COMMENCEMENT AT SUNDERLAND.

Work of Session Represented in Program—Each Department Displayed.

Commencement exercises at Sunderland Hall on Tuesday night was another bright mile stone in the history of this splendid institution and the session now has its page in worthy annals.

The interest in the institution was marked by an audience altogether out of proportion to the capacity for seating where the delightful exercises could be fully enjoyed.

Miss Montgomery, who makes no special display of anything but her superior ability and capacity to conduct a first class school, seems only to have tried to furnish the audience a fair conception of the tenor and efficiency of the work done. The various departments were portrayed as follows:

The cooking department was represented by a sifter drill by a class who handled their sifters in calisthenic movements, combining with it the department of gymnastics.

The sewing department was displayed by a class at work and with questions and recitation answers, showing the course of this department of domestic economy.

The Sunderland Missionary Society was represented by a large class in costumes with ensigns of the different national missionary fields with recitations appropriate to each.

The Temperance Society was represented by a recitation by Miss Ella Gray, picturing with vivid effects the horrors of the drink demon.

The literary work was most creditably shown by two essays read and a humorous recitation.

Miss Bessie Farley read an essay, subject, "The Awakening of the Mind", with Miss Hellen Keller as a basis.

Miss Mattie Byrd also read an essay, subject, "The Might of Mites", portraying the power of little things.

Miss Maude Smith recited a humorous selection from Sonney's Christening. All these were roundly cheered and inspired high conceptions of the literary work done.

The vocal and instrumental exhibit was interspersed in the program and consisted of three excellent choruses and two duets. The last duet "Il Trovatore" was especially meritorious as rendered by Miss Morse and her pupil Miss Farley.

The graduating class this year was composed of Misses Mattie Byrd, Bessie Forley and Ella Gray.

Rev. G. H. Cornelson opened the exercises with an earnest and impressive invocation and closed them with the benediction.

Thus passes the planting of good seeds in the human mind and it is the commencement of the growth and fruit bearing of precious influences that will flow with steady stream through time to be merged into the eternal.

About Silk Culture.

An excellent crop of cocoons seems to have been harvested by all whom we supplied with silk-worm eggs this year. The Department will endeavor to have a buyer visit Raleigh during the summer or fall to purchase cocoons.

In meantime growers are advised to choke them carefully and dry them out as is explained on pages 27 and 28 of our Bulletin #191. The dried cocoons, if of good quality should bring about $1.25 per pound. Due notice will be sent you of the date of the buyer's visit.

There is likely to be a considerable demand for eggs next spring at about $2.00 per ounce. But we can not guarantee this. We advise every body to select at least 200 of the best and finest cocoons and from these raise one ounce of eggs, but not more, unless there is assurance of a sale for the eggs in your own neighborhood.

Your attention is called to the premiums offered for silk by the State Fair. You will have a fair chance to secure one or more of these. Copies of the advance premium list may be had by addressing C B Denson, Raleigh, N. C.

Very sincerely yours,

GERALD McCARTAY,
Biologist.

Itiner Items.

Rimer, N. C., June 3.—The farmers are busy plowing their corn and cotton crops, which are looking well, but are needing rain. Mr. Jacob A Klutz, of Rowan, says they have had but little rain since Easter.

Mr. A W Lentz has accepted a position as agent for the champion machine.

There was a baseball game played in Cruse's pasture last Saturday. There will be another game next Saturday by the same teams. Some of our boys will go to Rowan next Saturday to play.

Mr. and Mrs. R D A Safrit are the happy parents of a young son.

We will listen for the wedding bells about here soon.

Mr. D J Rimer and family went to China Grove to attend the wedding of their daughter Miss Lula to Mr. Linda Crawford last Sunday.

Some of our farmers will have wheat to harvest the last of this week or the first of next.
