VACCINATE-DON'T CLOSE THE SCHOOLS.

We are pained to learn that the branch departments of our white graded school are being so poorly attended that our city school board is about to face the alternity of closing them.

The law we believe requires a discontinuance when the attendance falls below 20 per cent.

The only cause we can obtain is that the children are required to be vaccinated.

We are sorry for the child that is kept out of school on that account.

With the foul disease lurking in the land ready to break out at any time and place, with its extreme contagion and its effects on the skin so much to be dreaded, the wonder is that parents would not be eager to avail themselves of this great scientific remedy.

So many towns find it necessary to compel everybody to be vaccinated. It is the generally admitted fact that nothing is so liable to spread contagious diseases as the schools, so much so that our state laws are becoming more and more strict in excluding diseased children from schools.

What can be more reasonable than to require school children to be vaccinated?

And why should not parents be only too glad to comply and feel that their dear little ones are not only physically protected but that in associations the danger is reduced to a minimum.

Beside every thoughtful mind knows that when we live in communities, we must give, in exchange for the great advantages gained, some of our individual preferences.

We venture nothing, we think, in appealing to Christian parents, for we suppose that nine tenths of the families of the town have church connections, that the 13th chapter of Romans would be profitable to read and ponder. We have a school board able, well informed and judicious. There's safety, there's wisdom in meeting requirements of our school regulations. Let not these branch schools be discontinued for want of attendance. It would in many instance be an irreparable wrong to the children. It is a great wrong now that children are not in the schools getting all the knowledge they can.

And why should vaccination be objected to? Most children suffer but little from it and not one probably in a thousand suffers what would be equal to the suffering and the anxiety of isolation in the pest house if it were to have the disease.

Another point we wish to make and emphasize. If the proper authorities were so timid as to require no safeguards against smallpox so reasonable as requiring school children to be vaccinated and if the citizens would refuse to be vaccinated just as some parents are refusing to have their children vaccinated, our town would even already have been a very pest hole of the foul disease.

With no official safeguards to prevent the spread of the disease there would not be a tithe of the families or individuals in the state we believe that would not be infected. It would sweep the land like the summer breezes through open doors.

Authoritative regulations are a safety, a mercy, a blessing. As you love your child take care of its beauty, its health, its intellect by complying with this reasonable and necessary requirement and send it to school.

Master Malice.

'Twas a long time ago Master Malice was born; His father was Temper, his mother was Scorn;

On an island away in mid-ocean they dwelt, Knowing nothing of joy and no love ever felt.

Malice Temper grew fast to manhood's estate, Without good example, it is sad to relate,

For his home was a tempest of passion and wrong, With no smiling faces and never a song.

When he first met Miss Envy, out with her mother, They violently fell in hate with each other!

Quarrels were rife wherever they tarried, And after the courtship they were spitefully married!

One day while debating why vinegar sours, They flew in a rage to this fair land of ours,

And set up housekeeping 'mid strife and turmoils, The food all prepared in their family broils!

Their children have multiplied faster and faster, Till o'er this fair land there is crime and disaster.

Now the question is this: What must good people do? Bend down your heads and I'll whisper to you:

If we bond together in love, I've a notion We can drive them all back to their home in mid-ocean!

—Edward William Dutcher.

Stood Death Off.

E. Mudar, a lawyer of Henrietta, Tex., once fooled a grave-digger. He says: My brother was very low with malarial and jaundice. I persuaded him to try Electric Bitters, and he was soon much better, but continued their use until he was wholly cured. I am sure Electric Bitters saved his life. This remedy expels malaria, kills the disease germs and purifies the blood, aids digestion, regulates liver, kidney and bowels, cures constipation, dyspepsia, nervous diseases, kidney troubles, female complaints; gives perfect health.
