THE RALEIGH GREETED.

Thousands Witness the Scene Amid the Booming of Cannon—The Roll of the Veterans from This Camp.

Charleston, May 10, 8 p. m.—The day has been fraught with intensity of emotion. The decorations are enormous and the enthusiasm is all that fancy can conceive.

It is doubtless known already that the Raleigh was grounded Tuesday evening. The reception, therefore, took place today.

The Colfax and the Wistoria went out and saluted the Raleigh at 9 a. m. Sumpter fired salutes and the grand old ship steamed slowly into the bay in graceful circle and rested about a half mile from the wharf. On the escort was the First Artillery band playing merrily, "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight," "America," and other airs. Then the Naval Reserves on the battery fired 21 guns and dipped their flag when the Raleigh returned the salute of 21 shots. The Raleigh still has on her war paint and we felt that had Captain Coghlan and his men had on their fighting humor, it would be a pity for Charleston and her proteges.

The writer soon took passage on a row boat, and landing on the Raleigh, found Captain Coghlan, and was pleasantly received. By the way, when asked whether the Raleigh had fired the first gun in the great battle, he said no. On passing into the bay a battery fired on the Raleigh and she returned the fire. In this she fired the first shot in the campaign on the American side, but not the first shot in the battle of Manila. Perfect freedom was extended on the boat, save in the officers' quarters, and the writer had the exquisite satisfaction of seeing how the modern naval gun is manipulated, especially the operation of breech-loading; also the operation of the torpedo. An officer was asked whether the walls of the Raleigh would resist such shots as it sends. He answered not any more than a sheet of paper. The men on the ship took the keenest interest in visitors, and seemed to never tire at showing and answering questions. Capt. Coghlan and his officers are of course lionized here.

The program of the Raleigh of course delayed the exercises of Memorial Day till afternoon. This was brilliant in the march only. There was delay and worry in getting the procession in moving order. It took about three hours, to the wearing out of strength and patience of the old "Vets."

The formation was made along Meeting street and we passed up Hazel street, along King street, then down Calhoun street to Meeting street and through Marion Square, where we passed between Gen. Gordon on the right and the statue of John C. Calhoun on the left, then along King to Calhoun again to Rutledge to the auditorium, which seats about 7,000 people.

The grand old Gordon could here be heard probably all over the immense hall but no one else. The occasion was literally crushed by its ponderous proportions.

The gathering along the line was amazing and it is estimated that 50,000 people were to be seen on and along the streets today.

This ends the first great day of the reunion.

The Confederate flags that had been in the battle we noted as follows:

Eighth, 51st, 25th, 69th, N. C., together with that of the 1st N. C. Battalion, made from silk dresses by the ladies of Yadkin county.

South Carolina had the flags of the 7th, 3rd and 12th regiments and one of Hampton's Legion.

Georgia furnished that of the 6th, 5th, 53rd and 42nd.

Virginia showed the colors of the 33rd, Stonewall Jackson's original regiment.

The Louisiana Battalion of Artillery also had its colors.

The 20th N. C. was not on the parade.

We may have missed some but anyway there was a fine array.

The writer took in, or rather viewed, the venerable St. Michael's church and sat in the pew in which Gen. Washington sat.

Mrs. J. C. Barnhardt Dead.

From the Charlotte Observer The Standard gets the announcement of the death of Mrs. Barnhardt, the widow of Col. Jacob O Barnhardt, of Pioneer Mills.

Says the Observer:

"Deceased had been in failing health since January. Two weeks ago she had a stroke of paralysis, which was followed by others, and since then she has died daily. Every morning she was not expected to live until night, and at night the end was looked for before morning. She had a strong constitution, however, and battled bravely for life. The last great change came on about noon yesterday, and she sank rapidly, passing away surrounded by her children, who had come from their distant homes to be with her."

Mrs. Barnhardt was born at Mt. Pleasant in 1831, being a daughter of Christopher Melchor, one of the best citizens Cabarrus ever had. She has a large connection, having a brother in Cabarrus, Mr. Monroe Melchor, and two sisters in Albemarle, Mrs. Lilly and Mrs. Hearne. The surviving children are: Mrs. Baxter Parks, and Mr. Eugene Barnhardt, of Concord; Mrs. J V Query, of Harrisburg; Mr. Jno. A Barnhardt, of Pioneer Mills; Mrs. R L C Cochrane, of Norfolk; Mrs. Dr. Ingram, of Wadesboro; Mrs. Dr. C A Misenheimer and Mr. Thomas Barnhardt, of Charlotte.

The funeral services were conducted from the Second Presbyterian church of Charlotte.

This death will bring sadness to many friends and acquaintances throughout the county, for a good and noble woman has passed away.

Peeler Nifong Dead.

We notice in the Western Sentinel, of Winston, an account of the death of Mr. C Peeler Nifong. He died Saturday, the 6th, at the home of his parents near Midway, in Davidson county. He died from white swelling, which he has had since childhood. He was a nephew of Rev. W A Lutz and wife.

He was an excellent young man and one of character and force. He is known by numbers in this county at Enochville and Mt. Pleasant. He graduated in 1896 at North Carolina College.
