MEMORIAL DAY IN 1902.

The People Turned Out to Do Honor to the Dead Confederates—Rev. G H Cornelson Eulogizes President Davis and Pleads for Liberal Aid in Erecting a Monument—The Honor Roll Read and Crosses of Honor Bestowed.

The exercises on last Saturday in honor of the Confederate dead were appropriate and creditable. The programme was executed with pleasing solemnity. It was an unusually fine procession of Daughters and Children and a goodly number of veterans in line and the court room was packed.

Rev. W H Hiller made an especially impressive prayer at the opening.

Miss Gertrude Caldwell sang the Old North State as a solo in her strong but mellow voice accompanied by the Concord band and lustily joined in with in the chorus by the audience.

Rev. G H Cornelson, after some preliminary remarks showing his appreciation of the honor and the responsibility involved in accepting the invitation to make the address entered upon a eulogy of President Jefferson Davis as the representative of the cause in whose defense they died to whom we meet to pay this tribute.

He admitted that his subject had made some mistakes as other men but that he was the representative of States' rights more than any other. He had this principle inbred in him and defended it as a soldier, a scholar, a statesman. He was peerless in his defense of this principle.

It was woven into the very fibres of his soul and he never allowed it to fade from his mind.

He thought Jefferson Davis not fully understood as an unselfish patriot and a great leader. He deplored the fact that there are traducers of the chosen head.

He urged boys in their school declamations to commit to memory and speak Jefferson Davis' farewell address to the United States Senate. It is a model of pure and expressive language and is the words of a man sincere in all that he said and did. He was a patriot of the truest dye.

The speaker rehearsed the great sufferings of Jefferson Davis when the Confederate arms were laid down in defeat. As he had been the highest representative of the principles fought for he was made the subject of punishment for all.

The speaker refrained from the mention of names of such as were chiefly responsible for his torture. The iron shackles and the double sentries over him were a constant torture and it was by the vigorous protest of his physician that the irons were removed.

The people made him president but no tongue can tell the amount of suffering he alone endured as a consequence.

Being a lawyer and a statesman he knew his rights and plead for a trial but was refused from no other cause than that he was innocent of crime, yet the subject of hate and the victim of punishment for the whole South.

The speaker told of the noble work of the women of the South in their one united, strong and determined effort to rear a monument in 1903 to the memory of this great man and the cause he represented and for which they died whom the exercises of the day were to honor.

He plead for liberal aid to be extended to this noble, unselfish and patriotic effort. He quoted from the hero while living these words, "God bless the women of the South. They have not shot an arrow at me."

Mr. H M Caldwell read the honor roll, including some 300 men of Cabarrus that yielded their lives in the service. The list, he says, is yet incomplete but he is getting nearer and nearer to the perfect record.

J D Barrier then, according to instructions, called the names of 44 veterans to receive crosses of honor. Twenty-five of the number failed to answer to their names and the sweet little girls, Children of the Confederacy, were deprived of the pleasure of pinning them on.

Rev. W H McNairy pronounced the benediction and all repaired to the soldiers' monument and deposited a profusion of flowers as a loving tribute to the dead and all dispersed with a glad but solemn sensation that they had discharged the annual duty of keeping fresh and green the memories of those who suffered and died in the cause so dear to every Southern heart.

The Concord Band contributed its thrilling music, which earned the thanks of a grateful public.

ROY FAGGART'S TERRIBLE ACCIDENT.

Gets Foot Crushed by the Train—Grief From Indiscretion.

Roy Faggart, son of Mr. Valentine Faggart, in a fit of imprudence was attempting to ride on the train on the Southern's yard Sunday and just at the cattle pen he got a foot crushed in a horrible manner—there seemed to be not a bone left uninjured.

Dr. Young took off the great toe and part of the bone farther back but it is feared that it will require the amputation of the whole. It is to be hoped that the worst will not be realized. It is an awful lesson to let trains alone or get on them right.

DEATH OF A BUSINESS MAN.

W H Miller, of Salisbury, Dies—He was Successful Young Groceryman and Had About $17,000 Insurance on His Life.

Salisbury, May 11.—Mr. W H Miller, a successful young business man of Salisbury, died of a lingering disease at his home last night. Though his condition was hopeless, the end came sooner than had been expected and with a degree of suddenness. Of an upright, manly character and a genial temperament, he was generally and heartily liked. His last business enterprise was the organization of the Miller Grocery Company, for wholesale trade. His providence and forethought are shown by the considerable amount of his insurance—about $17,000—an amount probably in excess of the remainder of his estate. The deceased was the son of Mr. H G Miller, of Zeb, this county, who survives him. He was 35 years of age when his prosperous career, after a long and painful interruption, with occasional intervals of better health, was finally cut short. Mr. Miller leaves a wife, who was Miss Mary Julian, and two young children. The funeral services will be held from St. John's Lutheran church at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The pastor Rev. Dr. L E Busby, has been attending the Southern Synod in Charleston, but is expected to arrive in the morning.

PYTHIAN REALTY COMPANY.

The Company Organizes and Elects Officers—Work to Commence at the Earliest Possible Moment.

The stockholders of the Pythian Realty Company met Saturday night in the Pythian Hall and organized themselves under the above name.

The election of officers was entered into, which resulted as follows: F L Emery, president; Chas. F Ritchie, vice-president; H M Barrow, secretary, and L D Coltrane, treasurer. The following were chosen as the board of directors: Messrs. F L Emery, Chas. F Ritchie, H M Barrow, L D Coltrane, Jno. L Miller, W L Bell and R L McConnell.

It is the intention of this company to start the erection of their building just as soon as possible. Stock will now be solicited from the members of the order for the building, the ground having already been purchased by paid-up stock. It is thought probable to let stock be taken by the members for payment on the installment plan.

This building, when completed, promises to be a credit to our town and shows what can result from a united effort of a body.
