GOOD ENOUGH, LET IT GO AT THAT.

When Prince Henry was ready to return he and President Roosevelt exchanged pleasant parting greetings. The President and Emperor William also exchanged felicitations, in which the President said, "I trust you will permit me to congratulate you on the admirable manner in which he [the Prince] bore himself." This was doubtless written in haste but in entire sincerity and meaning all that the words convey. But now the expression is being criticised for phraseology that bears the construction that a break in the Prince at some point would not have been a surprise. Doubtless it would have been a happier hit if the language had not been capable of such construction but when we bear in mind that only a few of our conspicuous characters escape these breaks, the President, always frank, sincere, impulsive and outspoken, could hardly be expected to speak less truly and more diplomatically. Did not Dewey, after all the brilliancy of the Manila campaign, act queerly about the gifted house, get drunk at Savannah and aspire to the presidency without a corporal's guard following? And yet Dewey's a great man. Didn't Capt. Cruger come home from Manila and tarring on too much wine, expose himself to a whole lot of criticism for his speech in New York? Did not Hobson, the sublimest hero of the Spanish-American war, kiss too many girls? and the sweetest of sweets soured on him. Did not Sampson and Schley, after the great victory at Santiago fall into a scramble about the honors, till neither has any great amount left? Did not President Roosevelt himself get his foot into it about a Washington dinner? The President doesn't seem so much off after all to congratulate the Emperor on sending over a brother who could bear himself so well. The phraseology would not have been very bad if it had carried with it a tacit reminder that neither the Emperor nor the President could have gone through the ordeal so free from breaks. He is both lucky and wise to an eminent degree who does not at some time make a fool of himself.

"There is no system of vaccination which will prevent an epidemic of Spring fever."

TOO TRUE, TOO TRUE.

The Durham Herald gets off a long string of editorial squibs every day and, unlike such columns are generally found to be, there are always some good hits. One is the following:

"Some people think hard of newspapers for printing the news when they should feel thankful toward them for that part of it they do not print."

This fits a case to a T.

About the worst case of general depravity [though not especially outrageous in its nature] that has presented itself to us was allowed to pass unpublished because we were besought not to publish it. We pocketed our sense of duty, justice, right and dignity to conform to the wishes of a third party; a mutual friend.

We could not refuse to tell our readers who were personally interested in the case what had been the outcome. It was done in about two lines and the plain statement made sufficient apology for the whole course of the subject.

We were waited upon and the only source from which we got a penny from the whole connection was cut off and we were frankly told, "Anything possible to be done against you will be done." Thus instead of being thanked for withholding so much and giving the apology, it is "Eternal war 'twixt thee and me." But it does not amount to much and there are those so unfortunate in make up as to be objects of pity rather than resentment, and for aught we know all these to whom the Herald refers belong to this class.

The fertilizer wagon trains are now in order and are to be seen daily wending their way from the ware house centers. It is an air of business the farmers are wearing and soon mother earth will open her pores for plants to be bursting into view. Here's wishing them a prosperous year.

We'll hardly get the Isthmian canal completed before we'll be after making a ditch from the Delaware Bay to the Chesapeake Bay. Then we only need to enlarge the Dismal swamp canal to dodge that marine grave yard, Cape Hatteras. The time is coming.

Practically Starving.

"After using a few bottles of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure my wife received perfect and permanent relief from a severe and chronic case of stomach trouble," says J. R. Helly, real estate, insurance and loan agent, of Macomb, Ill. "Before using Kodol Dyspepsia Cure she could not eat an ordinary meal without intense suffering. She is now entirely cured. Several physicians and many remedies had failed to give relief." You don't have to diet. Eat any good food you want; but don't overload the stomach. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure will always digest what you eat.—Gibson Drug Store.

Don't Like Ham Gravy.

Mr. C. M. Culver of Chatham county writes the Progressive Farmer the following receipt for saving young apple trees from rabbits. He says:

"Grease them up as high as the rabbits can reach with an old bacon rind and they are safe."

White Man Turned Yellow.

Great consternation was felt by the friends of M. A. Hogarty of Lexington, Ky., when they saw, he was turning yellow. His skin slowly changed color, also his eyes, and he suffered terribly. His malady was Yellow Jaundice. He was treated by the best doctors, but without benefit. Then he was advised to try Electric Bitters, the wonderful Stomach and Liver remedy, and he writes: "After taking two bottles I was wholly cured." A trial proves its matchless merit for all Stomach, Liver and Kidney troubles. Only 50c. Sold by Fetzer's Drug Store Druggist.

This county is yet to be the strawberry center of Eastern North Carolina, and last year shipped nearly 200,000 crates or one-half of the State crop. While not growing all, we yet shipped three-fourths of the huckleberry crop from this section.—Duplin Journal.

A Good Cough Medicine for Children.

"I have no hesitancy in recommending Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," says F. P. Moran, a well known and popular baker, of Petersburg, Va. "We have given it to our children when troubled with bad coughs, also whooping cough, and it has always given perfect satisfaction. It was recommended to me by a druggist as the best cough medicine for children as it contained no opium or other harmful drug." Sold by M. L. Marsh, druggist.

Kodol Dyspepsia Cure

Digests what you Eat

You might as well put fuel under a boiler without burning it and expect the engine to run, as to eat food and not digest it and expect to keep up nourishment for your body. You must have nourishment to live and when you cannot digest your food, Kodol Dyspepsia Cure will do it for you, with no aid whatever from the stomach. It contains exactly the same elements as Nature's digestive fluids and can't help but produce the same results.—David Taylor, Blind Ridge, Pa., writes:—"I have been afflicted for a number of years with dyspepsia and have tried various remedies without good results but was cured by one bottle of KODOL DYSPEPSIA CURE. I cannot say too much in its favor."

It can't help but do you good

Prepared by E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago. The $1. bottle contains 2½ times the 50c. size. When you need a soothing and healing application for piles, sores and skin diseases, use DeWitt's Witch Hazel SALVE. Beware of counterfeits. Gibson Drug Store.
