FASHIONABLE BUT ORIGINAL

Our progressive, next door neighbor, Concord, is nothing if not fashionable and up-to-date. Cut a pattern and Concord soon rigs up in the garment. Not content with a diversity of innovations such as it has been regaling the public with recently, it now has a genuine case of smallpox on its hands. A telephone message to T B Brown late Saturday afternoon conveyed this intelligence. To what lengths envy carries us!—Salisbury Index.

[Yes, we are in the fashion, but our smallpox is but the last touch to our innovations. It came from nowhere but that of pure originality. It is something of an envious comfort that when we want to be up-to-date we produce the material at home and don't have to take some stuff second-hand from our neighbors.]

SENATOR Pritchard is booked to speak at Rockingham, Richmond county on the 16th when he will open the campaign against the amendments. He never feels constrained to divide time as there is no one of his rank in the state and it would not be dignifying of him to do so.

The St. Louis young man who notified the clerk of court not to issue him a marriage license if he should apply for it, because there was a girl who wanted to marry him so bad that he was afraid she would hypnotize him, showed great forethought, but the girl made a lucky escape.—Morning Star.

To accommodate those who are partial to the use of atomizers in applying liquids into the nasal passages for catarrhal troubles, the proprietors prepare Ely's Liquid Cream Balm. Price including the spraying tube is 75 cents. Druggists or by mail. The liquid embodies the medicinal properties of the solid preparation. Cream Balm is quickly absorbed by the membrane and does not dry up the secretions, but changes them to a natural and healthy character. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren St., N. Y.

It is winter again. Navigation from Cincinnati to Pittsburg is closed on account of the ice.

THE NECESSITY EMPHASIZED.

The Raleigh papers give accounts of New Year emancipation exercises by the Negro race there.

The burden of the speech of the orator of the day there was against the constitutional amendments.

The speaker was not calculated to produce a good effect and shows the very spirit that emphasizes the necessity for the adoption of the constitutional amendments.

He claims altogether too much for the Negro race at the time of emancipation and ascribes too little to the white race in the way of efforts to adjust the two to the new relations.

Admitting a few errors on the part of his own race he impugns the motives of the white race and practically charges that the amendments are but the initial step to the abrogation of the 13th, 14 and 15th amendments to the constitution of the United States and the return of the Negro to slavery. He says that there is no middle ground between absolute freedom and absolute slavery, his assertion implying the right to vote as an essential to absolute freedom.

He faces the white race with the necessary consequences of adopting the amendments that of a general Negro exit and our state filled up with foreign elements worse by far.

Now he does not bear in mind that there has been no exit of the Negroes in the states where their voting is restricted and that the conditions are none the worse to say the least. He forgets if he ever knew that restricted or qualified voting is not confined to the Southern States.

He frantically appealed to the white race with injustice to them in his tones and the wildest perversion of historical facts and logical conclusions, amounting to little more than stirring up despair and revenge in his own race.

While we have such to lead the Negro race we repeat that the necessity for adopting the amendments is emphasized, not as a matter of revenge or punishment but for the protection to both races.

Train Held Up.

Last night a few minutes to 7 o'clock while the Wilmington bound passenger train on the Yadkin branch of the Atlantic Coast Line was nearing Atkinson, Engineer J. P. Monogan was startled by the sudden crashing of the headlight and the extinguishment of the light. He put on breaks and stopped the train to see what was the matter and found that a blue heron or crane had flown headlong into the headlight. The heavy glass globe was broken to splinters, and the big bird was inside the headlight stark dead. Its neck had been broken in several places, every bone in its body was broken and its wings as well.

The occurrence delayed the train fifteen minutes, the run from Atkinson being made with a lantern in the headlight.

Mr. C. T. Pinkston, the well known mail agent, brought the heron to the city and last night showed it to the Star. It measured five feet from tip of tip of wings

Well Worth the Price.

McClure's Magazine is running a series of articles beginning with December, 1899, that will at the close of the year be a book entitled the "Life of the Master," that is, the life of Christ. It is written by the Rev. John Watson. The December and January numbers indicate that the series will be worth many times the price of the magazine, which costs one dollar for the twelve monthly numbers. It is a good chance for a valuable work for a very moderate price, beside the magazine will be found worth more than the price for other matter of interest.

Not Incandescent but Arc Lights.

The Salisbury Sun corrects THE STANDARD in referring to the Salisbury electric lights as incandescents and says they are the best arc lights in the state. The Sun says in its caption "Don't do it." Well we'll be good and not do so any more. We hope the city has something better than the ordinary flickering, spitting, frying, buzzing concerns that are lights usually are.

THE Wilmington Star of Sunday morning announces Jan. 1st as the editor's birthday and forbids flowers, calendars or cards. Then here's good wishes for many more birth days for the brightest twinkler in the state's editorial firmament. We wonder why Mr. Bernard didn't tell us the number of the birthday however.

Having a Great Run On Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

Manager Martin of the Pierson drug store, informs us that he is having a great run on Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. He sells five bottles of that medicine to one of any other kind, and it gives great satisfaction. In these days of la grippe there is nothing like Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to stop the cough, heal up the sore throat and lungs and give relief within a very short time. The sales are growing, and all who try it are pleased with its prompt action.—South Chicago Daily Calumet. For sale by M. L. Marsh & Co.

Roberts Must Wait.

Chairman Taylor says the Roberts case will not come up in the House before about the 15th. It is to be a very carefully written and exhaustive report by the committee. It will then be discussed and Mr. Roberts will have to abide by the vote taken.

It Cured Her Boy.

"When my son George was 14, he was stricken with a terrible nervous affliction. Physicians nor medicines helped him. He lost his speech, use of limbs and could hardly swallow food. Before he had finished a bottle of Dr. Miles' Nervine he could talk and eat well, and 5 bottles cured him."
