CONCORD, N. C., March 10, 1902.

We see it announced that Hon. Thomas Skinner (not Harry) advocates Judge Hoke for United States Senator to succeed Senator Pritchard. Pity there's just a little impediment in the way of Judge Hoke for Chief Justice. Wonder if that is essential to his dedication?

We all reproach ourselves for blunders that make us the veriest fools in our own eyes and probably more so in the eyes of others, but one of the most unseemly blunders we have noted is that in the Governor of Florida who, when filling out a warrant to the sheriff to hang a negro culprit, inserted the name of a Methodist minister, one of the most respected and beloved men of the town of Palaska. About as strange as the act too is the Governor's failure to make due apology. Man is fearfully and wonderfully made.

Next Sunday we shall end the ground hog winter and it is to be hoped we shall have no more of his weather pranks. The jolly robbin has put in his appearance to counteract the last week of ground hog weather and we hail his red breast with genuine delight. May his tribe ever increase. The shad frog fills the night air with promise of good eating. The next thing in order will be a serum by which we can inoculate against spring fever and spring poetry till the whip-poorwill pulls us over the period of ennui and pensive inactivity when perspiration shall flow like rivers again to the joy of ice cream and soft drink vendors.

It has seemed strange to one of our limited insight to the cotton trade that the staple has stayed so long below ten cents. Now Europe has waked up to the fact that she wants more cotton than American manufacturers are going to spare. It is most probable that from this on cotton will sell at much better prices. It is rather a study anyhow that the supply seems too short for all mills to run on full time and cotton goods stay stubbornly low except as the spinners meet and force the prices up the little that it will bear. It would seem rather much like the world already has enough cotton manufactures and that as they continue to be built faster than the population demands the less fitted must drop out and the fittest survive. There is something anomalous about the cotton trade.

Pretty Souvenirs.

One of the many interesting exhibits at the Charleston Exposition is located in the treasury department of the United States Government exhibit, in the Colonnade, on the west of the Cotton Palace. It is a coining press from the United States mint and is daily operated in striking the official medal of the South Carolina Inter-State and West Indian Exposition. The press is a highly finished machine, run by an electric motor at a speed of ninety revolutions per minute, each revolution stamping a medal which is the size of a twenty-dollar gold piece. The design represents the figure of Liberty standing on the globe; emblems of trade and commerce are typified by a railway train and rice field; ships and a light house are seen in the harbor. The reverse is covered with a well defined inscription of the Exposition; a wreath suggests the staple products of the State—cotton and corn. The medal is a very attractive piece of metal work and is for sale where it is stamped, and is readily exchanged for a quarter of the current coin of the United States. As a souvenir of the Exposition this beautiful medal is one of the nicest mementoes that visitors can take away with them to remind them of the magnificent Government exhibit at this Exposition.
