SOME NOBLE WOMEN.

It is easily discernable in hearing Hon. Theo. F. Klutz make a political speech that the metal of which he is made has a polish that it were almost a sacrilege to wear in the ordinary grinding out of political stump speeches, especially where a style not in harmony with his finer feelings must sometimes be resorted to. But give him an audience chiefly of young womanhood, as he had in Mont Aucena Female Seminary Friday night, and you will see the fitness of the man for the occasion.

Dr. Miller introduced him in very complimentary and equally deserving terms.

He thanked Dr. Miller and promised his best endeavors to always merit the encomiums.

He was glad to lay aside the political canvass, he said, to address the young ladies of Mont Aucena, when he congratulated them on their pleasant surroundings and priceless advantages. He knew that if he had critical ears to address he also had charitable hearts to whom to appeal.

He felt somewhat embarrassed in addressing so many young ladies, but was worse embarrassed once in addressing one, yet he had braved the ordeal and won her who had crowned his life with domestic joy and had inspired in him a zeal for his subject, "Some Noble Women."

He eulogized woman as the apex, the crowning pinnacle of created beings. He pictured beautifully the process of unfolding creation that was incomplete, a living blank till woman made it complete and closed the creative work. Of noble women in the world, he said, there are not a few. He urged womanly womanhood. The more womanly her graces the more she is honored and esteemed. Christine of Sweden lost the veneration of woman when she donned masculine attire and assumed masculine habits.

He enumerated a number of striking examples of woman power, even in snaping the political destinies, the moral grandeur, the social and the religious purity, and the charitable equipments of various nations. Among them are Semiramis, Zenobia, Joan of Arc, Isabella of Castile, Elizabeth Fry, Florence Nightingale, Clara Barton, Frances Willard, Dorothy Dix and others. He touched upon the thrilling achievement and the noble self-sacrifices of some of these characters. He closed with beautiful counsels and winning appeals to the young ladies to seek to attain woman's highest sphere of feminine goodness and loveliness.

At the close, the young ladies' tribute of flowers was presented, by the young lady appointed, in neat and graceful terms, and the speaker, though embarrassed by the profusion, said his thankful word with fullness of emotion.

As we mingled with the young ladies with whom we were acquainted we heard the expressions of exquisite pleasure at the lecture and the unbounded admiration for the speaker. One young lady was heard to say, "I'll stop wishing now that I had been born a boy."

Beats the Klondike.

Mr. A. C. Thomas, of Marysville Tex., has found a more valuable discovery than has yet been made in the Klondike. For years he suffered untold agony from consumption, accompanied by hemorrhages; and was absolutely cured by Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. He declares that gold is of little value in comparison with this marvelous cure; would have it, even if it cost a hundred dollars a bottle. Asthma, Bronchitis and all throat and lung affections are positively cured by Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. Trial bottles free at P. B. Fetzner's drug store. Regular size 50 cents and $1.00. Guaranteed to cure or price refunded.

To Lecture Here Next Week.

We would announce to the public, that two lectures will be delivered at the court house, in this place, by Rev. W. H. Stubblebine, of Salisbury, next Tuesday and Wednesday nights at 8 o'clock.

The one entitled, "Greenland's Icy Mountains," will be rendered on Tuesday night. On Wednesday night, his address will be, "The Lights and Shadows of a great City."

The admission has been especially reduced for school children. Come one, come all.

Admission—For adults, 25 cents; children, 10 cents.

A Narrow Escape.

Thankful words written by Mrs. Ada E. Hart, of Groton, S. D.: "Was taken with a bad cold which settled on my lungs; cough set in and finally terminated in Consumption. Four doctors gave me up, saying I could live but a short time. I gave myself up to my Savior, determined if I could not stay with my friends on earth, I would meet my absent ones above. My husband was advised to get Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. I gave it a trial, took in all eight bottles. It has cured me, and thank God I am saved and now a well and healthy woman." Trial bottles free at P. B. Fetzner's drug store.

Regular size 50c. and $1.00. Guaranteed or price refunded.

A SELF-MADE MAN.

Some Points of Superintendent Coble's Life Mentioned by One Who Has Known Him From Boyhood.

The following complimentary article appeared in the last issue of the Textile Excelsior, written by one who has known Superintendent Coble from in boyhood days:

"Although North Carolina has been dubbed Rip Van Winkle, she has forged to the front, as a Southern manufacturing State. Under the new regime of affairs since the war her sons have turned their attention to other things beside the farm, and today this poke-easy State stands second in number of spindles in the South. Not only have her men of means invested in mills and mill machinery, but her young men, without capital, with brawn and brain, have worked their way onward and upward.

"Among those who deserve mention is Robert F. Coble, now superintendent of the Odell Mills, Concord, N. C. As a spinner boy, Mr. Coble began his mill career at Nantoni Falls, in Randolph county, when not more than twelve years old. A widowed mother and three sisters were dependent, to a certain extent, upon his labor. In the year 1834 he came to Concord and entered the weaving department of the Odell mill. Two years later he was promoted to the position of loom fixer. His attention to duty made him a favorite with the owners, and from time to time promotions came unasked for until at last he was made overseer of No. 4 mill with its 1,000 looms. This position he has held with credit to himself and profit to his employers until the resignation of F. L. Robbins made vacant the superintendency. On Sept. 1, 1888, he entered upon the new duty assigned him. The fourteen years of service under the Messrs. Odell has been a success financially to Mr. Coble. He has accumulated property and enjoyed life as good natured people can. He wears his thirty years of life gracefully and has the unbounded confidence of his employers and the respect of the hands under him.
