THE COLORED FAIR

We are in receipt of the premium list of the colored fair at Winston-Salem which opens Monday the 26th and continues for five days. The price of admission is 25 cents for adults and 15 cents for children.

The premiums offered are for the usual articles. Under the head of miscellaneous we notice $2 for the prettiest baby, $5 for the prettiest woman, etc., including ox race, catching greasy pig, climbing greasy pole, etc.

Killed by Lightning.

On last Friday afternoon a peculiar accident occurred on the plantation of Mr. Hutch White near Rock Hill. Two colored-farm laborers who worked for Mr. White had been to town in the wagon. When they started home one of the negroes remained in the wagon; the other rode on one of the mules hitched to the wagon. As they were going through a strip of woods a cloud came up and in a few minutes there was a flash of lightning. The bolt struck the wagon. The negro in the wagon and the mules were killed, but strange to say the negro riding one of the mules was not struck. He was hurt as the mule he was riding fell on him, but that was all.—Fort Mill Times.
