustration of the ten virgins was so real, so solemnly impressive, that had it been the only feature it would have been a successful effort. The full chorus singing was very gratifying. We are glad that the childhood of the town enjoys such advantages, and we tender our congratulations to both the trainers and the performers.

Gold and other valuables are being shipped freely from Havana to New York for safe keeping till the war clouds roll away.

The Petrified Woman.

A TRULY REMARKABLE SPECIMEN.

The Scientific and Educational Exhibit Closes Here Saturday, April 6th, and Should Be Seen By Everyone.

"The Beautiful Woman Turned to Stone" is certainly creating more talk than anything that has been in Concord for some time. That the specimen is genuine admits of no doubt. It has been chemically and microscopically examined and is vouched for by thousands of physicians, scientists and geologists. Men of national reputation all over the country attest to the body's genuineness. We doubt if anything ever came to Concord, or any other city, so well and favorably endorsed, so deserving of good patronage. Go and see the specimen and you will join in the belief of all preceding here. Remember the exhibit closes here tomorrow night at 10 o'clock, and all who have not by that time embraced the rare opportunity of seeing the great wonder will certainly miss a chance of a lifetime.

His Last Sermon Tonight.

Rev. Payseur will continue the meeting until Sunday night. During this series of meetings sixteen names have been added to the roll of membership of this church.
