DR. E. A. WINGARD.

We have before us copies of the Columbia State that record the death and burial of the late Dr. E. A. Wingard. The State joins the Columbia ministerial association and those of his own church faith in pronouncing highest eulogies on the life and character and genius of Dr. Wingard.

In his death the Southern Lutheran church has lost probably its most polished thinker and one of its most charming characters.

He may be but partially remembered by our readers, but as pastor of St. Mark's church, Charlotte, though his first charge, he gave evidences of superior mental ability. His thoughts ran largely in the poetic strain and some of his most intense convictions found force in metre. He is the author of a book of poems that is in the homes of most of his admirers.

He was 51 years of age and leaves a wife and five children.

We feel inclined to give the pondering reader the benefit of two stanzas of a poem of his entitled "The Valley of the Shadow." It is written in two parts of three stanzas each, the first called "Death Means Loss," and the second "Death Means Gain." We give the third or last stanza of each.

Just when hope becomes fruition, and our dreams have turned to life.

And possession rich been garnered from the fields of toil and strife,

Just when life is at its fullest in the pulsing, throbbing heart, and our love is at its strongest, it is then we must depart.

And the friends who gather around us with the children at our knee.

And the parents who have watched us with a love so full and free.

Yes, far dearer than all others, e'en the husband and the wife, in whose absence from our presence will go out the light of life, Must all be left.

Even here, as in a mirror, as we gaze upon the Lord, we are changed into His image by His Spirit and His Word. And the sleep of death is nothing to the joy which shall abide when we wake beyond its shadows in His likeness satisfied. So my heart is, ever thirsting in His presence to appear, who, far dearer than His blessings, is Himself to me most dear; and the very fire of Heaven through my heart would throb and burn, If I could, for all He gave me, still a hundred-fold return.

Some years ago Dr. Parkhurst made a lively crusade against vice in New York. The results seem not at all satisfactory and now Tammany has turned reformer and proposes to un-Parkhurst the city. Parkhurst, the late reformers say, scattered the inmates of vice dens and they are in the flats and everywhere mingled as a menace to youth. Tammany proposes to gather them together where they can be looked after. It seems that Parkhurst's raids were like dropping cold water into hot fat, that instead of cooling only spreads the evil and produced a conflagration.

Charles Williams, a severe war critic in England, is bitterly opposed to the promotion of Gen. Kitchener, and it seems bordered on rather low comparisons, then suddenly turns and apologizes to Satan for using his name in connection with that of Kitchener. We had never thought of it before, but his majesty may not be altogether pleased with some associations. There are some probably who out-satan the old fellow himself. There may be many found that should shame the old monarch of evil.

Now they are talking of the "Old Sheriff" for senator from New Jersey. Be hanged if it wouldn't be a good selection.

An exchange advocating good roads says, "The way to build good roads is to build them." We had just been thinking about that.

Is there any significance in the fact that Boer arms are picking up new courage and snatching new victories since Oom Paul is away.

The Raleigh editors have formed a press club and strangely enough they adopted the name of Ananias. It seems like a joke but has every essential of a reality and there is a revolt at the name. It hardly seems a thing to joke about if St. Peter is not just around.

If we had all of Uncle Sam's money we do not know what we would invest in next after a good warm dinner, but we are inclined to think we'd buy a canal across the Isthmus of Panama.
